NAVY PIER'S USE AS CONVENTION MAGNET URGED

Plan Development as Trade Asset.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago's Navy pier, formerly called the Municipal pier, built for both commerce and recreation, is among the greatest of its kind and movements are now afoot to develop its possibilities as a trade builder.

Extending three-quarters of a mile into Lake Michigan and fanned by breezes on the hottest day, the pier was built by the city some twenty years ago at a cost of $4,500,000. When the new bridge is built across the mouth of the Chicago river it will place the outer drive at the threshold of the pier.

Might Compete With East.

The Chicago Association of Commerce has been pointing out that the pier offers opportunities for a convention hall and exhibition space for the heavy industries that would enable Chicago to compete with Atlantic City and other points in landing conventions of the heavy basic lines, machinery and processes.

The association suggests remodeling of the concert hall and other facilities at a cost of between $250,000 and $500,000 and argues this outlay would pay for itself. These plans are under discussion. A heating system for the auditorium is the main item. A railroad spur, too, is advised.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly holds that $4,500,000 is too large a city investment to be idle. He is for development of the pier as a place for recreation, business and conventions of types that now go elsewhere.

History of the Structure.

Building of the pier was an effort to prevent decline of the water commerce of Chicago two decades ago. The pier, started in 1914 under Mayor Carter H. Harrison, was part of the Chicago harbor development plan along the lake front. It was to be one of five piers built between the river and Chicago avenue.

Changes in transportation altered the original plan somewhat. The growth in automobiles and trucks cut into the business of the lake boats which used to carry cargoes of fruit from Michigan. Now most of this fruit is trucked in from the orchard areas. Many boats dock elsewhere.

Changes in Water Trafic.

Water commerce veered more to the Calumet river industrial region a few miles south. Passenger trafic on the lakes fell off, especially when the depression came, just as trafic did elsewhere. Many boats were taken off and revenues of the pier dropped. In the last ten years operation and maintenance of the pier cost $2,077,000, while revenue was $1,421,402. Last year's revenue was $102,667, while operation and maintenance took $106,060.

Package freight by boat, especially to Detroit, Cleveland, and Buffalo, has been coming back in volume, and the boats now running have had two good seasons. With the Illinois waterway affording a direct route between the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico, commerce in the port is expected to increase as recovery gets into swing.

Lake cruises, too, again are growing in popularity, passenger trafic is on the upgrade, and shipments and storage of automobiles are important.

Has Immense Facilities.

Dwelling on the effect of the automobile as a holiday maker, the pier statisticians say that twenty years ago a million and a half persons in a season used to take the day excursions by water out of Chicago, while last year there were less than 500,000.

For conventions the pier has exhibition spaces stretching half a mile. The biggest convention held on the pier was that of the American Society for Steel Testing in 1926. It used 300,000 square feet of floor space. In 1924 the American Medical association held its convention at the pier. Chicago seeks it again for next year.

Since 1930 the motorboat and sports show has been held at the pier, while the Garden Clubs of Illinois for four seasons have picked the pier for their flower show. These are a few highlights. At present the flower show and the motorboats and sports shows are the only regular exhibitors.

The pier, however, keeps on attracting between 1 and 3 million visitors a year as a recreational center.

WOMAN TELLS BRUNO'S VISITS TWICE A WEEK

Home Hour's Ride Away, She Admits.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Greta Henkel, a gum chewing brunette with big brown eyes, stole the show at the Lindbergh baby murder trial today. Other defense witnesses, including a radio repair man who had been in an insane asylum five times and a plumber who characterized himself as "defense dynamite," were completely eclipsed.

Mrs. Henkel was named by the state as the playmate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, on trial in Judge Thomas Trenchard's court for the slaying of the first born son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. She was placed on the witness stand this afternoon mainly to testify that her relationship with the defendant was "decent and honorable," to use the expression of Defense Lawyer Edward J. Reilly.

Even Flirts at Judge.

But the slender, vivacious young housewife presented a remarkable exhibition of courtroom coquetry before she left the stand. She rolled her eyes at Judge Trenchard; she winked at Reilly; she even tried her wiles on the grim and determined Attorney General D. T. Wilentz, who asked her a great many impertinent questions before he finished his cross-examination.

Gustave Miller, the plumber, was good, too. His testimony was merely that he had repaired a leaking pipe in the broom closet of the Hauptmann home where the ransom money had been kept, according to Hauptmann. But he wrangled and argued in loud fashion with Wilentz and gave the crowd many a laugh.

James Streppone, the Italian radio man who admitted proudly that he was a "manic-depressive psychosis" type who knew when a spell was coming on and himself demanded admission to an asylum, interested the crowd also.

Tried to Sell Him Money.

Two other witnesses testified that Fisch displayed gold certificates, and one of them, Thieron Main, a countryman from northern New York, declared that Fisch tried to sell him some gold notes.

The final defense witness of the day was Dr. Erasmus Hudson, fingerprint expert of New York, who testified that 500 fingerprints "of value" had been found on the kidnap ladder and that none of them were Hauptmann's.

But it was Mrs. Henkel who was the sensation. She swayed gracefully to the stand and took the oath with a little giggle. She was garbed in a dark green frock with white collar and cuffs. A small black hat clung to the side of the head. She crossed her knees and the jurors (at least the eight men) gazed with appreciation upon a considerable expanse of the flesh colored silk.

Met Bruno on Beach.

She met Hauptmann in the summer of 1932, she said, at the bathing beach of Hunter's Island, where the German residents of the Yorkville district in New York City were wont to gather.

Her husband was not present and Hauptmann's wife was in Europe, she admitted, but she introduced Hauptmann to her husband a week later. She also met Mrs. Hauptmann, she said, when the latter came back from Europe a couple of months later.

"How did Mr. Hauptmann treat his wife?" Reilly asked.

Displays Many Americanisms.

She displayed a German accent not as strong as others of the German witnesses and her speech was sprinkled with little Americanisms such as "uh-huh" and "you said it!"

She was also acquainted with Fisch, she testified. The little furrier boarded in the same house in which she and her husband lived.

"Was there anything ungentlemanly or dishonorable in Mr. Hauptmann's conduct toward you?" asked Reilly.

"O, no," said Greta, giggling again at the very idea.

That was all there was to the direct examination. Prosecutor Wilentz went at the witness with no chivalry at all in his attitude.

WRONG ANSWERS ARE RIGHT, BUT BOY GETS ZERO ON MIND TEST

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A psychiatrist's intelligence test which Patrick J. Lepeiro, 11, was reported to have "flunked" bothered Patrick's examiner, Dr. Hyman L. Levin, in court today.

One of Dr. Levin's questions was, "When you see you are going to be tardy for school what should you do?"

Patrick answered, "Think up an excuse," and got a zero mark for his reply, but Dr. Levin refused to answer when an attorney asked him if he could give a better one.

On another question Dr. Levin's answer delighted the attorney opposing him. Patrick had been asked to give the similarity, if any, between a snake, a cow, and a sparrow. He said, "None of them talk," and received another zero. Dr. Levin said the answer should have been, "All of them are animals."

Patrick is suing Mrs. Edward J. Laube for $20,000 damages because of an automobile accident which his father claims halted his mental development.

MRS. IZEN PAYS $3,800 FOR $1.50 'CROWN JEWELS'

Mrs. Minnie Izen, 38 years old, of the Saratoga hotel, 27 South Dearborn street, purchased yesterday forty-two glass baubles which the seller represented as the Russian crown jewels. The price was $3,800 and Mrs. Izen protested to the police when she discovered the merchandise wasn't as represented.

According to her story, a man whom she had met when she was conducting a tavern displayed the gems and asked her to join him in the purchase. Another man who represented himself as an experienced appraiser looked at the glass and pronounced its worth $21,000. A real appraiser figured the total value at $1.50.

On Jan. 30, Mrs. Elizabeth Wolkenstein, 63 years old, 7611 Essex avenue, bought a similar set of the so-called crown jewels for $965. The police believe the same gang of swindlers was responsible for both frauds.

Senator Hastings Claims There Is Some Difference

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—While Senator Daniel Hastings [Rep., Del.] was testifying today before the house ways and means committee, Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.] asked:

"And you are a lawyer?"

"I don't know about that," Hastings answered, "but I am a member of the bar."

300 California Families Flee Flood Waters

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Rivers in southern California were running full tonight after three days and nights of rain climaxed by a cloudburst at noon today. At Long Beach back water from the Los Angeles river had flooded a 15 block residential section and driven 300 families from their homes.

Scores of Los Angeles basements were flooded and highways all about the city were blocked at various times by landslides, which emergency crews cleared quickly. A street tunnel also was blocked by a slide.

Automobile deaths in the area during the last three days reached eight, all of them attributed to the storm. Blurred windshields blocked drivers' vision and resulted in several crashes, while skidding on wet pavements resulted in other deaths.

Refugees Are Removed.

Police, firemen and life guards manned boats, which removed marooned residents from their homes in Long Beach, where the flood waters reached a height of six feet in several places. Refugees were being cared for in the state armory, with the Red Cross and county charity organizations supplying medical care and food.

As flood waters were seeping beneath the door of her home, Mrs. Florence Washburn was giving birth to a son. A physician had been summoned, but was unable to get within several blocks of her residence. A boat finally was obtained and the physician reached mother and child. He had them removed to a hospital, where it was found neither appeared to have suffered from the experience.

Rainfall 1.29 Inches.

Greatest rainfall at Long Beach occurred today when 1.29 inches fell in 2 hours and 45 minutes.

A cloudburst at San Diego, 100 miles to the south, came at noon, flooding cellars and streets and causing bridges over three small streams to collapse.

Damage to Santa Fe railroad tracks between San Diego and Santa Ana was reported and deep water stalled one train at Sorrento Flats. The Tia Juana river, just across the international border in Mexico, overran its banks and destroyed the homes of 40 families.

Spanish Decree Ends State of War Set Up Since Revolt

MADRID, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A decree was published in the official gazette today ending the state of war in Asturias and Catalonia provinces and in numerous cities where it had been maintained since the recent abortive revolt.

U. S. DROPS PLAN FOR CONSULATE GENERAL IN RUSS DEBT ROW

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The displeasure of the United States government with the soviet Russian government over the collapse of the debt and claims negotiations was shown today in an announcement by Secretary of State Hull that this country would abolish the consulate general established in Moscow last March. It also will withdraw the acting naval and air attachés and reduce the personnel of the embassy.

Although William C. Bullitt will return to Moscow as ambassador, the United States probably will not proceed with the construction of an embassy building. An initial appropriation for this work was made by congress last year, and it had been intended to begin the construction this spring. It will occasion no surprise if the project is deferred indefinitly. Arrangements for creating consulates in other parts of Russia have been deferred.

The developments mean a period of strained relations between the two countries, although not to the point of the United States government's withdrawing recognition.

MOTHER AND SON KILLED BY FUMES; ANOTHER SAVED

Two members of a family residing at 4408 South Artesian avenue were killed late last night by fumes escaping from a gas heater. They were Mrs. Cordelia Binnock, 87 years old, and her son, Matthew, 58 years old, former master aviation mechanic in the United States navy. Another son of Mrs. Binnock, John, 50 years old, was overcome by the fumes but was revived by a fire department squad.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 6.—Bermuda may soon plow under its crop of moving picture performances. Explaining that people were now spending more than they could afford on such exhibitions, a member of the house assembly during a debate on unemployment suggested that limitation be imposed on the number of nights movie theaters are allowed.

Yogi Pretends 'Hindu Lore' Is Key to All Ills

(Picture on Back Page.)

Yogi Roy, "Hindu psychologist," who will be arraigned today in the license court of Municipal Judge Eugene Holland on charges of violating the medical practice act of Illinois, revealed some novel methods of diagnosis to investigators of the state department of registration and education. He is one of several targets in the department's drive against quack mental healers, sham psychologists, and other fakers.

YOGI ROY.

Both A. J. Meadel, a department investigator, and a woman investigator for the department, who called on the Yogi in his second floor flat at 2110 North Clark street, were told they had diabetes. Meadel was given a bottle of medicine which was to cure both diabetes and piles. The woman investigator was given still another kind of medicine for her diabetes, which the Yogi diagnosed by holding a specimen of urine to the light and saying, "You see, there is sugar in it."

Clairvoyant Glances at Bottle.

The woman investigator called a second time and said the diabetes medicine, one of the Yogi's herb specialties, had made her sick. She wondered, moreover, if she were pregnant. Yogi Roy, with his psychic knowledge [learned from the old Hindu masters] looked in her eyes, examined another specimen of urine, and said, "Yes, madam, I am certain of it. You are pregnant."

He then told her he would sell her some pills which would cause an abortion. If they did not she should return to him "and I will take care of it," he assured her.

The following day Meadel, the other investigator, called and was told he had a social disease. This the Yogi determined through his psychic sense alone. To cure this "disease," Meadel bought, for $2 each, pills identical with those which the woman investigator purchased as abortifacients.

More Business for Yogi.

Meanwhile a reporter for THE TRIBUNE, seeking medical fakers and others who prey on the emotionally disturbed, the ill and ignorant, saw Yogi Roy's advertisement in the classified telephone directory under the heading, "Psychologists." His cards reveal his turbaned Indian face and the inscription, "Yogi Roy of India, Teacher of Psychology, Herb Medicine Specialist." His cards further state that "Herb medicine is a successful remedy for new and old diseases."

The reporter and a 19 year old girl, Mary A., called at the Yogi's flat for consultations, for which they paid him $1 each. They found that the newspaper woman suffered from throat and chest maladies and Mary from foot ailments. In addition, they both had another ailment. In the soft words of the Yogi, they "needed love."

As he ushered in the reporter and her friend, the Yogi bade farewell to a

WIDOW'S FRIEND IS HUNTED IN CLUB MYSTERY

Reveal Quarrel Over Strange Friendship.

Investigation of the strange tangle of lives and loves that led to the murder in the Saddle and Cycle club early on Sunday centered last night in a police search for a woman suspected of more than casual knowledge of the killing.

At the same time the police learned that the murder victim, Louis K. Straub, 46 years old, 901 Argyle street, and his wife, Helen, had quarreled bitterly on Saturday night, a few hours before Straub was found shot to death in the club, which stands near the lake shore at Sheridan road and Foster avenue.

Woman Freed; Vanishes.

The woman sought by the police is Mrs. Ellen [Billie] Edlin, 34 years old, who has been missing from her apartment at 3750 Pine Grove avenue since she was questioned about the slaying and released on Monday evening. Mrs. Edlin is a close friend of Mrs. Straub.

The search for Mrs. Edlin began after a taxicab chauffeur had informed the police that he had driven a woman closely resembling her to the club about the time of the murder and had then driven her away.

The attachment of Mrs. Edlin for Mrs. Straub and their strange ties to other women with whom they associated has been carefully scrutinized by detectives. Evidence indicates, they say, that these complexes probably deserve the attention of a neurologist as well as a policeman. Mrs. Straub has told police that she was extremely fond of Mrs. Edlin and had given her expensive gifts.

A Day and Night Worker.

Straub himself is considered an important clew in the investigation. While he lived he was a busy man. In the daytime he was a bill collector for the Commonwealth Edison company. At night he served as bartender in the Saddle and Cycle club. After his duties there were performed he slept in the elaborately furnished Argyle street apartment provided by his labors. Police said it was easy to discern that as a husband he may have left something to be desired.

Against this background came the revelation last night of the quarrel between Straub and his wife. The police were told about this by members of a group of young women who on Saturday night attended a card party with Mrs. Straub and Mrs. Edlin in an apartment at 2342 Geneva terrace. It had been no secret among this group, the police learned, that Straub and his wife had been on the verge of a break since last summer over Mrs. Straub's affection for Mrs. Edlin.

Quarrel Over a Kiss.

The direct cause of Saturday night's quarrel between the couple, it appeared, was Straub's failure to kiss his wife before he departed for work that morning. Miss Josephine Daniels and Miss Shirley Manno, who live in the Geneva terrace apartment and were hostesses at the card party, told the police that Mrs. Straub telephoned her husband at the club three times during the evening. On each occasion, they said, the quarrel flared up and the conversation over the phone was "heated."

With this information the police put the disappearance of Mrs. Edlin and the circumstances of the murder itself to strengthen their theory that it was a crime of passion. Straub was shot seven times. Five bullets were fired into his body as it lay on the floor of a basement room in the club after the first two shots had felled him. The slayer, the police reasoned, acted under the stress of great emotion—perhaps revenge, perhaps the kind of jealousy which is aroused by such a weird triangle as the police say has been uncovered.

Cab Driver Gives Clew.

The taxicab driver who told of taking the woman "resembling Mrs. Edlin" to the Saddle and Cycle club on the night of the murder is Kenneth Colling, 3750 Broadway, a chauffeur for the Checker Cab company. Colling was found at his stand at Grace street and Broadway after a man who identified himself as James Dwyer, 1444 North Lockwood avenue, telephoned the Summerdale police.

"Dwyer" said his car was stalled in Foster avenue, near the entrance of the club grounds, about 2 a. m. Sunday, and that a cab driver helped him get it started. He said he had taken the number of the cab because of the excited action of a woman who ran out of the club grounds, jumped into the cab, which had been waiting for her, and ordered the driver to "get the hell out of here."

Questioned at the state's attorney's office in the Criminal Court building, Colling told of the episode. He said he had not thought of notifying the police as he believed the incident had not happened at the time of the murder. From various circumstances, however, the investigators have estimated that it was about 2 a. m. when the killer shot Straub.

"I was in my stand at Grace street and Broadway about 1:20 a. m. Sunday," said Colling, "when a woman chartered my cab. As she opened the door she waved good-by to another woman standing on the sidewalk. This other woman had her back to me, but she looked a little like Mrs. Straub, whom I have seen driving her car about the neighborhood. Both women wore almost identical brown fur coats.

Takes Woman to the Club.

"My fare asked me to go to the outer drive by way of Irving Park boulevard. I did, and at the drive she told me to go north to Foster avenue. There we turned west with the road, and about 25 feet east of the club house entrance she told me to stop."

Colling declared the woman said she was going into the clubhouse and for him to wait, as she would be gone only 15 minutes. The driver pointed to his meter reading of 55 cents and said he would have to have some money. The woman said she had none. When Colling insisted on some security she took off her fur coat, dumped it in his lap, and ran up the club driveway, he said.

"I waited there ten or fifteen minutes," continued Colling. "Some fellow parked across the street was having trouble starting his car." [This evidently was the man who identified himself as "Dwyer." Police found no one at the address "Dwyer" gave and concluded that he had supplied a fictitious name and address to avoid being involved in the case.]

Woman Returns to Cab.

"At this man's request," Colling went on, "I started pushing his car to get it started. Suddenly he said: 'Here comes your fare.' The woman came running down the club driveway.

"At the cab she started cursing, and wanted to know if she or the other guy had hired the cab. She grabbed her coat, jumped in, and told me to get going. 'We can't fool around here now,' she said.

"At the corner of Sheridan road [a few hundred feet west] I stopped for a trafic light. She cursed again and ordered me to drive through. Then she wanted to know where she could get a drink. I started to tell her of some neighborhood taverns, and then she ordered me to drive to a drug store at 1100 Argyle street.

She Goes Into Drug Store.

"In front of the store she stepped out of the cab, tossed me a $1 bill, and walked in.

"I asked her if she wanted me to wait, but she said no, she would walk home from there." [Mrs. Straub's apartment is three blocks east of the drug store.]

The description Colling gave of his woman passenger corresponded with that of Mrs. Edlin, according to Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the police homicide squad. After viewing a newspaper photograph of Mrs. Edlin, Colling said he was not positive that she had been his passenger, but that he could tell if he saw her. He said she "closely resembled" the woman who rode in his cab.

Colling also said that the long purse which Mrs. Edlin was shown carrying in the picture was similar to a purse his passenger carried. Police said the killer might have carried the 38 revolver used in the murder in such a purse.

Drug Clerks Are Questioned.

The next step in the investigation was interrogation of three clerks who were on duty in the drug store that night. The store is owned by Louis Barker. The clerks are Cornelius Perry, 5012 Winthrop avenue; Frank Watters, 4907 Winthrop avenue, and Ernest Haskell, 4946 Sheridan road.

Haskell told Lieut. Erlanson and Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers that he recalled a woman asking for a pint of whisky. He directed her to Perry. The latter recalled selling a bottle of whisky to a woman and said he gave her change from a $5 bill. None of the clerks paid much attention to this woman and were unable to identify any one from pictures.

Colling fixed the time at which the woman first entered his cab at 1:20, and said he was back at the stand at 2:05 after leaving his passenger at the drug store. Figuring the time of night, with little trafic on the road, and the wait at the clubhouse, the investigators placed his cab before the club between 1:30 and 1:50, the approximate time of the murder.

The clubhouse is set back about 200 feet from Foster avenue, at the end of a winding drive. The room in which Straub's body was found is in the basement, about 20 feet from the nearest outside exit. Because of this the police said it would have been impossible for the shots fired by the killer to have been heard outside the grounds.

The body was found by Mrs. Straub and Gus Schwartz, the club caretaker. Mrs. Straub has said she drove to the club to take her husband home after the women's card party in the Geneva terrace apartment broke up.

In discussing the new developments in the case Lieut. Erlanson said that the cab stand where Colling was hired is half a block from Mrs. Edlin's apartment on Pine Grove avenue.

"This throws some doubt on the story told by Mrs. Straub that she drove Mrs. Edlin to her home about 1:30 after leaving the party on Geneva terrace and before going to the club, where she found her husband's body," said Erlanson. "It appears that Mrs. Straub might have let Mrs. Edlin off at the cab stand, and that she was the woman the driver saw his passenger wave good-by to."

Returning to Mrs. Edlin's apartment police found it bore evidence of hasty departure. A pair of woman's suede gloves, stained with some dark liquid, were found in a dresser drawer. They were turned over to the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory for examination.

Mrs. Edlin's Car Gone.

In the Graceland garage at 3729 Broadway, near the cab stand, Lieut. Erlanson learned that Mrs. Edlin's car, which had been there Saturday and Sunday, was taken out Monday evening. This was shortly after she was released by the police.

This information, as well as her description, was sent to Clinton, Ia., and St. Louis, Mo. In the former town a sister, Miss Amelia Zastrow, said she had not heard from Mrs. Edlin since Thanksgiving, when she visited there in company with another woman.

Another sister, a widow, is reported to live in St. Louis, and a third sister is reported to live on a farm near Morrison, Ill., fifteen miles from Clinton.

Learning that Mrs. Edlin was sometimes known as Ellie Meyers, police last night were searching for Ted [Spider] Meyers, police character and north side resort owners, who is reported to have been her husband.

Attorney Emmett Byrne, counsel for Mrs. Straub in an unsuccessful attempt to obtain her release on a writ of habeas corpus early yesterday, said last night that he and Attorney Harold Levy also represented Mrs. Edlin.

"She conferred with me immediately after her release by the police," said Mr. Byrne. "I am sure that she has nothing to fear or to hide. If the police want her and I can get in touch with her I am perfectly willing to have her questioned again."

At her court hearing Mrs. Straub said she had had little sleep and poor food while in police custody. Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court ordered her turned over to the sherif and held in the administration building of the county jail until this morning at 10 o'clock, when the court will again hear her application for release. The state asked further time for investigation because of the new developments in the case.

Mrs. Straub's appearance in court prevented her from attending the funeral of her husband, which was held in a chapel at 1300 Devon avenue. Straub was a world war veteran and members of the Commonwealth-Edison company post of the American Legion and a squad from Company E, 132d infantry, attended the brief chapel rites and the burial service at All Saints' cemetery. A salute was fired over the grave.

When informed that her husband's funeral was over, Mrs. Straub burst into tears. It was the first time she had shown any particular emotion after her first questioning by the police early Sunday.

"If I knew who killed my husband I would scream it from the hilltops," she sobbed. "I can't imagine who would do this. He was the sweetest husband in the world and I would not hold back for any one if I knew who did it."

PARIS COPS STOP RUSH OF REDS TO CENTER OF CITY

Avert New Bloodshed on Riot Anniversary.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The danger of new bloodshed in Place de la Concorde, which a year ago today was the scene of the most serious popular uprising in the history of the third republic, was averted by speedy police action tonight.

The day had passed quietly on the whole, with orderly crowds thronging into Place de la Concorde to honor the memory of the 19 rioters killed in last year's battle, which grew from indignation over disclosures of the Stavisky scandal.

Shortly after 9 p. m. hundreds of communists began to mobilize along the boulevards, evidently preparing to rush into the square. Police gave them no chance to carry out their maneuver.

Behind Garden Bars.

Reinforcements were rushed in riot wagons to Rue Royale and Boulevard de la Madeleine. Police quietly collared every one who looked suspicious. The more innocuous looking ones were whisked a few blocks away and set loose with farewell kicks. Others found carrying brass knuckles or blackjacks were rushed to an improvised concentration camp behind the iron grille of the Tuilleries gardens.

(The Associated Press reported that a dramatic last minute descent upon the capital of several thousand communists from outlying "Red" districts was broken up by police early Thursday with 1,200 arrests.)

Several times during the day police made charges to keep the mob moving in Place de la Concorde and to prevent massing on one spot. In the Latin quarter this morning there were real riots, in which the crowd fought back. There were a number of arrests and some minor injuries to both rioters and police.

Premier Flandin Hissed.

One striking feature of the day happened during the memorial services at Notre Dame cathedral. As Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin entered, braving the wrath of the left parties, one fanatic jumped in front of him and shouted, "Assassin." On leaving he received loud boos and hisses from many fire eating Nationalists.

Cardinal Jean Verdier, though not performing the service, gave absolution at the close of the cathedral ceremony. At noon the immense crowd began pouring out of the cathedral onto the 2,000 in the square, who had been unable to gain admittance.

Toss Garbage on Police.

Shortly after a new riot broke in the lower Boulevard St. Michel, near the prefecture of police. Manifestants, seeing mobile guards massed in the courtyard, began throwing garbage from cans which stood in the square.

A brief riot occurred in Boulevard St. Germain, where rioters shouted, "Down with foreigners." It ended with several arrests.

The center of interest in Place de la Concorde was the south fountain, where mourners heaped scores of wreaths, one of them bearing the names of the duke and duchess de Guise, pretenders to the French throne. During last night Nationalists had managed to daub red paint on statues in the square and the bridgehead, symbolizing blood of the riot victims.

Beider's car ran over the curb at Harlem and Diversey avenues and struck Miss Cook. A physician testified at the inquest that Beider appeared to be intoxicated after the accident.

REPORT COUPLE INDICTED HERE IN BABY HOME CASE

True bills charging that the Rev. Edward L. Brooks and his wife, Grace, operated the Beulah maternity home at 2144 North Clark street without a license, were reported voted yesterday by the grand jury. The indictments were sought in order to effect the return here of Rev. Brooks and his wife from Beulah, Mich.

An investigation of the Brooks' "baby farm" at Beulah was launched after bodies of several babies had been found in an unmarked "cemetery" on the farm.

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro took Mrs. Elizabeth Seiger, chief state inspector of maternity hospitals, and two women, former inmates of the home, before the grand jury. If convicted, theh Rev. Brooks and his wife face maximum sentences of one year in the county jail and fines of $500.

Several Killed In Germany.

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Several deaths were reported today in southern Germany, where rising rivers and broken dikes have followed severe snow and rainstorms.

An avalanche killed a patrol of four soldiers in Bavaria and two other members of the group have been missing for two days.

Three people were drowned in the Rhine, which is rising rapidly. Voluntary labor service has been polled from the population of the Black Forest and is working day and night to protect the dikes. The river Neckar has risen 20 feet. The village of Erkheim was flooded when a dike broke.

Four Dies in Austrian Slide.

BLUDENZ, Austria, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Four persons were killed today in an avalanche which swept through mountainside houses into a deep valley.

A mother and her two children were buried under thousands of tons of snow and debris, splintered trees and general wreckage. A fifth person was feared to have been caught in the slide.

The avalanche peril is increasing daily throughout the Austrian winter playground, where the prince of Wales is spending a vacation.

The "white terror" swept away eight unoccupied houses on Mount Bartholomaeberg and wrecked a cable railway at Parthennen. One person was killed at Linz by a slide several hundred yards wide.

JUDGE QUESTIONS GIRL WHO BALKS AT TAKING STAND

CRIMINAL COURT.
Paul Walker, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

Miss Irene Crowley, 3227 Madison street, who refused to take the witness stand for the state and give evidence against Wilbert J. Herbster, "her boy friend," who is on trial for murder, was forced to testify by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the Criminal court yesterday.

The judge called her as a court witness and himself interrogated her about the murder of Lawrence Howard, 26 years old, 3336 Monroe street, who was shot and killed on Nov. 4 in a tavern of which Herbster is part owner.

Miss Crowley, who saw the killing, then supported the contention of Defense Attorney James M. Burke, that Herbster shot his patron in self defense. Under the questioning of the judge she said she saw Howard, at the time he was shot, in the act of hurling his second beer glass at Herbster.

MURDER INQUIRY REVEALS LAVISH 'GIFTS' TO MALOY

Red Donovan Gives Up; Freed on Alibi.

While police continued to pursue the theory that Thomas E. Maloy was murdered because his slayers feared he would "beat them to the gun," little headway was made in the investigation yesterday. Edward [Red] Donovan, south side hoodlum, who had been sought for questioning in the killing after it was reported he and Maloy had quarreled, surrendered at the state's attorney's office and presented an alibi for his whereabouts at the time of the murder on Monday. He was freed later in the day.

Another development yesterday was the disclosure of some of the sources from which Maloy, business agent and ruler of the Chicago Moving Picture Operators' union, derived his income from 1928 through 1931.

Large "Gifts" Revealed.

This inquiry, conducted by the federal grand jury which indicted Maloy for income tax evasion shortly before his death, revealed that the union members lavishly financed his trip abroad with his wife in 1930 and that the members and theater owners often made large "gifts" to him.

Maloy was killed Monday afternoon by two men who drove up beside his automobile as he was riding north in the outer drive at 24th street. The slayers fled after firing two blasts from a sawed off shotgun and several pistol bullets.

The motive for the slaying which the police consider the most likely is that Maloy had learned or was about to learn the identity of the men who ransacked his summer home at Long Beach, Ind., last Oct. 24 and escaped with a reported $50,000 in cash and $13,000 in jewelry. The robbers decided to kill Maloy before he could "get" them, the police theorize.

Donovan Offers Alibi.

Donovan, who formerly lived at the Pershing hotel, 6400 Cottage Grove avenue, appeared at the state's attorney's office in the Criminal courts building with his attorney, George Crane, and told Prosecutor Dougherty he had been at the union headquarters at 506 South Wabash avenue when the news of Maloy's murder was received by telephone.

Donovan, who is an official of a chauffeurs' union that transports films, denied there had been any quarrel between himself and Maloy, and said he was to be a pallbearer at Maloy's funeral tomorrow morning.

Donovan's alibi was corroborated by Miss Clara Skora, 19 years old, switchboard operator in the operators' union office, and John P. Smith and Peter Shayne, members of the union.

Quizzed at Police Station.

Donovan was taken to the Pekin police station for further questioning by Acting Captain John Cartan before being released.

The investigation into Maloy's income brought out that in 1928 and 1929 officials of a loop theater purchased stock on the New York exchange and held it on their books in Maloy's name. The union chief realized a profit of $25,000 on the stock in the two years.

In 1930 the stock was carried on the books under the name of "Umbrella." Michael Boyle, official of the electricians' union, the investigators learned, but it was believed the profits, if any, accrued to Maloy. The same loop theater also paid Maloy $10,000 a year "to get better operators."

Reaps Rich Harvest.

When Maloy went to London in 1930 to attend a labor conference, he reaped a rich harvest. The local union gave him $5,000 and the international union donated $2,000 more for expenses. Dr. Emmett Quinn, a dentist and member of the union, who was with Maloy when he was slain, collected another $6,000 from the operators "for expenses" and organized a farewell party at the Stevens hotel.

Four thousand people attended at $10 a plate. The cost of the party was $23,000 and $17,000, the remainder of the $40,000 collected, also swelled Maloy's "expense" fund.

Maloy and his wife toured Europe for four months after the labor conference and on their return received a Christmas gift of $7,700 more from the union.

Mystery Cash Checked.

Maloy also received another $35,000 from undisclosed sources this same year. This is believed to have been paid by theater owners in return for his allowing them to lay off operators.

In 1931 Maloy's domestic comfort was again the concern of the union members. They contributed $4,000 to build an ornate bathroom in his home and his birthday party netted another $5,000, which was used for construction of a liquor bar in his basement.

The federal investigation disclosed further that Maloy took several trips to Hot Springs each year and at least one annual trip to Florida and Canada. He owned three thoroughbred horses and several pedigreed dogs. He also had an interest in the Playground cafe at 7th street and Wabash avenue.

Pay Earned by Others.

Dr. Quinn, it was learned during the inquiry, received $130 a week from a loop theater, being carried on the pay roll as the highest salaried operator.

One Escapes

Miss Peggy Thomas, a radio entertainer, was awakened in her apartment at 712 Diversey parkway early yesterday by a knock on her door and an announcement that "it is the florist." When she opened the door two men forced their way in and demanded her diamonds. She protested she had none and the men ransacked the room taking a wrist watch, a ring, and $12.

They renewed their demands for her other jewelry and Miss Thomas agreed to accompany them to the Broadway Trust and Savings bank, 2805 North Clark street, where she kept it. While one robber waited outside the bank, the other went to the vaults with Miss Thomas. She whispered to a porter that the man with her was a robber and Lincoln Park Policeman John Johnek was called.

The robber surrendered to the policeman and identified himself as Larry Johnson, 30 years old, 4034 North Keystone avenue, and said he knew his companion, who escaped, as George Makley.

JUDGE REFUSES WRIT TO FORBID COAL PRICE CUT

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward refused yesterday to enjoin the Alwart Brothers Coal company, 1854 Webster avenue, from selling coal below the prices fixed in the National Industrial Recovery act code. Judge Woodward set a hearing for Feb. 14.

The NRA litigation division charged that Alwart Brothers sold coal below the "lowest cost determinations" of the code. For the company, Attorney Cranston Spray contended that it did not cut the fixed prices, but that its interpretation of them differed from the view of the coal code authority.

The concern sold Pocahontas mine coal to domestic users at a price based on the dealer's margin authorized for steam plant customers. Paul J. Alwart, president of the company, said this procedure did not cut the code price. The NRA charged that it did. Defense Attorney Spray has fought fixed prices previously for the Chicago Building Managers association and the Chicago Real Estate board.

SUES TO DIVORCE MATT BRESNAHAN, GOLF INSTRUCTOR

Mrs. Blanche Bresnahan, 119 Second street, Highland Park, filed suit for divorce in the Lake county Circuit court yesterday against Matthew Bresnahan, a golf instructor. She charged infidelity. The bill, filed by Attorney Joseph Granick of Chicago, says the Bresnahans were married on Jan. 25, 1925, and separated yesterday. Mrs. Bresnahan in the bill accuses Mrs. Adelaide Stephens, 1550 Juneway terrace, who was divorced June 6, 1932, on grounds of desertion, by Walter Stephens, official of the Stemar Displays company, 35 East Wacker drive. He has pending before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort a suit asking custody of his daughter, Phyllis, 11 years old, on the ground that her mother is unfit to care for her.

Story of Heavy Drinking Wins Woman Annulment

Testimony by Mrs. Mary E. Welch, 3931 West 63d street, that she had been drinking heavily just before her marriage in Joliet last Oct. 7 to Jefferson Welch, Lombard automobile salesman, won her an annulment by Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday. Mrs. Welch told Judge La Buy that she went with Welch on a business trip to Joliet, stopped at a couple of taverns on the way, and did not learn of the marriage until the next day.

The dentist, however, never operated a machine there, and did not employ a substitute, but had the regular operators divide his scheduled working time among themselves, the investigators found.

Felix Jablonski, 45 years old, 2744 Pine Grove avenue, owner of a restaurant at 1405 East 63d street, appeared at the Pekin station yesterday and said he was a witness to the Maloy killing. He said, however, that he would not be able to identify the slayers. Jablonski was driving south on the outer drive when he was forced to swerve to the right as the killers speeded by. At first he thought their shotgun was a movie camera, Jablonski stated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The bloodless purge of a group of radical New Dealers in the Agricultural Adjustment administration was described today by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Agricultural Adjustment Administrator Davis as "for the good of the service."

At his press conference President Roosevelt said he never knew about the purge of the protégés of his No. 1 Brain Truster, Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell. Later in the day Secretary Wallace said the President was aware of the action before it was announced.

Says Tugwell Doesn't Know.

Wallace added, however, that Tugwell, who is in Florida, was not informed of the move. Asked if he had neglected to inform his undersecretary because of the latter's fight for Jerome N. Frank, highest official involved in the ousters, last year, Wallace merely smiled. Tugwell's fight in behalf of Frank resulted in the discharge of George N. Peek as AAA administrator.

Wallace said the changes were made in the interests of harmony. He said that the administration is trying to steer a straight middle course.

"You know a ship may have too much ballast on the left or right and list in either direction," he explained. "But I don't think you can say we are swinging a course to the right. We have always tried to steer to the middle."

Repeats "For Harmony."

Asked if he had not in the order rid himself of all his left ballast, Wallace laughingly said he could take more on, if necessary. He said the order was an inevitable move to preserve harmony and was not the result of any particular actions on the part of those involved.

"There was mounting difficulty in getting things done," said Administrator Davis. "We believed things would function more smoothly if they were directed by men familiar with farm problems and having a farm background."

At this point Wallace was asked if this statement applied to Tugwell. He hastily said Tugwell had an excellent farm background.

Withhold Specific Complaints.

Neither Wallace or Davis would cite specific complaints against the radicals. Davis said he had no wish to "thresh over old straw." Both denied reports that the ousters were due to refusal of congress to consider AAA amendments while the radicals remained in control.

Frank turned in his resignation as chief counsel for the AAA during the day. It was accompanied by those of two of his aids, Lee Pressman and Frank Shea. Another came from Gardner Jackson, assistant counsel to the consumers' committee. The fate of three others involved in the purge remained in doubt. Consumers' Counsel Fred C. Howe and Victor Rotnam another Frande aid, may yet be given other positions, Davis said. Alger Hiss, a fourth Frank aid, is to be retained for the present, it was said.

Mayor Becomes Kiwanian; Talks on Trafic Safety

Mayor Kelly was inducted as a member of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club yesterday in the Windemere hotel. His candidacy was proposed by Oscar H. Boenicke, president of the club, and he was welcomed to the organization by George W. Fleming, lieutenant governor of the Illinois Eastern division of Kiwanis International, who is also a member of the mayor's safety commission. In an answering speech the mayor declared that, with hoodlums' rule broken, reduction of trafic accidents is the next major objective for Chicago.

AVOIDABLE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile accidents are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE DIES OF INJURIES

Mrs. Augusta Renwanz, 72 years old, 6556 South Bishop street, died yesterday in the South Town hospital of injuries suffered Tuesday, when she was struck at 65th street and Aanland avenue by an automobile driven by Howard Kelly, 7225 South Lincoln street. Kelly's car carried the 1934 Illinois license number 1,145,318.

The death of Mrs. Renwanz raised the Cook county death toll for this year to 87. At 4 p. m. yesterday the number of trafic deaths within the Chicago city limits stood at 73 and the number of injured at 1,477.

William J. Graham, 26 years old, 846 North Kolin avenue, and John F. Criss, 27 years old, 1739 East 67th street, were severely injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through the gates at Crawford avenue in Niles Center and struck an elevated railroad train. Both were taken to the Evanston hospital.

SAFETY COUNCIL PLEDGES AID TO MAYOR'S GROUP

Mayor Kelly, addressing the Chicago Safety council at its annual dinner in the Stevens hotel last night, asked the council to support his Keep Chicago Safe committee, particularly in its campaign for a state automobile drivers' license law.

T. J. Carney, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., who was reelected president of the council, pledged the efforts of the organization to aid in the auto safety program.

Deaths due to accident in the United States numbered 99,000 last year, according to D. D. Fennell, vice chairman of the safety council, who spoke briefly at the dinner. This was an increase of 8½ per cent over 1933, Mr. Fennell said, and only 300 below the record total of 1930.

SULLIVAN ORDERS BONDSMEN KEPT FROM U. S. COURT

On orders from Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan, Chief Deputy United States Marshal Joe Tobin instructed his deputies yesterday to clear the corridors and courtrooms of all professional bondsmen. Judge Sullivan is reported to have been aroused by the number of bondsmen who have been loitering in the corridor outside his chambers and who greeted him as he entered. One, it is said, addressed him as "Phil." When Judge Sullivan was sitting in the Criminal court in 1925 he sentenced Sanford [Gimp] Rosenbaum, a professional bondsman, to one to ten years in the penitentiary for confidence game in connection with an attempt to fix a case before another judge.

CONVICT MEISNER FOR KIDNAPING JOHN S. LABATT

Sentenced to 15 Years; Alibi Witness Skips.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 6.—After deliberating only an hour and ten minutes, a jury today found David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker, guilty of kidnaping John S. Labatt, London brewer, last Aug. 14. Justice G. F. McFarland immediately sentenced Meisner to fifteen years in Kingston penitentiary. This was the first kidnaping case brought to court in Canada.

DAVID MEISNER.

Meisner was found guilty on two charges of kidnaping and imprisoning Labatt and a third of armed extortion. Justice McFarland, having regard for the fact that Meisner is 54 years of age and in frail health, made the terms of fifteen years on each count run concurrently.

Alibi Witnesses Skip.

The case was quickly closed today because Meisner's two defense witnesses had hastily returned to the United States last night. When Police Detective Leroy Hall of Covington, Ky., appeared on the stand yesterday he testified that he was in Covington all of last August and that Meisner was in Covington when Labatt was kidnaped near his summer home in the Sarnia district. The prosecutor began tearing to shreds Meisner's alibi.

As court opened this morning, Justice McFarland inquired of Chief Defense Counsel C. W. Bell:

"You were examining a witness when court adjourned yesterday, Mr Bell?"

To the affirmative reply the justice asked, "Where is he now?"

"Ratted" on Meisner.

"I do not know, my lord," said Bell "I learned today that he and another Covington detective who was also to be called as a witness in this case had left their hotel. I want to make it clear that I had no contact whatsoever with these men outside of court."

Bell was allowed a fifteen minute recess to arrange his notes to address the jury. He at once referred to the detectives' disappearance:

"You may consider, looking at the matter as a whole, that those two men have 'ratted' on the prisoner."

J. C. M. German, chief attorney for the crown, followed, declaring:

Crown Produces 23 Witnesses.

The crown had produced 23 witnesses, 13 of whom, including Labatt himself, had identified Meisner. Meisner mopped his face with a handkerchief and fixed his eyes on the jurors as they filed in. He heard the verdict calmly, but his mouth dropped open.

Four other men are being sought or are held in connection with the Labatt kidnaping. One of them, "Kingston Pete" Murray, is now held in Covington, Ky., pending extradition. Police are looking for a man named Albert Pegram. Two others, one of them the "chief" of the gang, are also sought. Crown officials announced last night that the arrest of the "chief" and another man was imminent.

YOGI PRETENDS 'HINDU LORE' IS KEY TO ALL ILLS

Offers Girl "Patient" Job as His Housekeeper.

boy who appeared to be about 14 years old." The boy, departing, called out, "Good-by, doctor; I'll see you Friday."

Blabs About Another "Patient."

"That boy has diabetes," the Yogi said. "I'm curing him of it."

"But I thought that diabetes could not be treated except by a doctor, and that diabetics had to have insulin," the reporter said.

"I am a graduate doctor," said the Yogi with dignity. "He doesn't need insulin now under my treatment. I have cured many. Now, ladies, I cannot see you both together. One at a time."

Mary's report of her consultation revealed that he seated her beside a table in a small room and after having her write her name went into a deep study.

"You were born," he said, "away from here."

"Oh, but I wasn't," she replied.

He tried a few other psychic demonstrations without success, and told her she had "foot trouble." Then he began asking questions. Mary said she was a home girl, and was thinking of studying dancing.

Just a Little Helper.

"Stand up," he said, and as she did so, he eyed her closely. "Yes, you could dance. You need to develop yourself a little, though. Your legs are too thin—yes, lady, you should develop your legs. Otherwise, you're all right. I can give you lessons, exercises, which will develop you, and help you in your dancing. I will help you find a school, too.

"Your financial condition at home is poor. You need money to pay for the dancing lessons. I can help you, lady," he said, and fixed her with his liquid, furtive brown eyes, a smile on his dark lips under the dark mustache. "You could come to work for me.

"We'd be just as brother and sister. You could live here, and cook my meals, and keep the place clean. It would pay for your dancing lessons. The last girl I had was a poor girl who had no money and no job. I took her in, and she did the cooking. I did the eating. She took one bedroom, I took another. Just like brother and sister."

All Atwitter for Maytime.

"But I'm not in financial difficulties," said Mary. "Thank you just the same, but my family can give me lessons."

"You are not always understood," he said, "by the young man you are going with. Do not marry him. You wait. You need love, but you need spiritual, not physical love. In May you will meet the right man."

Mary paid her $1, and then waited in the stuffy living room, decorated by faded artificial flowers. In the bookcases are books with titles such as "What Every Young Husband Should Know" and "Serpent Magic." The reporter followed Yogi into the inner room.

Yogi Roy told the reporter she had chest trouble. She insisted she did not. Then she had throat trouble, he said. He could "feel a condition," and if she didn't have throat trouble then, she would soon. Then came his routine diagnosis.

What a Young Girl Should Know.

"You need love," he breathed, casting his melting brown eyes on her. "You are lonely. But do not be impatient. A course of lessons in psychology will bring you success in all lines. It will give you the knowledge."

"And what is the knowledge?" the reporter inquired.

"Ah, that I cannot tell you," he said, departing from his Hindu dignity enough to giggle. "No more than I can tell you what love is. It has to be experienced to be understood."

His "course," he said, consisted of 10 lessons, at $5 a lesson. He showed letters from several men and women in various parts of the country who were taking his course by correspondence. Several from women inclosed their photographs. They were middle aged women who smiled coyly from beneath dowdy hatbrims.

Mail Order Treatments.

One letter was from a man, asking the Yogi to work on his wife, who had "a terrible pain in her right side."

"I stopped it at once," said the Yogi. "See, here is another man writing from Milwaukee about money problems."

All these persons subscribed to his course after reading his advertisements in Psychology magazine and others, he explained. Asked if he could treat persons at long distance, he replied that he could. It was "the knowledge," he said, which made it possible.

He did not reveal any interest in the figure of the reporter, or offer her a job, as he had done with Mary. He appeared chiefly interested in selling her his course, along with some herb medicine, which would fix up her sore throat, or anything else which ailed her.

Admonishes Shrinking Violet.

"I can see you've just passed through a terrible experience," he said. "Some man has made you very unhappy."

He took her hand and held it several minutes while he studied her palm.

"The trouble with you, lady, is that you are too confiding by nature. You trust persons too much, especially men. You believe everything you are told, am I not right? Yes, you have a big heart, but you let it rule you. You must not tell all your secrets. And do not believe whatever a man tells you. Do not be so timid and trustful.

"Something comes to me," he continued, consulting a book and drawing certain symbols on a piece of paper. "I feel the presence of a man named Harry. Am I right?"

The reporter agreed to the mythical Harry.

"Yes, dear Harry," she murmured.

Spring Outlook Is Good.

"You must not care for him, dear lady. He is not free. He is a married man. He lies to you and you believe all he says. Besides, he has no money. Now, you wait until the third week in February. You will have good luck from then until June. You will meet the right man then.

"He must have gray eyes and brown hair. He must have an oval face, and be just a little taller than yourself. He will have money, and he will want to marry you. So you see, you have a chance, after all. To make sure he is the right one, come to see me. I will tell you."

Rising, the Yogi then ushered his customers out. The door closed upon his sleek black head, which was unturbaned, and his bowing figure, dressed in its rather soiled suit.

"Remember, ladies," he said softly, "if anything bothers you, come to see me, or if you cannot come, just call me on the telephone, and I will help you."

Hypnotic Quack O'Donovan Begs for Bail; Lacks $2,000

"Prof." James P. O'Donovan, of vaunted hypnotic and mesmeric powers, who was arrested Monday in his office apartment at 1203 North Dearborn street, entered a plea of not guilty to charges of violating the state medical practice act when arraigned yesterday in the license court of Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland.

Defense Attorney Eugene Bernstein, who practices hypnotism himself as a parlor trick, asked for a continuance which was granted with the consent of Assistant State's Attorney William P. Kearney. The case was set for next Wednesday.

Tomorrow, Frank J. Vicek, 36 years old, 2111 South Central Park avenue, is to be arraigned before Judge Holland on a charge that, though unlicensed, he accepted $640 fees for giving "medical treatments" to Mrs. Helen G. Hlad, 1707 South Racine avenue. Vicek was held for $1,500 bail under a warant last night at the detective bureau.

Mesmerist Looks for Angel.

In behalf of O'Donovan yesterday, Attorney Bernstein told the court that his client was a former British army captain and was "well known throughout the country." He asked a reduction in the professor's bail, which is fixed at $2,000.

When no reduction was forthcoming O'Donovan, snappily dressed and insouciant of manner, looked longingly about the room for "an angel," who would help him get "a week's supply of fresh air."

"It's a large bond to set for curing a person of neuritis," said Attorney Bernstein, alluding to the complaint signed by an investigator for the state department of registration and education.

"I have neuritis myself this morning," Judge Holland said.

"Ought to try some hypnotism, your honor," said Attorney Bernstein. "It might help a lot."

Bernstein, who is vice president of the Society of American Magicians, gave a sleight of hand demonstration Tuesday night at a party of the American Bar association for Municipal judges. Judge Holland attended.

Keeps Young on Elixir.

O'Donovan was attired for his court appearance in an expertly cut blue striped suit, blue and white shirt, and blue tie with pearl tie pin. He carried an oxford gray overcoat, derby hat, and tan gloves. He told reporters he was 55 years old, explaining, "I keep my youthful appearance because I have found the elixir of life."

Asked about his army experience, he said he was in "the Canadian army." Asked what outfit he served in, he said, with a wave of his magnetic hands, "Let's not go into that. Sufficient to say it was the cavalry."

He declared he had been to Springfield to seek a license, but was told by state officials that none is needed in the practice of hypnotism. Attorney Philip Ringer, supervisor of complaints for the department of registration and education, which is conducting a drive against quacks, said he considered the practice of hypnotism for the treatment of disease was a violation of the medical practice act.

FISHER FAVORS RIGHT OF APPEAL FOR PROSECUTION

Judge Discusses Revision of Criminal Code.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Radical changes in administration of criminal law, recommended on Tuesday by the Michigan state crime conference at Lansing, drew mixed criticism and endorsement yesterday from Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher. Judge Fisher is co-chairman, with Prof. Robert W. Millar of Northwestern university law school, of a committee which is drafting a proposal for revision of the Illinois criminal code.

Eight of the Michigan proposals are for changes in criminal court procedure. Of these, Judge Fisher endorsed three:

2.—Extradition of witnesses in criminal cases from other states.

3.—Admission in criminal trials of evidence obtained by what is now classified as illegal search.

Comments of Judge Fisher.

On the proposal to grant prosecutors the right of appeal now enjoyed solely by the defendant, Judge Fisher said:

"Under an ideal system of trial I would be opposed to it, but I don't regard the jury system as ideal. If we could be reasonably certain that there would be no abuse of the privilege, there would be no objection to it. It might become oppressive, but I think that on principle it ought to exist."

Extradition of witnesses from other states, Judge Fisher pointed out, can be effected either by the passage of uniform laws on the subject by all the states, or by a series of state compacts, amounting to interstate treaties.

Urges Common Law Principle.

"There is no reason why evidence, no matter how obtained, should be kept from a court," Judge Fisher said of the third proposal. "A trial is not a game. We should punish the person who commits illegal acts in search of evidence, but our code should cling to the common law principle that any arrest is justified by the evidence of crime which the arrest produces.

"At present the Illinois Supreme court holdings on illegal search for weapons virtually repeal the concealed weapon law."

Judge Fisher cited a number of reasons why he believed three more of the Michigan proposals to be unwise. These were suggestions of compulsory fingerprinting, for a noncriminal file, of all citizens; abolition of the statute of limitations for felonies, and permission for prosecutors to comment on failure of "professional criminals" to testify.

Against Fingerprinting Plan.

"Compulsory fingerprinting," said Judge Fisher, "is worse than the European system of local passports by which the whole population is kept under surveillance. I don't believe the American public will stand for it. Voluntary fingerprinting, if instituted on any large scale, would shortly tend to become compulsory.

"As for the statutory limitation on prosecution, it is one of the most humane and sensible legal measures we have. The present period of limitation on prosecution of felonies is quite long—three years. If prosecutions were allowed ten years after an alleged crime, it would frequently be impossible for an innocent person to prepare a defense.

"We will never be able to legislate honesty into the hearts of men. We will always have some dishonest prosecutors and dishonest judges. The public judges criminal law administration by individual and usually sensational cases.

Philosophy of Criminal Code.

"In drafting a criminal code we must disregard individual cases and individuals. Our philosophy must be one not of sentimentality to the criminal but of the right of social defense.

"The statute of limitations may seem to defeat justice in some cases. Again, the use of the writ of habeas corpus is sometimes abused. Yet the days of the letters of cachet in prerevolutionary France are not so far behind us that we shudder to think of living in a state where habeas corpus is forbidden."

Giving prosecutors the right to comment on failure of "professional criminals" to testify in their own defense without applying the comment to all defendants Judge Fisher characterized as dishonest thinking. It would require a double trial, he pointed out, involving a preliminary hearing to determine if the defendant was a professional criminal.

Are the Jurors So Dumb?

"If we assume that it is necessary for the prosecutor to comment on the failure of any defendant to testify," said Judge Fisher, "we condemn the jury system as absurd, for our assumption amounts to one that the jury is so dumb that it is necessary to call the jurors' attention to an obvious fact."

Judge Fisher made no comment on the proposal of the Michigan conference that judges be appointed for life and that prosecutors be appointed instead of elected, saying that the Illinois judicial advisory council now has that matter under advisement. He was dubious about a Michigan proposal that parole boards report to police the freeing of prisoners on parole for fear that this would "undo what good there is in the parole system."

THE NEXT PUZZLE WILL APPEAR IN TOMORROW'S TRIBUNE

Senators Curtail Powers of President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The administration's 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief bill was torn to pieces in the senate appropriations committee today.

Amendments slashing out whole sections of the extraordinary powers granted to the President were unanimously adopted. Another amendment shaving off 2 billion dollars of the appropriation resulted in a 10 to 10 tie vote.

Proposed by Democrat.

The amendment lopping off 2 billion dollars, introduced by a Democrat, Alva B. Adams of Colorado, lost as the voting stood today, but there will be three more votes on Friday. Two of these are expected to be for that amendment. This would preclude any material extension of the work relief program and limit the expenditures to existing agencies.

Four Democrats, Carter Glass of Virginia, chairman of the committee, Royal S. Copeland of New York, Pat McCarran of Nevada and Senator Adams joined with six Republicans in voting for the amendment. Only one Republican, Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, voted with the administration Democrats. Senator Norbeck sees in the work relief bill a chance to carry out President Roosevelt's $75,000,000 timber planting for a shelter belt on the great plains, from Canada to Texas.

The three absent senators today were John H. Overton of Louisiana, Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, and Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, all Democrats and members of the Philippines commission. Senator McKellar will vote against the amendment, but Senator Tydings is counted on by the conservative element to vote with Chairman Glass. Senator Overton will not be back Friday, but his colleague, Huey P. Long, plans to use his proxy in support of the amendment.

President's Agent Disturbed.

After a two and one-half hour executive session of the appropriations committee, Senator James F. Byrnes, President Roosevelt's personal representative, emerged with hair disarrayed and his face white. He rushed away, refusing to talk with newspaper correspondents and saying the White House was calling him.

Briefly these changes are:

1. The objective of "relieving economic maladjustments" is stricken out.

2. The President's discretion in spending the money is restricted to projects "of a type such as is or may be authorized by law."

3. The clause providing that "the specific powers hereinafter vested in the President shall not be construed as limiting the general powers and discretion vested in him by this section" is stricken out.

With this alteration, the President could not spend money on any projects not authorized by Controler General McCarl.

Still other changes urged were that the clause "without regard to the classification act of 1923, as amended," be stricken out. The President would thereby have to abide by the civil service classifications in fixing salaries of officials and employés.

Wide Powers Are Curbed.

By the committee action sections 4 and 5 are stricken out in their entirety. Briefly, those sections gave the President power to describe the duties and functions of governmental agencies, including corporations; to consolidate, redistribute, abolish or transfer the functions of agencies and corporations; to delegate his powers to any agency or corporation; to guarantee loans to or payments of needy individuals; to make grants, loans and contracts, and to acquire, by purchase or the power of eminent domain, any real property and to improve, develop, maintain, sell, lease or give away such property.

Thus the President's powers drastically are curtailed by the Democratic amendments. If the Adams amendment is adopted, the relief act of 1935 will amount to nothing more than a continuation of the activities of the Federal Emergency Relief administration.

Cites New York Problem.

"There are a million men on the relief in New York alone," Senator Adams said. "How can the administration find enough projects in the vicinity of New York to put a million men to work? Even if this could be done, a large proportion of those men, coming as they do out of the garment factories and sweatshops, would not be fit for work.

"The banks already have some 12 billion dollars in United States bonds in their portfolios. I am wondering whether the credit is not already strained. If we reach the point where the investment market becomes choked and the bonds start going down, it will be a desperate situation. The banking structure will collapse."

Senator Adams said the unemployed could be fed and housed by the direct relief method with about one-fourth of the cost of a works program.

Attacked on Senate Floor.

While it became apparent that the works bill could not be reported out by the committee before next week, attacks on the measure were started on the senate floor, with speeches by Senators W. Warren Barbour [Rep., N. J.], and Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.].

Senator Barbour demanded that the 880 million dollar appropriation for direct relief, pending the transition to works, be considered as a separate piece of legislation. He accused the administration of log rolling in its effort to have the bill jammed through the congress "whole hog or none."

Sues for Slander

Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, former wife of Felix Doubleday, son of the book publisher, filed suit for slander today against Max C. Fleischmann of Santa Barbara, Cal., chairman of the finance committee of Standard Brands, Inc.

Mrs. Doubleday asked $100,000 damages on the ground that she had been "injured in her good name and reputation" by words addressed to her by Mr. Fleischmann in the presence of several persons on the golf course of the Valley club at Santa Barbara, Cal., on Nov. 3, 1933. She declared that she had asked the yeast manufacturer, sportsman, and big game hunter to retract the offending phrases, but that he had refused.

The altercation on the golf course occurred about ten days after Mrs. Doubleday had begun suit in Chicago against Harold F. McCormick for $1,500,000, charging breach of promise to marry her.

In the complaint in the slander suit Mrs. Doubleday charged that Mr. Fleischmann, "in the presence of divers persons, including one Holden A. Evans, wickedly, recklessly, and maliciously contriving to cause it to be believed that the plaintif was unchaste and had been guilty of the crime of blackmail, did falsely and maliciously utter of and concerning the plaintif false and defamatory words."

BRITISH IDLE RIOT TO WIN BIGGER VICTORY ON DOLE

Want Raise; Displeased with Cut Restoration.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Despite the British government's surrender yesterday in the face of the storm of protests over the new dole measure and despite the announcement by Minister of Labor Oliver Stanley that recent reductions in unemployment payments would be restored, high feeling still prevailed today.

Thousands of jobless continued their protest campaign, demanding not only a restoration of relief cuts, but an increase over the scale of relief imposed before the advent of the unemployment assistance board last month.

Violent clashes between the police and idle occurred at Sheffield this evening during a protest demonstration in which nine policemen were injured. Between twenty and thirty demonstrators, including several women, were arrested.

10,000 at Town Hall.

Nearly 10,000 demonstrators gathered outside the town hall and when the city councillors refused to receive a deputation, a section of the mob attempted to force its way into the building. Stone and sticks were thrown, and fists flew wildly as the mob battled with foot and mounted police, who were forced to charge repeatedly before the crowd was driven back.

Several windows were smashed and two movie theaters hastily closed their doors while the town hall itself was converted into a temporary detention office.

Denounce "Baby Starving."

The disturbance lasted three hours culminating in a mass meeting of 5,000 persons. The crowd was harangued by communists and unemployed orators, who denounced the government's "baby starving" tactics, and demanded an increase in relief. A strong force of police also attended and the gathering broke up quietly.

Wild scenes took place at the Lanarkshire council meeting in Glasgow today during a discussion regarding the new relief concessions. Two councillors were thrown out of the council chamber, and a band of unemployed men and women were also forcefully ejected.

ACCIDENT INJURES THREE.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lorenk, 41, Elgin, Ill., and Mrs. Annie Miller, 57, Hinsdale, Ill., were injured today when their car skidded on icy pavement here.

STORK RIDES SUBWAY AND BRINGS A BOY TO PASSENGER ON TRAIN

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gertrude Rudolf, 31, of the Bronx, gave birth this afternoon to a boy in a Bronx suburban express as passengers filed to the platform at 180th street and Bronx park.

An unidentified woman passenger acted as midwife, Dr. Defiore of Fordham hospital did what remained to do.

P. Bowler, I. R. T. guard, who is unmarried and shy, was the hero of the vital drama. He noticed a woman passenger who acted alarmingly. He made inquiry. Then Mr. Bowler asked the other passengers to leave the car, except for a woman with a sympathetic manner. He turned up the heat three degrees; he lowered the window shades.

At 177th street he asked the station master to summon an ambulance to meet the train at the 180th street terminal.

As the express halted at 180th street the infant was born. Mother and child were taken to Fordham hospital, where it was said they were doing well.

HASTINGS CALLS SECURITY BILL A FOE TO PROGRESS

Attacks Measure Before House Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The social security legislation was attacked before the house ways and means committee today by Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.], who expressed fear that it might end American progress and drive living conditions down to the level of average Europeans.

Characterizing the old age pension plan in the bill as impracticable, Senator Hastings said that a new direct federal tax would be deeply resented by man, of the 40 million persons upon whom it is estimated the excise would be imposed.

Aid to Demagogs.

"My fear is that when the federal government undertakes the job of social security, through direct taxation for that purpose, it has taken a step that can hardly be retraced," said the senator. "It will furnish delicious food and add great strength to the political demagog.

"It will assist in driving worthy and courageous men from public life. It will discourage and defeat the American trait of thrift. It will go a long way toward destroying American initiative and courage.

"No man can determine with any degree of accuracy its cost upon the present or future generation. There is danger of our sympathy for its humane objectives overcoming our mature judgment."

Cites Political Significance.

Senator Hastings said that the fact the tax for old age pensions does not take effect until after the next general elections was significant and doubted whether a Democratic convention in 1936 would dare write the proposal in its platform.

"A very large percentage of the 60 million persons holding life insurance policies in one form or another will be affected by this tax," said Senator Hastings. "There is the problem of several hundred corporations that have had some plan of old age pensions affecting more than five million persons for many years."

Checking Army Needed.

In administering the law, the senator said, every housewife and every farmer employing a single individual would be compelled to make a return and it would take an army of people to check up on such individuals.

Earlier, Representative Dwight Patman [Dem., Tex.] had appeared before the committee to plead that the bill be revamped to remove the obligation of states to bear half the costs of pensions.

The committee decided that it would not report the bill out in final form until President Roosevelt had approved it.

Women Inspect Room in New Henrotin Hospital

Inspection of the first completed room in the new Henrotin hospital, 939 North La Salle street, was made yesterday by the women's committee, headed by Mrs. John A. Graham, which will have charge of the official opening of the hospital Feb. 16. The board of the $600,000 hospital has issued 5,000 invitations to friends to attend the open house to be held that day. The new edifice was constructed because the present building is to be wrecked in the widening of La Salle street.

FORMER CHICAGOAN SLAIN.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Police and sheriff's deputies today were investigating the murder of August Gagliano, aged farmer of Millburg, whose body was found in an alley this morning. Gagliano came here several years ago from Chicago.

CHARLES TAFT II. DEFENDS WARPAL ON ARMY CHARGE

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—World war "buddies" met again today when Sergt. Bernard Rome, United States army, faced court martial at Fort Benjamin Harrison near here.

His buddy was Charles P. Taft II., Cincinnati, son of William Howard Taft, former President of the United States and former chief justice of the United States. Because of this former comradeship Taft made the trip from the Ohio city to defend Rome.

Rome has been an instructor for the Indiana National Guard for thirteen years. He is on trial in a test case on charges of having falsified government claims.

Testimony set out that Sergt. Rome rented an Indianapolis apartment and entered into an agreement for a rebate of $10 a month from rental agents. The rent paid was $25 a month, it was said.

It is charged he defrauded the government out of $10 monthly from March until September, 1933.

Taft asserted there was no intent or effort to defraud, as the rebate was used to supply utilities which were not included in the rental.

3 Face Trial Tomorrow in Bus Strike Slaying

Edward Nacki, John Bretchneider and Joseph White, accused of slaying James J. Kelly, a bus dispatcher, who was slugged and shot during the drivers' strike against the bus company, will be placed on trial tomorrow before Judge William V. Brothers in the Criminal court. Judge Brothers set the date yesterday after granting Ralph Stoltzmann, president of the local bus drivers' union, a trial separate from the others.

Parents, Teachers:

What are YOU going to do about COLDS this season?
Will it be the same old story of sickness and absence?
Or will you use this new weapon for fighting colds?

Relieve the children's colds without one drop of internal medicine, or needless absence from school.

Pine Balm, a real discovery, offers you entirely new relief for your cold. Its action is thorough and speedy.

How It Works:

Most colds are caught in the later afternoon. Watch your children toward evening for cold symptoms. When there's any sign of a cold, here's the proper treatment. BEFORE SUPPER rub Pine Balm on chest and throat, and in nose. AT BEDTIME repeat this, leaving on generous quantity so the vapors will be breathed all night.

That's all! Next morning, the child should be ready for breakfast and ready for school. Not a dopey, dizzy child whose head rings from some drug—or whose stomach is upset from internal remedies.

Try this amazing preparation. There is no "rub" just like it—or nearly like it. Its vapors are volatile and spread over the "cold area," even through the bronchial tubes! They begin spreading instantly, which means they relieve the cold very quickly. Use it for yourself; or full-strength on any child. It's quite harmless.

ROOSEVELT ASKS NRA EXTENSION TWO MORE YEARS

Would Tighten Hours and Wages; Keep Staf.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today demanded the continuance of the existing NRA under its present administrators for another two years.

Calling congressional leaders to the White House this afternoon, the President told them that within the next few days he will send to congress a message requesting the extension of the NRA, which under existing law would expire June 16. Indications were that the extension will be for two years.

His message, Mr. Roosevelt said, will list certain principles which he believes the bill continuing the NRA should include. These principles are reported to be curtailment of price fixing under codes and strengthening of maximum hour, minimum wage, and child labor requirements.

Refuses to Oust Williams.

The President's insistence that the present NRA administrators as well as the NRA administrative machinery be continued unchanged came earlier in the day when he refused a demand from the American Federation of Labor that he fire S. Clay Williams, chairman of the National Industrial Recovery board.

In a personal letter to William Green, A. F. of L. president, Mr. Roosevelt praised Mr. Williams, saying he "has rendered a devoted, impartial service." The President also told Green that "inaccuracies in fact and conclusion" characterized the A. F. of L. resolution demanding Williams' dismissal because of his alleged anti-labor attitude as president of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company.

That President Roosevelt wants Chairman Williams and the NIRB, which succeeded Gen. Hugh S. Johnson at the NRA helm, to continue after the NRA is extended was indicated by Donald Richberg, New Deal coördinator, who attended today's White House meeting with the congressional leaders.

Robinson Announces Decision.

The President's plans for the continuance of the NRA were revealed by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], majority leader in the senate, at the conclusion of the conference. "It is expected," Senator Robinson explained, "that the President will send to congress at his convenience, probably within a few days, a message on the NRA, announcing certain principles which he believes should be incorporated in the legislation. The committees will proceed to consider the subject of the message and report legislation in time for its disposition before June 16.

"It is expected that the NRA will be extended for a definite time. The modifications will be simple and such as have been demonstrated to be necessary by experience."

"Good Guess" Is 2 Years.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], one of the conferees and the probable sponsor of the new NRA bill, said a "good guess" would be that the NRA will be extended for two years.

None of those attending the meeting would disclose the "principles" which President Roosevelt is to enunciate in his forthcoming message. The President himself has said, however, that he believes that the child labor provisions and the maximum hour and minimum wage provisions are sufficiently well agreed upon to be written into the law specifically. The NIRB has also adopted a policy of curtailing price fixing through codes, and this is certain to be one of the "principles."

CHURCHILL'S SON SPLITS VOTE AND LOSES ELECTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Randolph Churchill, 23 year old son of Winston Churchill, ran third in the by-election today at Wavertree, Liverpool. Young Churchill ran as an Independent Conservative on a "no surrender of India" platform.

There were four candidates in the field. Churchill, whose candidacy was supported by his father as well as Lord Wolmer, Sir Henry Page Croft and a galaxy of Tory "rebels," split the Conservative vote, allowing a Laborite, J. J. Cleary, to slip in in what was regarded as a Conservative stronghold, by a majority of 1,840 votes. Cleary polled 15,611 votes; the official Conservative, J. Platt, 13,771; Churchill, 10,575; and a Liberal, A. Morris, 4,208.

Conservative headquarters were furious, and bitterly criticized Churchill for the loss of a seat which they have held for years. Randolph, unabashed, announced that he intends to enter the contest in Wavertree again at the next general election.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

(Allying himself with the Hussars, Winston Churchill leaves military school to seek adventure. First to Cuba, with its guerrilla warfare, then to India, embarked on a military career destined to be filled with excitement and romance. Today he narrowly escapes death at the hands of vicious savages.)

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

The author of a series of articles, the fourth of which appears in this issue, as he appeared in India. Winston Churchill was commissioned a member of the Fourth Hussars in 1895, after leaving Sandhurst, where he obtained his training in preparation for army life.

At my father's death I inherited no material goods. What little property he possessed went to my mother for her lifetime, which was happily prolonged. She gave me an allowance while I was in the army, but soon found myself able to dispense with this. From a little after I was 21 I became self-supporting.

But though I had no worldly wealth except what I could earn by writing, and my small pay as an officer, no fine country home, or shop, or factory, or business which I could step into, nevertheless my father left me a rich inheritance in the prestige of his name and in the many powerful friends who cherished his memory.

I saw at once that these treasures would be of no use to me unless I tried to be worthy of them. I resolved to throw myself into life's battle with the utmost seriousness and energy, to repair the neglects of my school days, to read and study, to think and fit myself, as far as I could, to mingle in the great world of politics in which he had lived, and to seek adventures of all kinds in the hopes of winning distinction. These adventures were certainly not slow in coming.

World a Motion Picture.

I passed out of Sandhurst into the world. It opened like Aladdin's cave. From the beginning of 1895 down to a few years ago I have never had time to turn around. It has been an endless moving picture in which one was an actor. On the whole great fun! But the years 1895 to 1900 certainly exceed in vividness, variety, and exertion anything I have known except, of course, the opening months of the great war.

First I was trained as a soldier and went through for many months all the courses prescribed for the ordinary recruit, officer or man. Especially true was this of the riding school. Not only had I been well taught at Sandhurst in riding—"equitation" they called it—and was considered above the average, but my father arranged in my holidays, or "vacations," as cadets called them, for me to go through another long course with the Blues at Knightsbridge barracks.

I used to walk there in my cadet uniform across the park and I nearly fell down when a magnificent sentry sprang to attention in his box, and a still more splendid corporal major clicked and clacked into a salute. However, none of these compliments were continued in the riding school and I bit the tan there on very many occasions, no doubt to my great advantage.

Laments Passing of Horse.

Now in the 4th Hussars, to which I was commissioned early in 1895, I had another five months in the riding school. At the end of it all I had gone a long way in learning how to sit and manage a horse.

This is a great acquirement, then open to few, now to fewer. The petrol engine has knocked out the horse. He is still used for racing and a little still for other sports, but for traction, for locomotion, and for war (though this last will be disputed) he has vanished from our lives. The motor car, the motor bicycle, the lorry, the tank, and not least the airplane, have overwhelmed him.

The special historians of the future will no doubt trace the reactions upon the English character and manners which were the result of the replacement of the horse by the motor. Certainly quite different qualities are developed by taking care of horses than by keeping a motor car in good order. On the whole I am reconciled to the change mainly because so many more people can live a larger life through it. But that it will make a great difference to our riding class, whoever they may be, and that there is loss as well as gain, I cannot doubt.

Since I was now considered a fully qualified officer and could look forward to a period of leave in the winter months, I naturally desired to find some war to go to in order to gain experience and authority among my brother officers. At that time the world was very free from wars. For a decade there had hardly been any little frontier wars in the British empire worth mentioning. For twenty years there had been no great war in Europe.

The senior officers had the medal ribbons of Afghan and Egyptian campaigns, but these were long ago and only against savages. There was, however, a revolt in Cuba against the Spanish monarchy in which large numbers of men were stated to be engaged on both sides. The papers said that in the winter of 1895 great military operations against the insurgents were to be set on foot by the Spanish government, involving more than 200,000 troops. To this proposition I therefore directed my attention.

Saw War in Cuba.

I wrote to Sir Henry Wolff, one of my father's old friends, then ambassador at Madrid, to ask for facilities to visit the Spanish front. These were willingly granted and, with a brother officer, I spent some very interesting weeks in the field, with Spanish columns in Cuba marching to and fro while the rebels beset them and their camps. The first time I ever heard a bullet whistle was on my twenty-first birthday. I was seated, eating a chicken bone, near a horse when a rebel, who had crept up close to the brushwood, fired at about fifty yards range. The bullet missed my head by a few inches and struck the poor horse, a chestnut, in the middle of his ribs. It was a curious kind of war conducted for the most part in the clearings of luxuriant jungles dripping with moisture. We marched before daybreak and slung hammocks between the palm trees at about 10 o'clock, after which there was peace till 4, when the march was resumed.

We saw several fights and often had the strange sensation of riding along in the open under constant rifle fire. To assist in paying the cost of our journey I wrote and illustrated four articles for the Daily Graphic. This was my first venture in journalism.

BEGIN STUDY OF GRAFT CHARGES IN PWA PROJECT

Texas Irrigation Job Draws Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A special federal grand jury, the first summoned in Washington since the Teapot Dome oil scandal of a decade ago, today began an inquiry into charges of graft in connection with a $4,853,000 Public Works administration irrigation project in Willacy county, Texas.

The special grand jury will determine whether an alleged attempt by state officials of Texas, PWA officials, and contractors to substitute a pressure water system, employing California redwood pipe, for a planned gravity irrigation canal constituted a conspiracy to defraud the government. As the proceedings were opened it was emphasized no national politicians are involved.

Texas Water Project.

The project involved in the investigation, asked by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes as PWA administrator, was not revealed by United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett until prospective jurors had gathered in the District Supreme court. When the summons was issued two weeks ago it was stated merely that the investigation would center on a canal project in Texas.

The investigation will embrace other PWA projects in various parts of the country, Garnett said. He refused to name the additional projects.

Building Plan Changed.

Prosecutor Garnett outlined the evidence to be presented before the body on which the witnesses are to be questioned. He said original plans for the project called for the construction of a gravity canal, but these were changed to provide for a pressure project calling for the installation of redwood pipe.

The project was to have been financed through a 30 year bond issue. The jury will hear testimony that if the redwood pipe line had been built it could not have lasted more than 15 years, according to the prosecutor's office.

LONDON TO BUY UP SUBURBAN LAND AND BAN BUILDING

Seeks to Ring City with "Country."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Ten million dollars will be spent in the next three years by the London county council to preserve a "green girdle around London" by setting aside land upon which buildings cannot be constructed.

The London county council intends to give grants not exceeding 50 per cent of the cost of acquiring land or of "sterilizing" it against building, while the councils of nearby counties must pay at least the other 50 per cent.

Seek to Keep Open Country.

Protection of Londoners from the loss of open country near by is the reason for the scheme. This is more urgent than ever, as in recent years there has been a great deal of building in the suburbs. In a few years preceding 1930, in an eleven mile radius from Charing Cross, which is customarily taken as the center of London, 5,500 acres of suitable land had been built on, and a survey three years later revealed that 3,000 acres more had been built up as suburbs.

About 20,000 acres still remain which can be preserved as open spaces for Londoners. It is not the desire of the London county council to convert such land into parks. On the contrary, Herbert Morrison, Socialist chairman of the county council, issued a special call against making parks of the land thus acquired. The real desire is to leave this land in a natural state so that the Londoner will be able to get "back to nature" a few minutes after leaving his home or his office.

Outside Councils Back Plan.

Great support for the scheme has come from the councils of the adjacent counties, and it is expected they will lose no time in setting aside suitable land. Land owners will be asked to think of the public interest by not demanding extravagant prices for their land.

Indian Dominion Pledge Stands, Commons Is Told

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, opening the debate on the government's India bill, tonight declared the British government stands firmly by the pledge made in the preamble of the act of 1919 that the "national issue of India's progress is attainment of dominion status." He was convinced, he said, that despite the gloomy predictions of the die-hard Tories, led by Winston Churchill, the bill is workable, and he warned that the time has come for parliament to do something.

FEDERAL COUPONS GIVEN

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Ways and means of raising thirty six million dollars—or three million per month for Illinois' share of the relief burden for the coming year, were discussed today by Gov. Horner and the executive committees of both houses of the legislature. No commitment was made on the dozen plans submitted to the conference but two suggestions received serious attention.

The first involves passage of a bill authorizing the state to issue thirty six million dollars in bonds over a twenty year period which would be backed by excess sales tax revenue which, in the eighteen months since the tax went into effect, reached nine millions. This sum was pledged last month to meet the state's share for January, February, and March.

The second plan is predicated on increases of the sales and gasoline taxes. Under it, the former would be increased from two to three per cent and the latter from three to four cents per gallon.

Estimate Probable Returns.

It was estimated that the sales tax raise would net twenty millions and the gasoline tax increase about ten millions. Miscellaneous sources would then be depended upon to meet the additional six millions and bring the total, which would already have reached thirty millions, to the necessary thirty-six.

One matter the conference did not decide is whether the plan should be a permanent one or should merely meet the demands for the coming year.

Although only twenty seven millions would be needed until Jan. 1, Gov. Horner feels the nine millions advanced last month should be paid back to the state to meet growing demands at the welfare institutions.

The thought of the conference was that whatever is done should be enacted by March 1, for the nine million dollars diverted for relief from excess sales tax receipts early in the session will be exhausted by April 1. The state, therefore, it was agreed, should be in a position to contribute three million monthly by the end of February so that collections could be made on March business, if tax increases are resorted to.

Many Taxes Suggested.

Among the other taxes considered was one for a two per cent levy on the gross receipts of public utilities, which, it was estimated, would produce eight millions annually. A twenty per cent tax on tobacco and cigarets, might bring in as much as ten millions and a stamp tax on public documents, three and one-half millions.

Another suggestion was that a per ton mile tax be imposed on truck operators. There was also talk of a tax on professional people—physicians, lawyers, dentists, etc.—and another spoke of a four and one-half per cent tax on the gross receipts of corporations.

More meetings will be held next week in the executive mansion and if an agreement can be had, a bill incorporating the plan could be introduced the following week.

'32 ASK $645,000 OF FOUNDRY FOR LUNG AILMENTS

Thirty-two former employés of Woodruff & Edwards, Inc., Elgin foundry concern, who asserted they contracted pulmonary disorders while they worked at the plant, filed damage suits totaling $645,000 yesterday in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva. Attorneys Leo M. Tarpey and Drake H. Berg of Chicago filed the cases under the state occupational diseases act.

The suits set forth that the plaintifs' jobs required them to handle fine sand, silica, and other powdery material which, they alleged, they could not escape inhaling. They asserted that the dusts caused them to contract various ailments, including pulmonary tuberculosis. The disorders were contracted, it is charged, through neglect of the company to supply measures to safeguard the workers' health.

Most of the plaintifs are members of a molders' union who went out on strike at the foundry a year and a half ago after several of their number had been discharged.

Missing Six-Shooter Turns Up with a Bang

Last week Garrit Bax, 140 East Laurel avenue, Lake Forest, reported to Chief of Police Frank Tiffany of the suburb that his .45 caliber revolver was missing from his home. Yesterday Bernard Whalen and Charles Schroeder, Lake Forest employés, were emptying a garbage can from the Bax residence when, with a loud report, a bullet tore through the can and whizzed between them. Inside the can they found Mr. Bax's missing pistol.

TWO MASSAGE PARLORS LOSE CITY LICENSES

Mayor Edward J. Kelly ordered yesterday the revocation of the licenses of two North Clark street massage parlors recently raided by the police. These were the first revocations under the new ordinance, which prohibits an operator from giving a massage to a person of the opposite sex.

Those whose licenses were withdrawn on recommendation of Police Commissioner James P. Allman are August Pierrantoni, owner of a massage parlor at 3232 North Clark street, and Fred Cook, operator of a place at 2056 North Clark street. Girl operators in these places were given suspended fines of $200 each by Judge Edward S. Scheffler on Jan. 29 in the Women's court.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Allman said, investigators are continuing to gather evidence of violations against other similar places.

Missing Since Christmas, Widow Found Dead in Car

Missing since last Christmas day, Mrs. Converse S. Shepardson, 40 years old, was found dead yesterday in her automobile in the garage behind her home at 1938 Farwell avenue. The Rogers Park police said there was evidence that Mrs. Shepardson, who was a widow, had committed suicide by inhaling fumes from the exhaust of her car. The police went to the home after two of Mrs. Shepardson's friends said they had not heard from her since Christmas. Her husband, Dumont Shepardson, died ten years ago.

ILLINOIS SENATE PASSES BILL FOR SCHOOL SURVEY

Rep. Searle (Rep.) Claims Delay by Governor.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner's plan for a commission to survey the state's public school problems and recommend remedial legislation was approved by the house today. His position on education, however, was severely criticized.

The bill creating the commission was passed by the senate last week. The vote in the house today was 109 to 18. The measure now goes to the governor for his signature. It calls for the appointment by the governor of ten legislators and ten laymen. It carries an appropriation of $15,000.

Charges Action Is Delayed.

Representative Clinton Searle [Rep., Rock Island] recalled that a former commission some years ago had recommended legislation, but that nothing was done. He also recalled that a special session was called on school legislation more recently. That time, he said, the governor went to Arizona without having offered any program.

"And now, in the third year of his administration," Searle said, "the governor has a bill for a commission. I'm sick and tired of commissions."

"If we haven't the brains to draft legislation for the schools," remarked Representative R. J. Branson [Rep., Centralia], "we're too dumb to be members of the general assembly."

Calls It Leap in the Dark.

"It's a leap in the dark," added Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill [Rep., Downers Grove]. "It would be better if the bill fixed a definite date by which the commission should report. The report likely will come in at the end of the session, the $15,000 will have been spent, and nothing will have been accomplished for immediate relief."

Defenders of the bill included Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island] and Schaefer O'Neill [Dem. Alton]. O'Neill declared the taxpayers are paying more for education than is necessary. He said economies would result from the coming survey.

FATHER HELD TO GRAND JURY AS BABY STRANGLER

Harold William Collins, 18 years old, 9755 Schiller boulevard, Franklin Park, who admitted to the police that he strangled his 26 day old son Tuesday because the baby's crying kept him awake, was held to the grand jury for manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury.

Collins' wife, Lillian, 17 years old, who has been ill since the baby's birth, was carried to the inquest by her father, Jacob Artman of Schiller Park. She testified briefly and clung to her husband during the hearing.

Assistant Chief G. L. Cites of the Franklin Park police testified Collins told him he "did it because he couldn't sleep." Collins said he did not know he had killed the baby. Collins and his wife have been on the relief roles.

ECONOMY BILLS STRIVE TO CUT PAY OF JUDGES

Chicago Bench Hit by Five Measures.

[BY A STAF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] today added to the economy program that he has requested the 59th general assembly to consider. He introduced in the house five bills. Two of them affect the salaries of judges in Chicago and Cook county.

A 10 per cent cut is provided in the salaries of the Municipal court judges, saving to the city of Chicago, on the salaries of Chief Justice Sonsteby and his 36 associates, $37,500 annually. The forty judges of the Superior and Circuit courts would be docked $800 each to conform, Burns said, with cuts taken by downstate judges.

Would End State Fair.

The largest saving, $250,000, would be accomplished by abolishing the Illinois state fair. Other bills would abolish the office of assistant supervisors in townships, and also abolish the state racing commission. The duties of the latter would be assumed by the state director of agriculture.

The Chicago Municipal court was the object of further economies in a bill introduced by Representative Harris B. Gaines [Rep., Chicago]. That measure would divide Chicago into twelve Municipal court districts; cut the number of associate judges from 36 to 12, requiring each judge to be a resident of the district from which he was elected.

In another bill, Gaines made a provision for judicial primaries on the second Tuesday in April in years of judicial elections. Only the Municipal court judges now are nominated in primaries.

For Maternity Hospital Quiz.

Two resolutions were adopted by the house. One introduced by Representative Joseph L. Rategan [Dem., Chicago], creates a committee of three members of the house and two of the senate to investigate maternity homes and hospitals. The other by Representatives T. Downing of Macomb and Harry L. Topping of Kankakee, both Republicans, puts the house on record in favor of the immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

DRYDOCK WARD LINER AS SHE'S ABOUT TO SAIL

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Ward liner, Oriente, was abruptly ordered into drydock today a few hours before she was scheduled to sail for Havana.

She had been visited shortly before by United States steamboat inspectors, but officials of the line who could be reached denied emphatically this had anything to do with the drydocking.

The order canceling her sailing came so suddenly that passengers were notified by telegraph of the change. M. Seckendorf, general passenger trafic manager, said she would sail tomorrow and that the drydocking was "merely routine."

NAME CARPENTER AS APPRAISER OF SCHOOL RENTALS

Prepare for 10 Year Revision of Long Leases.

The board of education yesterday chose former Federal Judge George A. Carpenter as one of three appraisers who will determine the amount of rent to be paid in the years 1935-'45 by tenants occupying downtown properties owned by the board.

Two other appraisers are to be appointed, one by the United States District court and one by the Probate court of Cook county. The committee of three will report its recommendations by May 8. This system of appraisal every ten years is required under the terms of the original 99 year leases drawn by the board of education in 1885.

1925 Rates Fought in Court.

The figures arrived at by the 1925 appraisers, Benjamin F. Lindheimer, Albert Wetten and Paul Steinbrecher, which approximately doubled the rents which were paid from 1915 to 1925, have been the subject of court action. The eleven lessees affected filed a contest and the 1925 appraisal was declared invalid by the Illinois Supreme court in April, 1932. The matter was remanded to the Superior court and is still pending there.

Since 1925 the tenants have continued to pay on the basis of the 1915 valuations. Had the 1925 appraisal been upheld the board would have had an additional annual income from its properties of $263,000.

Sale of Warants Authorized.

At its meeting yesterday the school board authorized the city controler to sell $6,055,000 of 4 per cent school tax anticipation warants at par.

A resolution also was passed reducing the amount assigned in the 1935 tax levy for working cash purposes from $2,376,000 to $1,042,000. This decrease was made to comply with the terms under which the board borrowed $22,300,000 from the government to pay its overdue salaries last year.

EX-MATE OF LADY HEATH TAKES 4TH WIFE AT AGE OF 83

Rich Ironmaster Weds Woman of 36.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIR JAMES HEATH.

Sir James received most attention as a result of his marriage to Sophie Mary Elliott-Lynn—his third—which ended in a divorce at Reno in May, 1930.

Lady Mary Heath, noted as a pioneer aviatrix, was the first woman to fly alone from South Africa to London, a feat she accomplished in 1928.

Goes on Rocks in Year.

She and Sir James had been married the year before when he was 75 years old and she was not yet 30. The marriage went on the rocks in less than a year. Lady Mary went to America and about a month afterward Sir James caused to be published an announcement that he would not be responsible for his wife's debts.

Sir James fought in the courts to avoid payment of a dressmaker's bill incurred by his wife. During the course of the suit it was revealed that before their marriage Lady Mary had insisted upon a settlement giving her an annual income of about $5,000. The wedding was postponed once because the papers were not drawn up, it was stated.

Charges Penury.

In obtaining her divorce Lady Mary charged her husband was extremely penurious. She said he had told her he would deny the paternity of any child resulting from the marriage because he did not want to bear the cost of rearing a child.

During her stay in America Lady Mary was in an airplane crash near Cleveland which nearly proved fatal to her. She married George Anthony Reginald Williams, also an English aviator, at Lexington, Ky., on Nov. 12, 1931.

NAME 'BABY FACE' SUSPECT IN BANK RAID AND SLAYING

Jack Perkins, held here with his wife for removal to California where they are to be tried for harboring George [Baby Face] Nelson, has been identified as the chauffeur for the robbers who escaped with $29,000 taken in a robbery of the Merchants National bank in South Bend, Ind., last June 20. A policeman was killed in this robbery.

The identification was made by three South Bend policemen who answered a holdup alarm and arrived in time to see Policeman Howard Wagner fatally wounded and to exchange shots with the robbers who were whisked away in the car they said was driven by Perkins.

Perkins and his wife will be returned to California Sunday, and unless a request is made by the Indiana authorities that he be turned over to them for the murder prosecution, the order of Commissioner Edwin K. Walker will be carried out. Perkins is held in $50,000 bonds and his wife $15,000.

HUNT STATE TAX FOR 36 MILLIONS OF RELIEF FUNDS

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Ways and means of raising thirty six million dollars—or three million per month for Illinois' share of the relief burden for the coming year, were discussed today by Gov. Horner and the executive committees of both houses of the legislature. No commitment was made on the dozen plans submitted to the conference but two suggestions received serious attention.

The first involves passage of a bill authorizing the state to issue thirty six million dollars in bonds over a twenty year period which would be backed by excess sales tax revenue which, in the eighteen months since the tax went into effect, reached nine millions. This sum was pledged last month to meet the state's share for January, February, and March.

The second plan is predicated on increases of the sales and gasoline taxes. Under it, the former would be increased from two to three per cent and the latter from three to four cents per gallon.

Estimate Probable Returns.

It was estimated that the sales tax raise would net twenty millions and the gasoline tax increase about ten millions. Miscellaneous sources would then be depended upon to meet the additional six millions and bring the total, which would already have reached thirty millions, to the necessary thirty-six.

One matter the conference did not decide is whether the plan should be a permanent one or should merely meet the demands for the coming year.

Although only twenty seven millions would be needed until Jan. 1, Gov. Horner feels the nine millions advanced last month should be paid back to the state to meet growing demands at the welfare institutions.

The thought of the conference was that whatever is done should be enacted by March 1, for the nine million dollars diverted for relief from excess sales tax receipts early in the session will be exhausted by April 1. The state, therefore, it was agreed, should be in a position to contribute three million monthly by the end of February so that collections could be made on March business, if tax increases are resorted to.

Many Taxes Suggested.

Among the other taxes considered was one for a two per cent levy on the gross receipts of public utilities, which, it was estimated, would produce eight millions annually. A twenty per cent tax on tobacco and cigarets, might bring in as much as ten millions and a stamp tax on public documents, three and one-half millions.

Another suggestion was that a per ton mile tax be imposed on truck operators. There was also talk of a tax on professional people—physicians, lawyers, dentists, etc.—and another spoke of a four and one-half per cent tax on the gross receipts of corporations.

More meetings will be held next week in the executive mansion and if an agreement can be had, a bill incorporating the plan could be introduced the following week.

Thirty-two former employés of Woodruff & Edwards, Inc., Elgin foundry concern, who asserted they contracted pulmonary disorders while they worked at the plant, filed damage suits totaling $645,000 yesterday in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva. Attorneys Leo M. Tarpey and Drake H. Berg of Chicago filed the cases under the state occupational diseases act.

The suits set forth that the plaintifs' jobs required them to handle fine sand, silica, and other powdery material which, they alleged, they could not escape inhaling. SIR JAMES HEATH.

Sir James received most attention as a result of his marriage to Sophie Mary Elliott-Lynn—his third—which ended in a divorce at Reno in May, 1930.

Lady Mary Heath, noted as a pioneer aviatrix, was the first woman to fly alone from South Africa to London, a feat she accomplished in 1928.

Goes on Rocks in Year.

She and Sir James had been married the year before when he was 75 years old and she was not yet 30. The marriage went on the rocks in less than a year. Lady Mary went to America and about a month afterward Sir James caused to be published an announcement that he would not be responsible for his wife's debts.

Sir James fought in the courts to avoid payment of a dressmaker's bill incurred by his wife. During the course of the suit it was revealed that before their marriage Lady Mary had insisted upon a settlement giving her an annual income of about $5,000. The wedding was postponed once because the papers were not drawn up, it was stated.

Charges Penury.

In obtaining her divorce Lady Mary charged her husband was extremely penurious. She said he had told her he would deny the paternity of any child resulting from the marriage because he did not want to bear the cost of rearing a child.

During her stay in America Lady Mary was in an airplane crash near Cleveland which nearly proved fatal to her. She married George Anthony Reginald Williams, also an English aviator, at Lexington, Ky., on Nov. 12, 1931.

NAME 'BABY FACE' SUSPECT IN BANK RAID AND SLAYING

Jack Perkins, held here with his wife for removal to California where they are to be tried for harboring George [Baby Face] Nelson, has been identified as the chauffeur for the robbers who escaped with $39,000 taken in a robbery of the Merchants National bank in South Bend, Ind., last June 20. A policeman was killed in this robbery.

The identification was made by three South Bend policemen who answered a holdup alarm and arrived in time to see Policeman Howard Wagner fatally wounded and to exchange shots with the robbers who were whisked away in the car they said was driven by Perkins.

Perkins and his wife will be returned to California Sunday, and unless a request is made by the Indiana authorities that he be turned over to them for the murder prosecution, the order of Commissioner Edwin K. Walker will be carried out. Perkins is held in $50,000 bonds and his wife $15,000.

your home before he was arrested?" he asked.

"Two days before."

"Was your husband home?"

"No."

The four ladies on the jury regarded Greta solemnly.

"And when was he there before that?"

"On Saturday night. My husband was there then."

"But was Mrs. Hauptmann there?"

"No."

CAME OF MORNINGS

"Now, he was in the habit, was he not," continued Wilentz, "of dropping in at your home in the mornings for coffee?"

"O, sure," said Greta.

"He liked coffee?"

"You said it," responded Gerta, laughing.

"You also liked it?"

"Sure."

"When he called, it was around 9 a. m. and your husband would not be home?"

"No."

"How long would he stay?"

"Just about ten or fifteen minutes," said Greta.

Subsequent questioning revealed that Hauptmann's home was an hour's ride on the subway from the Henkel home, but that he made the trip a couple of times a week to get his cup of coffee.

Wilentz grew angry when he began asking the young woman about her testimony that she introduced Hauptmann to Fisch in July, 1932.

"I introduced them but they knew each other before," she declared. [This point is regarded as important by the state. For Hauptmann accounted for his stock market speculations by saying that Fisch gave him money with which to buy and sell stocks shortly after March 1, 1932.]

"Didn't you tell police that Hauptmann first met Fisch when you introduced them in your home in July, 1932?" Wilentz demanded.

"Yes, but I was so excited at the time I talked to the police," said Greta, gesturing. "I remembered later that they had met each other before."

Remembered a Month Ago.

"When did you remember it?"

"About a month ago."

"Who told you to change your story?"

"Nobody."

"You know," said Wilentz, "that it's a very important matter here as to when Fisch and Hauptmann first met?"

"Did you go shopping with him?"

"I don't remember."

"Did you meet him in the brokerage house?"

"Once, I think."

She said she had received a Christmas gift from Hauptmann, but that she understood it came from both Hauptmann and his wife.

"Now," said Wilentz suddenly, "it was because he was a very good friend of yours that you had coffee with him two or three times a week, wasn't it?"

"O, my God, no," said Greta, but there was not much emphasis to the assertion, nor did she seem hurt at the insinuation.

DR. HUDSON TAKES STAND

Dr. Hudson, a tall, heavy set man, explained the silver nitrate process of bringing out finger prints on wood. The chemical is sprayed on the surface, he said, and when it comes in contact with the tiny salt crystals left by the salt secretions from the pores of the fingers, a reaction is caused which brings out the prints when they are exposed to ultra violet rays. Sunlight also brings out the prints, he explained, although this takes several hours.

"There were probably 500 finger prints of value brought out on the ladder," he declared, "and more than 2,500 finger marks in all."

"How many were identified?" asked Defense Attorney Frederick A. Pope.

Good 6 Months to Year.

Prints may be detected on wood from six months to a year after they have been placed there, he declared, and remain as long as two and one-half years on paper.

"If, after obtaining several hundred fingerprints, none were found to be those of the defendant, what would that indicate to you?" the expert was asked.

Wilentz objected.

"Our theory is that this defendant wore gloves when handling the ladder," he declared.

The expert will be under cross-examination when court resumes tomorrow morning.

"I'm going to question him at length," declared Prosecutor Wilentz, "because he is not testifying to the facts."

Reilly repeated his assertion of yesterday that the defense will rest Friday.

The jury filed in for the afternoon session, smiling broadly. Each of the four women and eight men jurors had a huge yellow rose pinned to dress or coat lapel. The roses were mementos of a birthday celebration in honor of one of the women constables guarding the jury.

O. J. Bruckmann was recalled to the stand. He declared that Fisch had shown him a roll of bills, and handed him a $5 bill.

"I think that's immaterial," remarked the judge.

"I move to strike out the answer," said Wilentz.

"Let it be stricken out," ruled the judge.

"For the purpose of the record, let me state that by this and another witness, I could show that Fisch was practically throwing his money away," declared Reilly.

But Judge Trenchard would not permit him to question the witness longer along this line, and Reilly desisted. Wilentz did not cross-examine.

Plumber Next Witness.

A roughly dressed little man who spoke almost in a shout was the next witness. He gave his name as Gustave Miller, a plumber.

In August, 1934, he had called at the home of Max Rauch where Hauptmann lived, he testified. He was shown the broom closet, he said, where there was a leaking pipe which he mended.

This was offered by the defense in support of Hauptmann's contention that he did not discover the ransom money in the shoe box on the top shelf until water had softened the cardboard. Hauptmann testified that he accidentally knocked the box apart with a broom handle.

In his peculiar, shouting voice, Miller gave Reilly a little lesson in practical plumbing, insisting on describing in technical terms how he had mended the pipe. He went up into the attic to do so, he said.

Q.—Did you notice any board missing from the attic floor? A.—No. [The state has identified a board rail of the kidnap ladder as having come from the attic floor.]

Q.—See any boards in the cellar? A.—Yes, when I first was there in 1931.

They're Like Ladder Board.

The boards in the cellar were similar in appearance to the board produced by the state in court as part of the attic flooring, the plumber testified.

Wilentz cross examination:

Q.—What date was it? A.—Early August 1934.

Q.—It was raining? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you suggest to detectives that they search the drainpipe? A.—No.

The plumber was pugnacious.

"There's no catch in me, either," retorted Miller loudly.

After he had been excused, he remarked to reporters: "I guess I was the defense dynamite, eh?"

Main, a soft spoken native of northern New York, was the next witness. On Aug. 2 or 3, 1933, he was in New York and went to a bank to cash a draft he had. He saw Fisch there and engaged in a conversation with him, he asserted.

"About 2 or 2:30 the next morning," he testified, "I was in a restaurant and saloon. I saw Fisch drinking a bottle of beer. I saw him hand the bartender a $20 gold certificate."

"When I left, Fisch followed me out."

"Well, what did he do?" asked Reilly.

When Wilentz objected, Reilly announced:

"I want to show that Isador Fisch offered to exchange gold certificates with this man."

He was allowed to continue, within limits. The witness was not allowed to say if he had accepted Fisch's offer.

Wrong Kind of Bills.

Cross-examining, Wilentz said:

"What do you mean by a gold back bill?"

"Yellow on one side and green on the other."

Q.—Where did you cash it? A.—Near Troy, N. Y.

Q.—You're sure then that it was a yellow back? A.—Yes.

Q.—Don't you know there were no yellow back bills in the Lindbergh ransom money? A.—No, I didn't know that.

Q.—That the only thing gold about them was the gold seal? A.—I didn't know.

"Well, that doesn't look like him," Main admitted.

He was shown a $20 ransom bill.

"It wasn't like that," said Main.

ONCE FOUND INSANE

Streppone, the radio repair man, an emphatic Italian, answered Reilly's questions in a loud, high pitched voice. He identified a picture of Fisch and said that the furrier came to his shop on May 10, 1933, to have a radio repaired. He produced his records to confirm this assertion.

On May 14 Fisch came back, carrying a package, Streppone said, and left it there. The package appeared to be a shoe box, he said.

He indicated with his hands a package about 12 inches long and 5 inches high.

Wilentz asked only one question.

"You were adjudged insane at one time, were you not?" he asked.

"In 1928," said the witness defiantly.

"How many times have you been in an institution?" Wilentz then asked.

"Five times," was the answer.

"When was the last time?"

"July, 1934. But I walked in myself."

He was excused and Lieut. Sjostrom took the stand.

He said that he had been in charge of photographs of fingerprints on the kidnap ladder. Sixty-eight photographs had been taken, he testified.

"When were they taken?"

"March 21."

"Why weren't they taken before? Because your department couldn't find any prints?"

"The silver nitrate process was not known until a couple of weeks after the crime."

Virtual Cross-Examination.

Although the policeman was called as a defense witness, he underwent what amounted to a cross-examination as Defense Lawyer C. Lloyd Fisher sought to bring out the defense contention that the New Jersey police bungled the fingerprint investigation of the ladder.

"How many persons did you identify from the prints?"

"About eight."

"And never, down to the present day, have you found fingerprints of this defendant, Bruno Richard Hauptmann?"

"No."

"Is it your experience that criminals usually wear gloves in the commission of a crime?" asked Wilentz, cross-examining.

Sergt. Louis Kubler of the state police told of the visit of Dr. Hudson to the Lindbergh home and his demonstration of the silver nitrate process of bringing out finger prints on wood. Kubler had processed the ladder thereafter, he said.

25 of 125 Readable.

"About 125 finger marks were brought out," he testified. "But there were only 25 readable prints."

The silver nitrate left the ladder stained red, the policeman said, and it was washed with a bichloride of mercury solution to restore it to its original color. This washing removed all finger prints, Kubler said.

Sergt. Frank Kelly, the fingerprint man who first examined the ladder and who testified for the state, was then summoned.

Kelly testified that there was a beer stein on the window sill in the nursery beside the ransom note.

Repeatedly the attorney general objected as Fisher took the witness through an examination very similar to the cross-examination given him when he first testified weeks ago.

The judge sustained these objections but Fisher went on asking questions.

Kelly admitted that a fingerprint absorbed into wood so deeply that the wood could be sandpapered and the print could still be brought out by the silver nitrate process.

Wilentz's cross-examination was very brief.

The stein mentioned on the window sill would not interfere with any one entering or leaving the nursery, he brought out.

Fisch's Employé Testifies.

There advanced to the stand a tall, slender man with a sallow face and black eyes with circles under them. In a low, deep voice he gave his name as Oscar John Bruchmann.

He had been a driver for the Knickerbocker Pie company in 1930 when it was owned by Isador Fisch and knew Fisch, he testified. Later he became a cab driver.

"One night in May, 1933," he testified, "I was parked at 60th street and Broadway when Fisch came up to me. He says——"

"This witness will testify to the sudden affluence of Fisch and that Fisch displayed a quantity of gold backed bills," declared Reilly.

"That is typical of the manner in which information is given to the jury which is improper," Wilentz remarked angrily.

Seeks to Prove Possession.

"It's part of our proof that Fisch had the ransom money and tried to get people to pass it for him," declared Reilly.

"There hasn't been a particle of proof presented to that effect yet," retorted Wilentz. "And we've been listening to the defense for several days."

The objection to the witness relating Fisch's conversation was sustained.

Aid the Cause of Bruno Hauptmann

SUGGESTS CUBA ASK FOR WELLES AS MACHADO AID

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The newspaper Ahora tomorrow will suggest that Cuba might ask for the extradition of Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Wells for "having prepared and covered up the flight of the overthrown tyrant," former President Gerardo Machado, when Welles was ambassador here.

The paper criticizes the activities of United States Department of Justice Agents Samuel K. McKee and Ralph Brown, who brought about the arrest of Nathaniel Heller, American hotel operator here. It will say that if Heller is deported to the United States "the courts of Cuba should not only ask the immediate extradition of the Machadistas indicted for numerous crimes, but also the extradition of hotel managers and owners of houses who have given shelter or rented their properties to Machadista assassins."

Brown and McKee have been seeking the deportation of Heller to the United States on the charge that he made himself an undesirable alien in Cuba by "harboring" Alvin Karpis, United States public enemy No. 1.

PRESIDENT SAYS U. S. WINNING WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS

Finds Alcohol Sources Being Dried Up.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today expressed himself satisfied with the government's drive against the post-prohibition types of bootleggers and rum runners—vendors of illicit alcohol.

The President said domestic alcohol bootleggers have been driven to such straits that it is practically impossible for them to get alcohol except from such sources as poisonous rubbing and anti-freeze compounds. As the government is closing in on domestic violators these sources of supply are being dried up, he said.

The government is now concentrating on the alcohol runner and seeking agreements with foreign nations to halt the clearing of alcohol runners from nearby foreign ports, the President said.

The principal unplugged sources of supply were given as New Foundland, now a British crown colony, and St. Pierre, a French colony.

The President spoke warmly of the cooperation of Canada. He said for the first time in history two countries have actually established a joint border control. Now, he said, a royal Canadian mounted policeman rides in a plane with an American border patrol officer so that an offender may be arrested by one or the other, depending on which side of the border he is found.

FATHER AND 2 SONS HELD IN NEW YORK POISON ALKY DEATHS

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Salvatore Di Bendetto, 42, and his two sons, Philip, 19, and Michael, 20, were turned over to Oneida county authorities today. They are charged with first degree murder in connection with the deaths of thirty-four persons from alcohol poisoning in Utica and Gloversville. Specifically the charge is based on the death of Mrs. Eva Melott, 47, of Utica.

The accused trio were traced to an apartment in Brooklyn through cooperation between Detectives Fred C. Greco, John D. Grinde, and Joseph Caputo of the Utica police and the Brooklyn police. The trailing was done through an auto license number.

When the detectives broke into the rooms they say that they found the three men seated at a table. When the police called on them to surrender the two sons leaped through a window and landed in a snow bank two stories below. Detective Arthur Giddings of the Brooklyn police fired two shots at them. They then returned to the apartment house.

The family, the police say, were peddlers, purchasing kitchenware and domestic articles from factories and then hawking it through the towns upstate. It is said that while in Utica they decided to go into the bootlegging business. They rented a store, selling fruits and vegetables.

When the police finally traced the poison alcohol to the store the Di Bendettos had left Utica. The police say that they found a "cleaning still" for rectifying anti-freeze solutions for use as beverage alcohol.

Experts to Study Pistol of Policeman in Killing

The revolver of Policeman Joseph Luther of the Englewood station is to be turned over to ballistics experts to determine whether a stray bullet from his gun caused the death yesterday morning of Albert Stengel, 65 years old, 6343 South Peoria street, a machinist. Stengel was wounded in the back by a .38 caliber bullet last Nov. 2 as he was walking at 69th and May streets. Policeman Luther reported he had fired several shots at a man who fled when he sought to question him at 69th and Ada streets, four blocks from where Stengel was wounded. Stengel, the policeman said, was not the one upon whom he fired.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

"Jackie and I coughed our heads off," says Mrs. F. Fernandez, Providence, R. I. "Doctor said 'Pertussin.' Next day our coughs were gone!"

WHEN you catch cold, sticky mucus clogs your throat's moisture glands. That's because the healthy secretions of these glands have thickened or dried. Your throat feels raw—tickly—you cough. To relieve coughing, you must "unclog" these glands and so moisten the throat. PERTUSSIN does just that. Sticky phlegm loosens. Relief—quick. Get a bottle now.

INSISTS BRITAIN WILL NEVER SIGN SECURITY TREATY

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Great Britain will never sign any security agreement for eastern or central Europe, the Associated Press was authoritatively informed today.

Well informed source, in close contact with the British government, described the British attitude toward eastern and central European affairs as comparable to the United States' viewpoint concerning European questions.

The British government has just as strong an "isolationist" attitude toward the more distant sections of Europe as has the United States toward the entire continent, it was explained.

Simon Going To Paris.

This statement was regarded as significant in the light of the promise Great Britain made France last week that it would give it full support to the completion of the French-sponsored eastern European mutual assistance pact, the "eastern Locarno," and the central European non-interference agreement worked out at Rome by Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, and Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, is going to Paris this week end, ostensibly to address the British Chamber of Commerce there.

It was expected, however, that he would see Laval, who accompanied the French premier, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, to London last week, to discuss developments in connection with the proposals reached during the Anglo-French conversations.

Confident Germany Will Join.

The British government is confident that Germany will come into the proposed western European air alliance, intended to pledge the reich, Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium to lend each other immediate air assistance if one of the signatories attacks another from the air.

For this reason the British are confident that the question of "isolating" Germany through an air alliance for defense among western powers will never arise. Hence British official circles today discouraged reports that France and Britain would form an air alliance even if Germany stayed out.

Published reports to that effect, however, were not denied and diplomatic circles which contacted the foreign office for verbal explanation of the Anglo-French conversations insisted this was visualized, although they said the British did not want to appear to be threatening Hitler.

It was announced today that Premier Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria and his foreign minister, Egon Berger-Waldenegg, will come to London on Feb. 24 for two days after visiting Paris for a discussion of the proposed central European accord.

FINDER OF BONDS GETS HIS REWARD AND PAYS DEBTS

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Frank Greges, the ragged old sandwich man, who yesterday found a black wallet containing $45,000 bonds, and promptly returned them to the owners, Belden & Co., 1 Wall street, today became the hero of the financial district.

Not only was he pensioned off at $20 a week for the ten-week balance of the winter, plus a $75 cash award, but a banker sent him a check for $25. Howling crowds of Wall streeters cheered him on when he posed, awkwardly but willingly, and in a bit of a daze, for the sound movie men, thus capping his career with that last imprimatur of fame and adding $5 to his rapidly growing assets.

The tattered old fellow took it all with courtly grace, bowing low and tipping his hat to those who showered undreamed of wealth upon him.

When some one asked what he was going to do with all that money the old man answered:

"First I'm going to buy a pair of shoes."

"What next?" he was asked.

"Why, I'm going to pay my debts. I owe Sam Wallen $25 and I'm going to pay him off. He put me up, you know, all last winter at his rooming house in Greenwich street and it was about all I could do to get money to eat on that winter. I owe this money to Sam and I'm going to pay him off."

FAVOR MEASURE TO ELIMINATE PROFIT IN WAR

Prices to Be Pegged in Any Emergency.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A bill clothing the President with broad powers over price ranges and industry in time of war was reported out favorably today by the house military affairs committee.

Sponsored by Representative John J. McSwain [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the committee, the measure has been described by its supporters as the "take the profits out of war" bill.

If congress declared war, or an emergency due to the imminence of war, such emergency to be determined by the President, according to the provisions of the bill, the President could freeze the price structure in order to curb profiteering.

Emergency Pegs Prices.

The bill would make it unlawful for any person to buy, sell, or otherwise contract for any article or thing at a higher rate, rent, price, commission, or reward than was in effect when war or the emergency was declared.

In addition, the President would have the power to determine and publicly proclaim from time to time the material resources, industrial organizations, and public services over which government control would be deemed necessary.

The President would be authorized to license classes of public service or dealers and manufacturers in any article, and proclaim the priority in which manufacturers filled orders.

In time of war or emergency the President would be empowered to set up any agencies, boards, or commissions, or to designate persons to exercise portion of his powers when deemed necessary.

Provides Militia Draft.

An additional authorization included in the bill was that the President could draft into the service the unorganized militia between the ages of 21 and 31 years.

Violation of the law would be punished by a fine not exceeding $100,000, or imprisonment not exceeding a year, or both.

The bill was praised by Frank N. Belgrano Jr., national commander of the American Legion.

The immigration and naturalization committee of the house reported out favorably a resolution to return to the Philippine islands all unemployed Filipinos in the United States and territories.

PARAGUAY SEES BIG VICTORY TO END CHACO WAR

Believes Villa Montes Near Collapse.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A semicircle of Paraguayan soldiers tightened about Villa Montes today, and so confident was this capital that Bolivia's last major stronghold soon would fall that newspapers began talking about the end of the Chaco war.

"When Paraguay takes possession of Villa Montes and occupies integrally the entire war zone, the war will be terminated for us," El Diario said.

Should Bolivia continue fighting, the newspaper added, "we shall see ourselves obliged to invade its territory."

Covet Oil Zone.

The Paraguayan press was unanimous in describing the entire Bolivian oil zone as rightfully "part of the Paraguayan Chaco," its claims including the extensive refineries about Camiri.

El Diario said, "We will have to impose an indemnity for all damages that have been caused us" upon Bolivia, if the war continues after Paraguayan occupation of the oil zone.

A war ministry announcement that Gen. José Estigarribia's ever advancing troops had occupied Tararire, only 12 miles north of Villa Montes, served to stress the peril in which Estigarribia's "nut cracker" had placed the fort.

The northern jaw of the cracker was apparently based at Tararire after today's conquest, while the southern end reached the Pilcomayo river. The joint or hinge of the formation lay to the west, in the Agua Blanca sector 13 miles from Villa Montes, where fierce fighting was reported.

Most Bolivians Captured.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 6.—The decisive phase of the Chaco conflict is marked by some military "curiosities," which are probably unique in the history of warfare.

Paraguay today holds prisoner a greater number of Bolivian officers and men than the Bolivian commander can muster. Thus Paraguay could line up a bigger, better and more experienced Bolivian army than could Bolivia. Since there are upwards of 3,000 Bolivian officers in Paraguayan concentration camps, there can be few experienced field officers at the Bolivian front, which explains some otherwise unaccountable Bolivian defeats.

The estimated value of war material captured from Bolivia is several times greater than the entire Paraguayan expenditure on armaments since the outbreak of the war.

"SPLENDID!" Says YOUR OWN DENTIST

You can still be civilized and avoid "PINK TOOTH BRUSH"

"THE most shocking picture I ever saw," says Edna Woolman Chase, Editor of Vogue. "Any woman who behaved that badly would never receive another dinner invitation."

But there's nothing shocking about it to modern dentists.

"Splendid," would be your own dentist's verdict. "This is a true educational picture, a graphic lesson in the proper use of the teeth. If we moderns ate as vigorously, if all of us ate more rough, coarse food, dentists would hear a lot less about tender, sensitive, ailing gums."

Dental science explains that since soft, creamy foods have displaced coarse, raw foods, the gums suffer. They get sluggish and often so tender that "pink tooth brush" has become a very common warning signal.

DON'T NEGLECT "PINK TOOTH BRUSH"

"Pink tooth brush" is well known to your dentist. He knows that serious troubles, such as gingivitis, pyorrhea and Vincent's disease may follow. And he knows that massage is needed to stimulate and firm your gums.

RELATIONS IN THE FAR EAST.

Such discussion of the Pacific relations of the United States as arises from time to time in the press and at high brow conferences is doing little to inform the American public of the facts upon which a sound national policy must be based. It is shaped too much by the sentimental aspirations of doctrinaire internationalists who organize and pack conferences and by the preoccupation of newspaper writers with the striking events contributed by the masterful program of Japan. A few acute and informed writers like Nicholas Roosevelt and George Sokolsky have been trying to get the whole picture and the actual complex of interests and forces before the public, and THE TRIBUNE has labored for years on the same rather thankless task. But discussion remains superficial and directed by wishful thinking with the result that such thought as is given by the public to the subject is out of focus and conducive to unnecessary sporadic alarms and confused notions of long range policies.

As a contribution to the correction of this unfortunate condition the illuminating article of David Darrah, able TRIBUNE correspondent, dispatched from The Hague last week, is worth attention by American readers. The great empire of the Netherlands, the Dutch East Indies, although Americans know little about it and largely leave it out of their occasional thinking upon our Pacific relations, is in fact a prime factor in the complicated relations of the Far East which is no longer far. No forecast of probable events can be intelligently attempted without an understanding of its strategic and economic significance not merely to the Netherlands, for which it is a vital source of wealth, but to the British and French empires, to expanding Japan and to any large development of American interests in the Pacific which our organized sentimentalism and our popular indifference will permit us to pursue.

A glance at the map will graphically emphasize Mr. Darrah's important résumé of Netherland policy in the Far East and its important practical bearing upon the formulating of a sound policy for the United States. As Mr. Darrah demonstrates, the Malay archipelago is not only a rich prize in itself because of its natural resources, including the critical product, oil, but also it lies on the flank of any approach to Australasia and athwart any advance from the east to India and the French imperial zone in the east. Any great power strong enough to hold it can check imperial expansion south and east and, as the Netherlands are not strong enough alone, its defense enters into the policy of the British empire and to a lesser though important extent into that of France and the United States.

Mr. Darrah presents this element in the Netherlands' foreign policy and any traveler in the Dutch islands will quickly discover that friendly relations with Britain is a dominating consideration with the white inhabitants. Not so apparent, in fact not apparent at all, is friendliness toward America, and its absence is not puzzling in view of our recent policy of retreat. But while Mr. Darrah's conversations with Dutch statesmen show that we are not left out of their calculations, in the islands Dutch sentiment seems far from friendly, an inclination cultivated by the British press in the east, where the British controled news service does not miss a lynching in the south or any other event discreditable to us, but has little or no space for news that is of much greater import though conducive to a favorable opinion of American character and conditions.

However, this discrepancy would be quickly wiped out in case of serious trouble and it need not concern us in studying the situation in the Far East. What we need is to include Holland and her imperial interests and rôle in the Pacific, especially in such thought as we may be disposed to give to our relations with Japan. When we ignore this factor we cannot make a reliable estimate of Japanese policy and of its present or potential bearing upon our own peace or such enterprise in the Far East as we are disposed to protect and encourage.

If the American people are to have any effective influence upon their foreign affairs and not relinquish them to the dictation of organized minorities which represent neither their considered judgment, their natural instinct nor their substantial interests, they must learn more of the forces shaping destiny in the Pacific. This by no means implies unfriendliness to Japan. On the contrary, any friendliness which may be relied upon, because it is just to both nations, can only be founded upon an understanding and consideration by both peoples of all the factors involved in the balance of power in the Pacific.

A COSTLY IMMUNITY.

Organized labor, its objectives, policies, and methods, has been in the foreground of the national picture of late and our community has been following especially the course of two prosecutions by a courageous and public spirited state's attorney. Both prosecutions were unsuccessful so far as the verdicts are concerned, but they were educational for the citizenry and therefore well worth the official effort. Whether or not the defendants, prominent labor officials, were guilty of the offenses charged against them, the conditions shown in the evidence are notorious and constitute one of the serious problems of the community. Responsibility for persistent use of violence, sometimes to the extreme of murder, as in the so-called strike on the bus line, is difficult to fix upon individuals, but the murder of a bus line employé and a woman passenger, to say nothing of lesser injuries to others, were not mere spontaneous and unrelated acts, but planned terrorism.

For such tactics, directed both against the public and union membership, there is no excuse in a civilized country. They are not only an outrage on the public but upon the rank and file of reputable unionism which they keep in subjection. They are the support of the labor boss and racketeer who seize office and maintain themselves in power and opportunity at the expense not only of employers but of the workers they purport to represent. A career like that of Maloy, a despot maintaining his authority for years by lawless violence, would be impossible save for the immunities enjoyed by labor organizations. While the boss rules with the help of paid gunmen it is impossible for decent workers to throw him out. Correction must come from public authority.

Corrupt politics in its habitual coöperation with criminality obstructs this correction. Respectable citizenship, if it exercises its influence, can bring reform to the relief of the public and that of law abiding workers, but while organized labor insists upon immunity from the restraints imposed by law and public policy on other organizations, its defense from the grafter and the criminal boss will continue to be insufficient. All forms of business enterprise are subject to the laws. Their books may be examined by public authority. They may be sued or prosecuted. Organized labor demands and has a special immunity from these restraints, an immunity which protects the grafting boss and bully. Unionism should put itself within the confines of the law. So long as it stays out it will be at the mercy of the lawless. The official who gains and holds his place by violence and gets and spends money, including the funds paid by members without accountability, is able to do as he pleases and does. He and his administration of office, his sources of revenue and his expenditures should be supervised by public authority under law. This would break his despotism and give to union membership the control of its own affairs.

HOWDY, BRO. RICHARDS, THANKS.

Editor Richards says it is the cheese for which Green county is nationally famous and hopes it might reach the right spot. It did, and welcome to our board it was. A better piece of cheese we don't remember to have eaten, and we think highly of this article of the diet. Thanks again, Bro. Richards, and fraternal greetings to Green county and the Messenger. Favors gratefully received in the sanctum these times, and maybe some friend with a hickory cured country ham will think of us some day.

HOW MUCH AM I IN DEBT?

[Centerville (Ia.) Iowegian and Citizen.]

The President's budget message and the annual report of the secretary of the treasury both indicated that we are now in debt nationally more than 28 billion dollars and that we will be in debt by the end of the next fiscal year about 32 billions. This is a difficult sum to comprehend. Perhaps a very good way to get an idea of it is to think of the total retail business of the United States for a year. That for last year is estimated to have been approximately 30 billion dollars. Therefore, every dollar that was spent last year for goods to be consumed or used by the ultimate buyer was offset by a dollar of national debt.

In other words, the national debt in terms of each family of the United States is equal to the amount of things they bought last year. Some families may have spent $500 a year, some $5,000, some more, some less. But whatever it was that was about the part of the debt that each family will have to pay sooner or later, or keep paying the interest on it.

It is proposed to increase this debt about four billion dollars a year for the next two years at least. That is almost fifteen per cent added to the debt, or in other words, just add that to the amount spent the past year and it will represent how much more in debt you will be at the end of each of the next two years.

This, mind you, is for the national debt only. It takes no account of the state and county and city and school debts which often will foot up more than will the national.

A great many people have an abhorrence about running into debt personally, but do not think much about it when it is done collectively. They get in the habit of thinking of the government as something else than themselves. But it is not. The government is not something outside ourselves. It is a partnership in which we may be either a willing or an unwilling participant, an active or a silent partner, but none the less a partner who assumes his part of all the obligations. In that respect it is just like a partner in any business. Each partner is responsible for the obligations of the other.

When people get this conception of the operations of government and of the piling up of public debt they will feel that they are more concerned. If this discussion can only impress on the readers that they should consider their part of the national debt equal to the total amount they spent for all purposes the past year, they may become a little more concerned. This is not true exactly in every case. But it is a pretty good way to comprehend what it amounts to. So when you think of your financial standing, think first of all you owe to individuals and firms. Then think of the amount you are obligated for by your government, and then think of the additional obligation for the lesser civil divisions. And figure out how long it will take you to pay it out of your savings. Or if you do not pay it your children will. And how do you feel about passing this on to them when they had nothing to do with making the debt? Let us get in the habit of thinking of these billions as what we, the people, owe, and not as something that some organization called government, that we are detached from, owes.

RELIEF AT LAST.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE NUDISTS haven't thought of the strongest argument they've got for the existence of their cult, so I'll have to tell 'em. The bandits have a perfect passion lately for making the victims take off their pants after they've been robbed. And the victims, having been brought up in the old fashioned way and taught that one should never appear on the street without his pants on, remain back in their stores or offices and the bad bandits make a complete getaway. But suppose we were all Nudists. Then the wicked gunmen couldn't point their machine guns at us and say, "Gittout of them there pants," could they? Because we wouldn't have any on. And not being under the inhibitions of the mid-Victorian age we wouldn't hesitate to dash into the street right behind the bandits and yell until we woke a policeman up. If the bandits are going to continue to make us take off our pants I hope the Nudists get more and more members. It looks as though it was about the only way to stop the bandits.

SONNETS AGAINST TIME.

I.

News of Atlantis courts my memory—
Impersonal as light across a brook,
Perfumes the past in such democracy
As the calfskin binding of my newest book.
When earthbound summers shall depart again
Though shattered ages leave but mystery,
I'll still have Homer, Virgil, Thomas Paine,
Though Orpheus still seeks Eurydice.

If Keats no longer sounds the stricken lute
I'll still have the calm, Baconian suavity,
There still remains the Veda, Krishna's flute—
The Paradiso and eternity.
The crown of Cæsar and the sword of Saul.

II.

I sometimes think I am but half my own—
For part of me belongs to some lost world
Where often I sit perturbed, alone,
Come recollections. Banners are unfurled
Before the self subliminal, released:
In Greece again I build Athenian walls . . .
And then in Babylon I face the east
Where golden lions stand in great, long halls.

You wear embroidered robes of highest state—
Hold palace keys, armlets of jade, and there
Are always shamshoo cups when I can wait—
When I am lost and am most otherwhere.
I pass from chains in a long day, I think
To unity within a single link.

III.

Our youth stands in the dusk, that interval
It looks unmoved on that processional
Where time began. The future leads away
With only introspection for its door—
A path with no directorate; the stair
Is sold for a hall-penny at the fair.

Behind us is the day. What then shall bring Fruition through the dark and restless night?
Where is the chartreuse linnet? Who shall sing
Of mastery and brotherhood and light?
Shall still they sleep while in the dusk we wait
For coming of the Keeper of the Gate?

EVERY NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION down at Washington brings forth something which gives it its own peculiar name in history. We don't seem to have made up our minds just what to call this administration. Maybe it will be known as the "Off the record" administration. At least Franklin Delano answers freely and frankly every question asked him (well, most questions), but usually prefaces his explanations with "But this is off the record." That seems to be a grand idea. The next time the groceryman asks me if I'm going to pay last month's bill or not, I'm going to tell him "That's off the record." Something tells me I'm not going to get away with it, but at least it's worth trying.

UTAH HAS a bill before the legislature to tax all unmarried men, between the ages of twenty-one and fifty, six dollars a year. But what of it? The crackers the wives would eat in bed would cost more than six dollars. And think of what a fur coat costs! And cod liver oil for the twins. Six dollars! It's nothing!

HOW THE WORLD DO CHANGE! Not so many years ago if you were in England (or Scotland or Wales, for that matter) and felt that you must confide to an American friend that after you had seen the king you didn't think he was so awful hot, and as for the royal family it gave you a pain in the neck, you would have to be sure you and your friend were quite alone, and then you would have to whisper your remarks in the very lowest tone possible. Otherwise some righteously indignant Britisher would have rushed you down to the Thames and jolly well chucked you in. Now a Scotch M. P. gets right up in the House of Commons and calls the king a "parasite" and recommends that the whole ruling class be taken out and shot. Think of it! How dreadful! And yet the Sussex Borderers have not been called out, the Welsh Fusileers mobilized, or the channel fleet reinforced. And the British who heard their king called a parasite and the other Britishers who read about it, instead of writing to the Times about it (as the British always do when they get terribly worked up over anything), probably merely frowned and said "silly ass," meaning the Scotch M. P., of course, and not the king.

LOTS OF NEW DEALERS are being pried loose from their jobs down in Washington and given the gate. Ah, the mob is always ungrateful. First they cheer and follow madly; then they turn on their former idols and give 'em the bum's rush. So it was with Danton, with Robespierre, and in a later day with Kerensky, then Trotzky, and now our own New Dealers. It's a tough world!

BRAIN ABSCESS.

NO one will deny the importance of preserving the physical integrity of the brain. Nature has provided a thick bony covering (the skull) in order to prevent injuries to this structure. In addition the brain is incased by a tough membrane and is surrounded by a thin layer of fluid, protective in character. As a rule it takes a rather severe bump to bring about injury to the brain substance.

Infections of the brain or of its coverings are quite another matter. When bacteria gain entrance to the circulation they sometimes reach the brain. Many of them no doubt are destroyed in the blood stream, but several varieties are known to attack the brain covering, resulting in meningitis or encephalitis.

Again the brain lies in such close proximity to some of the sinuses (frontal, ethmoid, and sphenoid) that infection of these sinuses may, if severe, actually invade the brain substance. Burrowing infections of this character may cause meningitis or abscess of the brain.

From 40 to 50 per cent of brain abscesses are the result of chronic ear disease. The infection may extend to the brain along blood vessels and nerves. Anything that tends to block the outflow of pus from the middle ear may, by pressure, reflexly force infection into the brain.

It is obvious that the earlier a brain abscess is opened and drained the better will be the chance for life. If the abscess comes from pus in some other part of the body, for example, a bone infection such as osteomyelitis, it may be necessary to wait for symptoms to indicate the position of the abscess before the surgical attack can be planned. However, symptoms of pressure or pus within the brain proper following a discharging ear must be viewed as an emergency and prompt drainage of the abscess instituted.

There are a few general signs of brain abscess that are of importance. If it is necessary to wait until signs of pressure develop the abscess may become so extensive that drainage is not possible. As with any localized collection of pus the first symptoms may be chilly sensations accompanied by vomiting, rise in temperature, and headache. Although these symptoms are not diagnostic of brain abscess they must be considered in connection with the presence of pus in any other part of the body.

While an abscess is forming the patient feels generally low. The case is related of a lad who for some months had suffered with a chronic discharging ear. He came to his physician one day saying that he had been feeling out of sorts for about ten days. There was a little more discharge than usual from the ear and the patient looked sick, although there was no elevation of temperature. Because of the long standing ear discharge a diagnosis of abscess in the region of the temple was made. This area was opened, an abscess drained, and recovery followed.

As a rule the pulse rate is but little changed. Convulsions occasionally occur, particularly in children. If the abscess is slow in forming, mental changes, although slight, may be observed. Patients will forget the names of things or be unable to give the correct name to a given object. Sometimes they are sleepy and dull and lack a normal, quick response. There may also be disturbances of vision.

It must be recalled that the symptoms enumerated do not point directly to an abscess in the brain and the physician must use the greatest care and discrimination in making a diagnosis. On the other hand delay in the presence of unmistakable signs of a brain abscess will jeopardize life.

PAIN IN SIDE.

Mrs. W. H. writes: My 26 year old daughter is suffering from a pain in the right side which is very severe and comes and goes. Her appendix has been removed. Local physicians think it is stone in the kidney or ureter. A test shows blood in the urine. What is the best course to follow?

REPLY.

Unfortunately there is no way of relieving stone in the kidney, the ureter, or bladder without operation. A careful X-ray study should be made. This will show the presence of stones, if they exist. In the hands of a skilled surgeon this operation is not serious. If there is blood in the urine it is assumed that there is some irritation either in the kidney or in the bladder.

PRESSURE IN EARS.

M. A. R. writes: What causes and what will control occasional pressure in the ears?

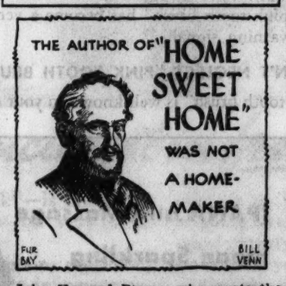
REPLY.

A stuffed, thick, dull feeling in the ears results from stoppage of the Eustachian tubes. This condition interferes with the free access of air to the middle ear, and hence pressure on both sides of the eardrum is not equal.

Blowing gently, with the nostrils and mouth closed, may relieve the condition. This should not be done if the throat is sore, or if an infection is present.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



John Howard Payne, who wrote the immortal song entitled "Home, Sweet Home," never even had a home of his own. He roamed about over the earth, a homeless and lonely man, and finally died, at the age of 31, in Tunis, Africa. The United States consul had a simple slab put on his grave, reading:

"Sure when thy gentle spirit fled
To realms beyond the azure dome,
With arms outstreched, God's angels said:
'Welcome to Heaven's Home, Sweet Home.'"

A SPORTSMAN'S RESERVE CORPS.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Your editorial "For a Sportman's Reserve Corps" merits appreciation. It has the germinal value of the ideas that led to the Plattsburg training camp, to the C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. The National Rifle association encourages civilian training in the organization of adult rifle clubs and in the formation of junior rifle clubs in the schools and the posts of the American Legion; and the National Revolver association promotes civilian pistol training. While the technique of the use of the rifle, the shotgun, and the pistol is each different, most shooters, though excelling in one, are more or less adept in all. Such training leads to what Woodrow Wilson said at the entry of the United States into the world war was the chief reliance of our country, "a citizenry trained and accustomed to arms." The heroic, single handed destruction of the machine gun nest was accomplished by Sergt. Yorke with his automatic pistol after he had discharged his rifle.

Why should not such activities be correlated as you suggest?

Inimical to such training is the current idea, spread by active but impractical theorists and grasped as popular by certain legislators, that prohibiting the possession of firearms by citizens of good character will suppress crime. Such was the notorious Alco bill, recently defeated in California, whose sponsor proclaimed that if passed it would afford an example to other states. Writing of the bill recently, Judge Fricke of the Superior court of Los Angeles pointed out that it would prevent the adequate protection of life and property and threaten the peace and safety of California, in that it was in accord with communistic activities, quoting Karl Decker's report of Oct. 16, 1934, by breaking down national and state defenses.

That anti-firearms laws have secret subversive support is not new to the military intelligence.

UKRAINIAN LIBERATION.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Feb. 3, 1935, carries an article entitled "Polish-German Alliance to Free Ukraine Is Seen," in which your Warsaw correspondent, Mr. Donald Day, reveals that the visit of Gen. Goering, premier of Prussia and reich minister of aviation, to Poland, is connected with the liberation of the Ukraine from the bolshevik yoke. Such suppositions are highly fantastic and baseless. The Ukrainians do not believe in miracles. Just imagine—Marshal Pilsudski, whose treatment of eight million Ukrainians in western Ukraine [now under Poland] is notorious—suddenly emerging as a liberator of Ukraine from the bolshevik oppression. What an irony!

There is not a single political group of Ukrainians which will support such a quixotic adventure of Hitler and Pilsudski to establish colonial possessions in Ukraine. At present Ukrainian territory is divided among four states: Russia, Poland, Rumania, and Czechoslovakia. Each country tends to suppress the manifestations of Ukrainian national spirit in her own fashion. Ukrainians regard all the oppressors alike and declare that there will never be peace in the world until Ukrainians free themselves from the yokes of their oppressors and establish a free Ukrainian republic without protection or help from Stalin, Hitler, or Pilsudski.

LONG TWILIGHT.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—In the Jan. 14, 1934, issue of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE a double page full of pictures and notes on the political activities of Senator Huey Long contained the following opening statement: "Huey Pierce [Call Me Kingfish] Long Jr., senior senator from Louisiana, whose political sun is setting in a thickening haze of public boredom and talk of action under the federal income tax law . . . "

Well, all we would have to say regarding one whose political sun was said to have been thus setting more than a year ago is that the gentleman certainly knows how to stage and prolong a really grand finale.

JOINT NAVAL MANEUVERS.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—I don't think it would be advisable for the British navy and American navy to have joint maneuvers at this time or any other because there is no love lost between them. The Americans, for instance, are much given to boasting and think they are superior to any other navy, whereas the British are not given to talking that way and consequently they do not agree on shore. I know what I am referring to, as I witnessed episodes of the kind in Scotland during the war. Again, when America wishes to remain isolated, why should she want to bluff the perfect unison? There is one thing certain, she is not fooling the little Jap, and she may need the British navy yet without bluff on her part.

REASON FOR PROBATE.

Downers Grove, Ill., Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been appointed executor in a will of the estate of my wife's mother. There are two beneficiaries, my wife and her sister, who are to share equally. There is a small piece of property with a mortgage on it, and a small amount of insurance, only enough to cover burial expenses and the small current bills outstanding. 1. Does this will have to be probated? If so, what are the necessary steps to be taken and the cost? 2. Who pays this expense? 3. Is it necessary to pay this before it is probated? E. J. M.

1. Probate proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a technically merchantable title, but if the amount is small and you may hold the property some time before selling, it may be possible to find a purchaser who would waive probate.

2. The expenses will be paid out of the assets left by the deceased.

3. It does not make sense to ask whether probate expenses must be paid before probate. Presumably you will have to pay some expenses at one time and some at another. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BALLOT PRINTING BEGINS; PUTS END TO WITHDRAWALS

Wetten and Mrs. Gray to Continue Mayor Race.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Rumors of further withdrawals of candidates for nomination for mayor, city treasurer and city clerk came to a sudden stop yesterday. The board of election commissioners sent the final proof of the main ballot for the Feb. 26 contests back to the printers during the morning and the printing started.

From that moment there was no chance for any candidate of either party for any of the three executive offices to keep his name off the ballot. It has been the practice of the board, following some court decisions, to allow withdrawals up to this point, but there is no record of a name being taken off any list after the presses start to roll.

Aldermanic Ballots Separate.

The situation with reference to aldermanic candidates is different, as the printing of the ballots for each of the 50 wards is a comparatively small "job" and orders for the presses to start on them may not be issued until next week. The executive office and the aldermanic ballots are separate.

The order to go to press put an official stop to gossip that Emil C. Wetten or Mrs. Grace Gray might clear the Republican field for Mortimer Flynn. Mr. Wetten, convalescing from influenza, visited his office for the first time in ten days and expressed enthusiasm over his prospects in the campaign, and Mrs. Gray announced that she would stay in the race in a "ladylike" manner with "no mud slinging" as a basic rule for her campaign.

Straw Polls Cheer Wetten.

"Reports have been brought to me of a large number of straw votes taken in all parts of the city," said Mr. Wetten, "and they all show me in an extremely favorable position. Why, one taken on the southwest side showed my vote greater than those of Kelly and Flynn combined."

As an offset to this expression of confidence, Flynn headquarters announced the names of four more of the regular Republican ward committeemen they say have pledged themselves to Flynn. They are Oscar De Priest [3d], Joseph A. Porcaro [28th], Eugene Nusser [34th], Frank Kalteux [38th], and James C. Moreland [41st].

Democrats Confer Quietly.

Democratic leaders who, since the return of Mayor Kelly from Florida, followed by the return of County Chairman P. A. Nash from Springfield on Tuesday, have started holding some quiet conferences, now see a close race between Flynn and Wetten, with the lead depending largely on events during the next week or ten days.

The Democratic headquarters announced a series of indorsements of the present administration. Among them were communications from the Office Employés' association, the Iron Workers' District council, the German-American Voters' league, the Greek-American Political organization, the Polish-American club, and the Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective association.

CHARGE PLOT TO KEEP UNWANTED NAMES OFF ALDERMANIC BALLOT

Charges of a conspiracy to bar all except favored candidates from places on the aldermanic ballot for the Feb. 26 election were filed with the board of election commissioners yesterday by Floyd M. Saxon, candidate from the Seventh ward, through his attorneys, George D. Kimball, George E. Q. Johnson, and Samuel J. Andalman.

Saxon says in the petition that representatives of the James W. Ryan Democratic organization in the Seventh ward are presenting forged affidavits before the election board in an effort to have Saxon's petition thrown out and his name barred from the ballot. The petition charges similar methods are being used against nearly 100 other candidates throughout the city.

Chairman Fred V. Maguire of the election board announced that the petition was taken under advisement and that the board will study it this morning. The board completed its hearings on petition objections last night and announced that the deadline on aldermanic withdrawals will be extended two days.

SEIZE SUSPECT IN AUTO THEFT AND OWNER, TOO

George M. Wyman, 33 years old, 341 North Menard avenue, is the inventor of a special automobile lock that he believed was beyond the skill of thieves.

This notion was a mistake. The lock was picked and the car stolen last night at Jackson boulevard and Cicero avenue while Wyman was in a tavern. He went to the Fillmore street station and complained loudly of the inefficiency of the police.

Then he went back to the tavern. A little later Robert F. O'Connor, 23 years old, 4903 Quincy street, was arrested in the Wyman car. Wyman was summoned from the tavern to the police station, but declined to sign a complaint against the thief. He was still talking loudly in criticism, so the police charged him with disorderly conduct and O'Connor with tampering with an automobile. They will go to the Automobile court together this morning.

HOUSE REJECTS INQUIRY ON REDS IN WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A senate proposal to launch an official search for "Red" activities and atheism in the University of Wisconsin and the state teachers colleges was voted down today by the state assembly.

The defeat of the resolution marked the first open split between the politically opposed houses of the Wisconsin legislature.

Advocates of the inquiry insisted that regardless of whether it uncovered evidence of communism, it would clear the air of rumors and charges which have surrounded some of the state's schools in recent years.

Progressives, however, contended that the investigation would be fruitless. The Socialist floor leader in the assembly, Edward Kiefer of Milwaukee, held that view.

Wants Loyalty Oath.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A bill to require students at state colleges and normal schools to take the oath of allegiance to the United States government was introduced in the legislature today by Senator Joseph D. Nunan Jr., and Assemblyman John A. Devaney, both Democrats. The proposed oath is similar to that required of public school teachers under a law enacted last year. The aim of the new bill is to bar communistic students from educational institutions supported in whole or in part by state funds.

DEWEY'S MANILA BATTLE FLAG IS GIVEN ACADEMY

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The battle flag of the cruiser Olympia, flagship of Admiral Dewey, carried in the battle of Manila, was presented today to the naval academy by E. Leroy Pelletier of Detroit.

It was accepted by Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the academy, and will be added to the collection of trophies which include Admiral Perry's flag used in the battle of Lake Erie.

The flag was kept by Quartermaster Bass, who served on the Olympia in the battle of Manila, and was given by his widow to Lieut. Frank N. Smith of the navy, who, in turn, presented it to Mr. Pelletier.

GOV. LAFFOON AWAY; KENTUCKY SESSION ON PRIMARY CALLED

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 6.—(AP)—An unexpected call for a special session of the Kentucky general assembly to enact a compulsory primary law issued today while the governor was out of the state renewed the stormy fight in the Democratic party over the primary vs. convention issue.

President Roosevelt took a hand in the matter recently. Despite his plea, the Democratic state central executive committee recently ordered a convention May 14 to nominate for governor and other state-wide offices.

Today while Gov. Ruby Laffoon was in Washington, Lieut. Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler issued the call for the special session to meet at noon Friday "for the sole purpose" of passing the primary law.

Laffoon's faction of the party defeated the efforts of Chandler and others to pass a primary law at the 1934 session.

Under Kentucky law Gov. Laffoon, as soon as he gets within the borders of the state again could revoke the call. In Washington today he said, "I don't know anything about it."

PASS UP HUEY EVEN TO TAKE PLACE OF CIRCUS

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Loud cries of "No, we don't want him" arose from legislators' desks this afternoon when Representative Owens introduced a resolution inviting Huey Long to address a joint session of the Alabama legislature on March 19 "as a substitute for a circus."

The resolution stated that a circus would be in Montgomery on March 19, but that "on account of important and pressing business before the legislature the members thereof may be deprived from attending.

"Therefore," the resolution said, "be it resolved by the house and senate that in view of the foregoing facts set out above and as a substitute for such circus that the 'Kingfish' of Louisiana, Huey P. Long, be and he is hereby invited to address a joint session of the senate and house on the above date."

PLAN STATE LAW FOR CONTROL OF ROADSIDE SIGNS

The Chicago Motor club will draft a legislature bill providing for control of commercial placards and advertising signs on private property along public highways. The present motor vehicle code prohibits billboards on the right of way but has no jurisdiction over signs abutting the right of way.

"A recent decision of the Supreme court of Massachusetts," Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the club, said yesterday, "upholds the right of the state to regulate outdoor advertising within public view.

"There is no question but what billboards that are hazardous to trafic or that detract from scenery should be prohibited. They are a parasite on the highway system. They cheapen the value of the public's investment in roads."

The Massachusetts court held that the right to own land and to use it according to the owner's conception of profit "is in the main a part of the liberty secured to the individual under the constitution, but that right is subject to legislative regulation in the public interest."

The decision held that in utilizing the highways for advertising, the companies were not exercising a "natural right" but were "seizing for private benefit an opportunity created for quite a different purpose by the expenditure of public money in the construction of public ways."

LINCOLN'S LETTERS ON ELECTION ARE WILLED TO GILLESPIE'S NIECE

Gillespie's father assisted Lincoln in his southern Illinois campaigns, and the letters pertain to election plans.

3,400 Bendix Workers Vote 7 to 1 Against Strike

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A strike of 3,400 employés of the Bendix Products corporation, comprising the South Bend plants of the Bendix Aviation corporation, was averted tonight when members of the federal labor union in the plants voted seven to one to accept a 5 per cent pay increase, effective tomorrow, and not walk out. The vote was taken today by secret ballot.

"Not fit to drink"—is the coffee expert's verdict on very stale coffee.

Stale coffee contains rancid oil. It not only loses its deliciousness. It becomes nervously irritating, makes you oversensitive and easily hurt.

Fresh coffee is entirely free from rancid oil—full-flavored and good for you. For fresh coffee, look to Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee. It never goes stale on your grocer's shelf. Chase & Sanborn rush it to him fresh from the roasting ovens with an expiration date plainly marked on every pound for you to check by.

EPISCOPAL DRIVE FOR $1,000,000 APPROVED HERE

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Plans to collect $1,000,000 during the next five years as a special centennary fund to retire funded debts on properties of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago were adopted yesterday.

The million dollar drive program was presented to the convention of that diocese during its closing session at Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park, by John V. Norcross, Highland Park, chancellor of the diocese.

Limit Drive's Scope.

The program was adopted after spirited debate which resulted in limiting the scope of the campaign to strictly diocesian indebtedness, and not individual parish debts, which are to be taken care of in separate campaigns.

Mr. Norcross said the drive would be one of the largest attempted in Chicago since the depression, adding that it "marks a new day in economic recovery and indicates the feeling that progress toward recovery has gone far enough to warant the undertaking."

Employ Eastern Firm.

The plan provides the employment of a New York firm of experts in money raising, according to Mr. Norcross.

This firm will direct the campaign which will continue from Feb. 25 to June 8.

S. R. TOUHY, KIN OF ROGERS PARK FOUNDER, DEAD

S. ROGERS TOUHY.

S. Rogers Touhy, 66 years old, grandson of the founder of Rogers Park and a real estate dealer there for the last 50 years, died early yesterday at his home, 1757 Jarvis avenue.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning in St. Jerome's church. Interment will be in All Saints' cemetery at Des Plaines.

Surviving are a brother, Joseph W., of Bravo, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Catherine C. Cullen of Rogers Park and Mrs. Archibald A. McKinley of Evanston.

Mr. Touhy was the son of Patrick L. Touhy and of Catherine C. Rogers, whose father, Philip Rogers, came to the region in 1838 from Ireland, bought the first tract of land along the lake for $1.25 an acre and founded the little colony which in 1865 was named for him.

BOYS DRAMATIZE GREAT EVENTS IN SCOUTS' HISTORY

Dramatic episodes in the 25 year history of the Boy Scouts of America were enacted last night in the city council chambers before delegates and commanders of Chicago American Legion posts by Boy Scouts and cubs from Legion sponsored troops. The program was part of scouting's silver jubilee week.

The audience joined the boys in the pledge to the flag which followed the massing of American flags and Legion post and troop colors. The Legion's Americanization project includes sponsorship of scouting.

Chicago Police post of the Legion announced yesterday an essay contest for public and parochial school pupils on "How a citizen should assist the police in maintaining law and order." Michael A. O'Connor, commander of the post, said each contestant would receive a lapel emblem and the school which submitted the most essays would get a plaque. The contest closes on Feb. 25.

COUNTY HOSPITAL IS SEEKING $139,140 BUDGET INCREASE

The finance committee of the county board was presented at its meeting yesterday with the County hospital's request for $2,932,252 for 1935. This is an increase of $139,140 over the 1934 appropriation.

Warden Michael Zimmer of the hospital explained that the rising costs of fuel, food and materials were in part responsible for the higher estimate. However, he asked nine additional employés, which would raise the hospital pay roll from $869,625 to $891,252, an increase of $21,627.

Fuel costs for the present year are estimated at $150,000, as compared with $116,079 for last year, due largely to the necessity of heating the new nurses' home. Rising food prices are expected to add $2,800 to the hospital's 1934 food bill of $212,200.

Members of the finance committee estimated the county budget will be ready for public hearings by Feb. 17. There will be ten days of hearings before adoption of the budget.

ESTATE WORTH MILLION LEFT TO WILLIS' WIDOW

Paul Willis, 71 years old, 4950 Greenwood avenue, wealthy retired bridge engineer, who died Jan. 31, bequeathed his entire estate to his widow, Daisy Hubbard Willis, it was revealed yesterday when the document was filed for probate.

The will does not give the value of the estate. It was reported, however, that Mr. Willis left property worth more than $1,000,000. The will was drawn last May 31, and supersedes an older one made in July, 1933.

Mr. Willis erected steel work for the World's Fair here in 1893. He helped organize the Kenwood Bridge company here in 1890, and was its president when the co: ern was merged in 1925 with the McClintic-Marshall company. He was vice president of the latter company from 1924 until his retirement in 1931.

T. F. UNWIN, 87, DEAN OF LONDON PUBLISHERS, DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Thomas Fisher Unwin, 87, dean of London publishers and "discoverer" of many best sellers, died today in his Sussex home.

Unwin's chief discovery was Joseph Conrad, whose "Almayer's Folly" was the first of his many sea stories which Unwin published. Conrad's name meant nothing then, and the book sold poorly. A few years ago an American paid $6,000 for the manuscript of "Almayer's Folly."

Unwin was the originator of a new length novel consisting of between 20,000 and 30,000 words, three times too long for a short story and three times too short for a novel. He entered the publishing business as the age of 14 and founded his own firm in two small rooms twenty years later.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

"The show must go on!"

That's the first rule of every real trouper. A few years back Helen Hayes broke it, leaving "Coquette" stranded, to have her now famous "act of God" baby. The other day, however, she redeemed herself, relieving another actress in distress and saving a grand radio show.

Margaret Sullavan was to play the lead Sunday in the NBC Radio theater's "Peg o' My Heart." On Saturday laryngitis laid her low. She went to bed hoping she would be better Sunday. At 10:30 Sunday morning her physician informed NBC that Miss Sullavan was voiceless and could not work. The show goes on at 1:30 p. m. Helen Chandler was hastily summoned but she had a dress rehersal for her new play which opened on Broadway this week.

At 11:30 Helen Hayes was reached by phone at her Nyack, N. Y., home. "Yes, of course, she would come," Miss Hayes said. Recently she played the lead in "What Every Woman Knows" on the same radio hour. It usually takes an hour and a half to drive in from Nyack, but with Charles MacArthur, her husband, at the wheel, they were at Radio City in just about an hour. So Helen went on the air in "Peg o' My Heart" without rehersal and with only a single script reading.

MacArthur sat in the control room. When it was all over he said laconically: "Peg was Irish; Helen is Scotch. It was like rolling off a log, shooting fish in a barrel."

Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, is vacationing in New York, visiting his wife, Marion Claire, the star of "The Great Waltz," at the Center theater. Mr. Weber is also rounding up a lot of music for W-G-N's library. He is seeking among other items a certain flute concerto by Mozart which has never been heard on the air.

Mary Pickford is leaving the air, she announced, because she has contracted to deliver a 60,000 word novel within several months. . . . The verdict in the Hauptmann case will be broadcast first over ABC, with WIND and WJJD as outlets. So says ABC. Well, we shall see. . . . Ruth Etting,

Miss Vivian Della Chiesa, 4213 East Chicago, Ind., last night sang her way to a $1,300 contract on WBBM by defeating four other finalists in an audition in which 2,700 young women participated. Miss Stephanie Ziegler, 417 Barry avenue, runnerup, was also awarded a 13 week contract.

REV. YETTER DIES AT 82; FUNERAL TO BE SATURDAY

The Rev. D. M. Yetter, 82 years old, former Hutchinson, Kas., clergyman, died in the Wesley Memorial hospital yesterday after a long illness.

Born in West Branch, Ia., Mr. Yetter was graduated from Garrett Biblical institute, and was ordained in the Methodist ministry in 1895. He was for 25 years pastor of the First Methodist church of Hutchinson, and later was for several years financial secretary of the Wesley hospital there. For the last two years he had been living here with his daughter, Mrs. Edwin L. Kelley, 5644 Wayne avenue.

The Rev. Mr. Yetter is survived by his widow, the former Mary E. Mills, and by four daughters and one son. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in the North Shore Baptist church, Berwyn and Lakewood avenues. Burial will be in Memorial Park cemetery.

BRAVES MOURN; MRS. GEORGE OWL RISES IN COFFIN

MASSEY, Ont., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Mourning Indians rode in from far and near to pay their last respects to Mrs. George Owl Sr., on the reserve here, in the western portion of Sudbury district and north of Manitoulin islands.

The Indians sat cross-legged around the body, placed on its bier six hours before.

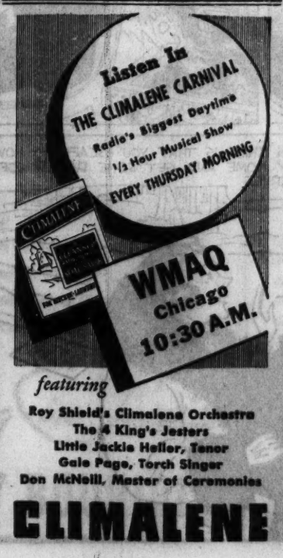
Mrs. Owl is now reported on the way to recovery.



ALBERT'S WILL STRESSES COST OF BEING KING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The high cost of being king was stressed in the will of the late Albert, king of the Belgians, which was admitted to probate today in London. Disposing of his English estate, he made special provision for his eldest son, now King Leopold, in these words:

"Since all the charges will fall on the head of the state and he has all the work and also suffers all the cares of the dynastic situation, I consider it fair to secure to my eldest son, Leopold, duke of Brabant, the benefit of one-quarter in full ownership by way of addition to the legal portion."

Under Belgian law a widow and her children are entitled to equal portions of an estate, but King Albert thought this provision should not apply to royalty because of the king's extraordinary expenses. Albert left a $54,000 personal estate in England, on which $2,700 was paid in death duties.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

How about a melodrama for your movie menu today? I know one that'll get you all steamed up! "Bordertown" is its name.

It is swift, keen, bitter, exciting. The story of surly Johnny Ramirez, from the Mexican quarter of Los Angeles.

Johnny wins a law diploma at night school, but so conducts himself during the hearing of his first case of any importance that he is disbarred. He refuses to face the facts, which are that lack of preparation for his case and his own reprehensible behavior, are responsible for what happens. The hand of the world is against him, he believes, for the sole reason that he's poor.

SO—Johnny Ramirez shakes off the dust of the home town. He crosses the border into Mexico. He gets a job as bouncer in a café; proves so valuable to the owner, Charlie Roark, that, at last, he's made a partner. And—all—this—time—Roark's emotionally unstable blonde wife looks at him with the hot eyes of desire. Her determination to get him for her own at any cost results in a murder and an aftermath of dire consequences.

Paul Muni, by the means of sideburns, a subtle touch to his mouth and a dark makeup, becomes a realistic Mexican. He has the oddest eyes—like a cat's. His portrayal of Ramirez is distinguished by the force and insight that make all of his work outstanding.

Bette Davis scores brilliantly. I thought her Mrs. Roark quite as convincing as was her playing in "Of Human Bondage." She has a flair for the depiction of the woman with the unhealthy mind. You can fairly SEE Marie Roark's brain crumbling under Bette's sure presentation.

Margaret Lindsay is splendid as a thrill hunting society girl. Eugene Pallette plays fat, fated Charlie Roark with just the elephantine shrewdness and good nature that was needed. "Bit" players throughout give effective performances.

Direction? The best!

So—"Bordertown" for you?

I understand that the novel "Night Life of the Gods," by the late Thorne Smith, was screwy and funny.

The picture is screwy without being funny.

"BABBITT."

Directed by William Keighley.
Story by Sinclair Lewis.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

Myra Babbitt.....Aline MacMahon
George F. Babbitt.....Guy Kibbee

Sinclair Lewis' novel comes to the screen with its fangs of satire drawn.

The screen story is merely an entertaining little domestic comedy drama concerned with the life story of a big frog in a small puddle who falls into the hands of a lady blackmailer and a bunch of real estate buzzards and is snatched from their viperish bosoms by his understanding wife and loyal son.

The producers have gently refrained from ridiculing in any way the smug and successful hero of Mr. Lewis' novel and the screen Babbitt emerges as just a kindly, likable real estator and lodge joiner, who, as portrayed by Guy Kibbee, is a heap funnier than was Mr. Lewis' Babbitt.

Mr. Kibbee does a neat job in the title rôle and was lucky in drawing Aline MacMahon as running mate. Remember how excellent they were together in "Big-Hearted Herbert"? Well, they team just as well here.

Sinclair Lewis devotees will probably cry "Sacrilege!", but, if such HADN'T been committed, what a fierce time the producers would have had selling "Babbitt" in Podunk!

See you soon!

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Beauty news worthy of headlines: A new cream effectively conceals all skin blemishes, from birthmarks to black eyes!

Here's something sensational—a new cream that will absolutely conceal everything in the way of skin blemishes—birthmarks, freckles, scars, discoloration under the eyes and even what is known in Moon Mullin's circle as a shiner! It's simply miraculous.

It comes in three shades and in texture is much like a grease paint. A certain deftness, which is easily acquired with practice, is necessary in applying it, but the time and the skill are not wasted; when you've completed the job and donned your makeup your face will look the way you'll always want it to look.

This cream isn't confined necessarily to the use of those who have bothersome blemishes; any one can use it as a foundation. Makeup sticks like glue.

But it's where such things as birthmarks are concerned that its miraculous attributes come in. The operation begins with cleansing cream and then a tonic. Then, with the best possible light beating down on the face, a small amount of the concealing cream is rubbed into the skin of the face and the neck with a circular motion. When the first coat is on the birthmarked area comes in for more—in repeated small doses until the outline of the mark is very faint. Then the warpaint and you've no longer a birthmark.

If the blemish is around the eye the technique of applying the cream calls for patience and some skill but results are simply astounding. A great part of the trick seems to lie in not using too much.

And you needn't be afraid that the cream will come off. The maker tells us that only two things will remove any part of it—butter and the cream you put in your coffee. When your face is made up with this you'd best sip gingerly and refuse the corn on the cob! But you can patch the makeup easily—another strong point in this cream's favor.

THE children's playground at Walton place and the drive, which has been flooded for skating during the cold weather, is closed on Sundays, but on a recent icy Sunday the activities of a little boy who had entered the playground anyhow created amused interest. He was a little fellow, probably 5 or 6 years old, and he had with him a sled, also a half of a bed sheet. Holding the sheet, one edge pressed close to his body, the other at arm's length, he made a sail of it. Thus carried by the wind, he enjoyed an hour or so of solitary iceboating. Sometimes he stood up on his sled, and sometimes he sat down. Once in a while he got stuck for a minute or two, but for the most part he glided briskly across the ice. After awhile he got tired and went home.

LAST Saturday morning, in the vicinity of Logan Square, the shrill wail of a siren announced the approach of a funeral, writes Harry O. Hearn. "Trafic came to a halt as the procession came into view. The herse was preceded by a shining limousine, in which several portly men, heads tilted back, were drinking from a bottle. Possibly it was a libation to the departed. O, well, it wasn't their funeral."

A TEACHER in the Goodrich grammar school forwards the theme written by a pupil. The subject was "An Accident That Taught Me a Lesson," and it is not offered humorously.

After I got by the cound were the hats were. Den I stole a hat. After that I went outside an a man stop me. He say what have you got there. I say I had a pair of shoes. And a pair of stoing. A FRIEND brings to attention the fact that we forgot to print his favorite holiday time story. It concerned the bachelor whose ménage is kept clean by a woman who comes in by the day. He arrived home the day after Christmas, early in the evening, to find his apartment in some disarray. It was clean enough, but all his Christmas liquor had been opened, and empty bottles were standing about. On the table he found a note from the scrub lady.

"Went home at 3 o'clock," read the note.

Perfect Waistline Grows to 30 Inches at Corset Exhibit

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The waistline of a "perfect 36" has increased from 13 to 30 inches in the last sixty years, it became known today as corset manufacturers displayed their newest wares.

This tidbit was disclosed along with the fact that streamlining has come to corsets as well as automobiles; that "gay deceivers" will be worn, and that a "flesh displacement" business will enable the wearer of a corset to sit down in it without ruining her disposition.

H. E. Bradleys Give African Dinner Tonight

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. HENRY R. LUCE of New York, the former Lila Hotz of Chicago, gives such unusual and interesting parties herself that she is one of New York's best known young hostesses, but none she ever has given or attended was more different, we'll wager, than the one that is being given for her tonight.

The Herbert E. Bradleys are giving the party, which is to be an African one, with decorations, food and entertainment all similar to those the Bradleys would provide for an honored guest if they were on a safari in Africa.

Ever since they furnished one large room in their residence on Hyde Park boulevard with trophies brought home from their several expeditions to Africa the Bradleys occasionally have entertained their friends in this out of the ordinary way, but they haven't had such a party for some time, so the two dozen guests they have invited are looking forward to tonight's with much pleasure.

The trophy room in the Bradley apartment is a perfect setting for a jungle dinner, for its furniture is made of woods found only in African jungles and the floor is covered with leopard and lion skins. And all around are various other reminders of the exciting trips the Bradleys have made, such as elephant tusks, water buffalo hides, tiger heads, zebra skins, antelope horns, witch charms, and native jewelry.

"Company" Menus Similar to U. S.

The food at the Bradleys' jungle dinners is not as strange and exotic as one might suppose, for many of the same things which we in this country serve for "company." are obtainable in Africa—lobsters, for instance, and French wines!

This winter the Bradleys were so busy with debutante festivities that they had no time for entertaining their own friends in African fashion, for their only child, Alice, was a bud of the season just past. She is a bride, too, for on Dec. 29, just eight days after her debut at a tea at the Casino, she and William Davey eloped.

Young Mr. Davey, the son of Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., and his bride are living in Berkeley, where, according to a recent wire, they have a house, a servant, and a car, and are attending the University of California.

Mrs. Luce is spending this week in Chicago as the guest of her mother, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell.

Harvard Polo Team to Play Army Here.

Tradition dictates that the Harvard Club of Chicago hold its annual dinner on Feb. 21. The reason, John W. Valentine, secretary, explains, is that the next day is a holiday.

More than tradition, however, will govern the business to be considered at the meeting this Feb. 21 at the Palmer house, for plans for the first benefit the club has sponsored in at least a quarter of a century are to be discussed. To raise money for its scholarship fund the club is bringing the Harvard polo team from Cambridge on March 2 to play a selected Army team in the 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park.

That it will be a good game is promised by the fact that the Harvard team won the intercollegiate championship last year. The social importance of the event is assured by the personnel of Chicago's Harvard alumni, who are

Schnabel Will Give Recital Next Monday

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The coming of Artur Schnabel, the pianist, in a recital at the Auditorium next Monday night is for several reasons an important event on the musical calendar. For one thing, Mr. Schnabel ranks as the leading authority on Beethoven's music in the world today. For another, he is a pedagog of high attainments with a long list of brilliant pupils to his credit. For a third, this will be the first recital he has ever given in Chicago.

His only previous appearance here was as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the pair of concerts on Dec. 7 and 8, 1933, at which time he played the Beethoven Fourth Concerto. His Monday night recital will be sponsored by the Chicago Teachers' college and the Gateway school, affiliated with the college.

Mr. Schnabel a short time ago wrote a book which he called "Reflections on Music." It is worth owning, because, while it is almost as brief as the average magazine article, it is packed tightly with the wisdom he has acquired in his fifty years. Not a word is wasted. He presents in the most concise form the case for music as the art which is an independent phenomenon of life, distinct in kind from literature, sculpture, or painting. It is published by Simon and Schuster.

For himself, Schnabel says that of all music, he prefers that of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, and Schubert. That music, he says, gives him the impression of being in the open air, of happiness. Later composers, even such brilliant geniuses as Brahms and Wagner, are less to his taste. He admires their accomplishments, but he prefers to play the others. His Monday night program will be of the sonatas of Mozart, Beethoven, and Schubert.

"Hindemith and Schoenberg are my good friends," he is quoted as saying, "but I do not play their music. Not because I do not like it—I am a composer myself, but I do not play my own compositions—but because something within me compels me to devote myself to the great composers of the past."

By no means the least interesting part of Mr. Schnabel's career is found in the names of his pupils. Among them are Vladimir Horowitz, Henri Deering, Guy Maier, Lee Pattison, Hortense Monath, and Eunice Norton.

Up to a short time ago he made his headquarters in Berlin. Political conditions, however, caused him to take up a new home on the shore of Lake Como in Italy. He describes it as being expelled into Paradise.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The new play of the week in the Abbey company's repertory, "Drama at Inish," by Lennox Robinson, is a light-bodied comedy that deals quaintly with the effect of modern trends in drama upon the population of a seashore village in Ireland. It is more artificial than the regular run of Abbey plays, more of a journeyman job at plot making for comic purposes than a carefully studied picture of the national character.

A bit of shop-talk, I would call it; a frolic prepared for the relaxation of the players themselves after a season of artistic labor in the cause of the Celtic Renaissance. It is dramatic criticism in dialog, ridiculing highbrow theatricals. It falls below the level of Robinson's other work for the Abbey, but provides a neat bill of casual amusement, to be staged now and then as a "breather" for the hard working group.

To the seaside resort community of Inish, at the start of its season, comes a touring troupe of devotees to Ibsen, Strindberg, Tolstoy, Chekhov, and the other European gloom makers, bringing the usual message of intellectual uplight and spiritual depression. It all bears a close resemblance to certain phases of Chicago's theatrical history fifteen and twenty years ago.

Inish takes to the drama ardently, and strange things begin to happen. The skies become overcast with rain clouds; Aunt Lizzie discovers that she has a broken heart; the young man of the story tries to kill himself because of a disappointment in love; villagers take to jumping off the pier, beating their wives, burning their shops, and buying rat poison. This line of thought is carried through a series of farcical events, but at the end the drama is chased out of Inish, a circus is imported, and the sun shines once more.

To F. J. McCormick and May Craig fall the rich rôles of the touring intellectuals, acted with adroit touches of light burlesque. The Inishers are played ably by the other well-known artists of the Abbey; Miss Crowe's Aunt Lizzie is notable among the ripe character studies. Barry Fitzgerald enters in the last act, shorn of eccentricity and representing a newspaper reporter with fidelity to the type.

There is talk that the company's engagement at the Harris will be extended for a fourth week [Feb. 18-23]. Cornelia Otis Skinner's Chicago booking, to start Feb. 18, has been changed from the Harris to the Selwyn in order to make room for the Irish players if they decide to stay.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather, Paul Darensky. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin, the widow of an executed engineer. Though English, her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. Though he has fallen in love with her he refrains from letting her know. They are pursued by Petroff and Irina, a beautiful communist, who wanted Stephen herself. Stephen secures a horse and sledge, in which he and Elizabeth travel toward the Polish border. Though they are both disguised, the suspicion of a schoolmaster in a village where they stop is aroused because of a police broadcast he has heard. They make a hurried getaway and reach the old Darensky house, from which a secret underground passage leads across the Polish border, half a mile away. They find part of the passage blocked by fallen earth, which they clear away. One entrance to the passage is behind a portrait of Stephen's mother, where Stephen finds hidden jewels which belonged to her. Elizabeth waits in the passage while Stephen searches in the house for a ring which he dropped. He is surprised by Glinka, the schoolmaster, and a group of Red Guards. They have brought Irina with them to identify Stephen.

INSTALMENT XLVI.

THE DOOR TO FREEDOM.

"Who is he?" said Irina in an odd shrinking voice. She had seen broad shoulders and a black cropped head. Stefan's hair was red. Yet something pulled at her heart.

The sergeant said with a good deal of impatience:

"Comrade Glinka says he's this Nikolai that we're hunting, but he says he's only Nikolai's younger brother, Mikhail."

He swung the lantern down from the mantelpiece and held it so that the light fell full on Stephen. "Here—stand up, my man, and let her have a look at you! If he's Red Stefan, you've only to say the word. If he isn't Red Stefan, I don't care a damn who he is, and I don't suppose you do either."

Stephen stood up when he was bidden.

There was a pause. For two women it seemed as if everything in the world had stopped. Elizabeth could see Stephen's face, but not Irina's. She saw him smile with his eyes. She waited for the word that would be his death warant.

Irina looked into Stephen's eyes. They smiled. It was whilst they smiled that for her the world stood still. It was that it might never go on again, for then she would have no choice to make. . . . If she said that she did not know him, he would go away and she would never see him again. If she said he was Red Stefan, he was as good as dead. She pictured him gone away. She pictured him dead. A man who went away could come back again. The dead never came back.

"Well?" said the sergeant.

"Where is the woman?" said Irina quickly.

She had not said that he was Red Stefan. She had not said that he was not Red Stefan. If he was alone, perhaps she would let him go. But not with Elizabeth Radin. It would be easier to see him dead than to let him go to Elizabeth.

"He says the wolves got her," said the sergeant.

"My poor brother Nikolai and the woman—the wolves got them both," said Stephen in a mournful voice.

Glinka came pushing in, beside himself with impatience.

"But you haven't said who he is! You ask where's the woman, but you don't tell us about the man."

"Now, now, schoolmaster," said the sergeant, "this is my job, not yours." He turned to Irina. "It's my job, and he's no call to take the words out of my mouth. But we all want to know, do you recognize this man, or don't you? There, you've got it in a nutshell—is he Red Stefan, or isn't he?"

"Well, here's your answer!" Her voice rang in the empty room. "Red Stefan? No one but a fool would ever have thought he was Red Stefan!" She flung round on Glinka, who recoiled in physical fear. "Only a fool would have thought it! And only a double fool would have dragged me here whilst the real man got away!" she stamped her foot with violence and repeated. "Fool!"

The sergeant looked relieved. Glinka was getting it, not he. When she had stormed herself out she would go back to the village, and they could get on with this treasure business. He supposed they would have to let the schoolmaster come in on it, if only to stop his mouth. When Irina drew an angry sobbing breath, he said briskly:

"Then you don't know him, comrade?"

"I never saw him before in my life!" she said.

This suited the sergeant's book well enough. If the man wasn't Red Stefan, there was an end of it—so much the better for him, and so much the better for every one else. Irina had had her say, he and the men had done their duty, and Glinka was a meddlesome busybody. And that was the one thing he had felt sure about all along. Let the man stick to teaching his village brats and be damned to him. He squared his shoulders and addressed Irina.

"All right, comrade, that settles it—you don't identify him. Very well, then, we needn't keep you. You'll be more comfortable in the village." He lifted his voice and hailed the nervous peasant by the door. "Hi, you there! Get a move on! The comrade has finished her business here, and you'd best be getting along whilst the daylight lasts."

Irina turned an angry stare upon him.

"And you stay here?"

"We stay here."

"Then I stay, too." She sank down on the edge of the bench and called to the peasant. "You heard what the sergeant said? Hurry along, or the wolves will get you. We're staying here."

There was a silence of dismay. The peasant looked from one to another and then slipped away, glad enough of the excuse.

Stephen laughed a little.

"And what about me?" he said.

The sergeant made the best of a bad job. He knew an obstinate woman when he saw one. Since Irina meant to stay, she must either be squared or hoodwinked. It could be done.

"Aren't you going to let me go?" said Stephen.

He got the sergeant's most martial frown.

"None of your lip, my lad! You haven't told us how you came by that ring yet—not to my satisfaction, anyhow. Unlawful possession of a gold ring, and making up a silly lie to account for it—that's what I'm charging you with. Now you listen to me—and Comrade Irina will bear me out, and so will the schoolmaster—treasure belongs to the state."

"Treasure!" said Irina contemptuously.

Glinka's eyes sparkled.

"Treasure. I say this man's found treasure that belongs to the state, and that being so, we've got our duty—we've got to make him say what he's found and where he found it. Now you, Mikhail, or whatever your name is, own up! You've found a treasure."

"You're joking, sergeant."

"It'll be no joke for you," said the sergeant grimly. "What did you find, and where did you find it? Come—find your tongue, or we'll see what a touch of fire will do to make you speak."

Behind the panel Elizabeth straightened herself. The hand on which she had been leaning was numb, but her mind was suddenly quick and clear. She knew exactly what she must do, and she knew without a shadow of doubt that she would be able to do it. First three silent steps to the left and her hand feeling for and finding the knob which opened the panel. She had to set the door ajar, and she had to do it very steadily in case any one in the room beyond should see—any one except Stephen.

Her right hand was too numb. She couldn't depend on it. She put her left hand on the knob and turned it a fraction of an inch at a time until she could feel that the catch was free. Then she pushed the panel outward for about a quarter of an inch and released the latch again. It caught on the wood instead of sliding into its groove. At a touch the door would open.

Stephen saw the panel move, and had a sickening throb of fear. What was Elizabeth doing? The movement was so slight that even his sharp eyes could not have sworn to it if he had not been looking that way—measuring the distance—whilst the sergeant expatiated upon the most effective methods of making refractory prisoners find their tongues.

The movement ceased, but he thought that the panel was ajar.

Ajar. What did that mean? Had it been done to attract his attention? Had it—

GASOLINE ALLEY—ANYWAY, IT'S A GOOD ALIBI

YOU'RE SURE YOU DON'T WANT ONE OF THE BOYS TO WALK ALONG WITH YOU MR. WALLET?
NO THANKS, SERGEANT
BY GOLLY, I AM BEING FOLLOWED AT THAT!
IF IT'S THAT WOMAN I'LL GRAB HER AND CALL THE POLICE!
GONE! MAYBE IT'S JUST AS WELL. IT WOULDN'T BE SO EASY TO EXPLAIN HOLDING A SCREAMING WOMAN IN A DARK STREET THIS TIME OF NIGHT!

Capitalizing on Assets Is Key to Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Beauty today isn't nearly so much what you have as what you do with what you have.

I see this illustrated constantly in my observance of women who are smart and women who are dowdy, women who are well groomed and women who are not. It was concretely illustrated by a certain woman whose hair is not beautiful hair at all. It's at that stage of transition from brown to gray that is a disheartening period for most women. But this one earns lavish compliments on hers, because it is a beautifully dressed head of hair. It's never in apparent need of a hurried run to the hairdresser. It's beautifully cared for hair.

There's a famous personage whose hands are anything but beautiful hands except for the exquisitely lovely gestures into which she has trained them. People rave about her lovely hands rather than other real beauty qualities which she does possess.

There's one who has lowered her former high pitched, squeaky voice until now it earns fulsome tribute.

There's one whose skin, in the last two years, has undergone such a transition, just through care and the ambition to have a lovelier skin, that she's made it a great asset.

I could go on enumerating instances of the sort. The woman, for instance, who has learned to move with grace and ease and poise. The one who has succeeded in changing a rather dour expression into a pleasing one. And so forth and so on. But you have seen such transitions yourself. You know people who impress with this and that asset which wasn't always what it is today.

I've just seen a throat, for instance, that a year or so back was carrying all those terrifying "ad" ageing signs. Today, it is no more like what it was a year ago than wrinkled parchment is like smooth linen paper.

List Nominees for Awards of Film Academy

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Science, which annually chooses the motion picture and acting achievement by an actor and actress rated as most outstanding has announced the list of nominations for its much courted awards. The selections from which a single award winner in each classification will eventually be named, are:

Actress—Claudette Colbert, in "It Happened One Night"; Norma Shearer, in "Barretts of Wimpole Street"; Grace Moore, in "One Night of Love."

Actor—Clark Gable, "It Happened One Night"; Frank Morgan, "Affairs of Cellini"; Bill Powell, "Thin Man."

Directors—Frank Capra, "It Happened One Night"; Victor Schertzinger, "One Night of Love"; W. S. Van Dyke, "Thin Man."

A surprise to acting ranks was the academy's failure to nominate Bette Davis for her work in "Of Human Bondage."

H. E. Bradleys Give African Dinner Tonight

some of the city's leaders in the professions, finance, and industry. Harlow Higinbotham has been made a committee of one to tend to the polo game arrangements. Some of those who already have subscribed for boxes include Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Hammond, and Gen. and Mrs. Roy D. Keehn.

G. Cook Kimball, the club president, will preside at the annual dinner and present as speakers will be Prof. Harry E. Clifford, dean of the school of electrical engineering, and Jerome Greene, also from Cambridge, who is working on the plans for Harvard's tricentennial to be celebrated in 1936. The committee in charge of the dinner is composed of Alex E. Kirk, Leonard Larrabee, and Carl Ingram.

Williams President Will Speak Sunday.

Speaking of collegiate activities, the Fletcher M. Durbins will have a distinguished guest over the week-end, Dr. Tyler Dennett, president of Williams college. Dr. Dennett, who is arriving in the middle west Saturday for a strenuous round of speeches here and to receive an honorary degree from Beloit college on Monday, will be given a banquet by the Chicago Williams club Saturday night at the Blackstone hotel.

According to a custom begun last year the wives of the alumni members will be invited to the dinner as well as the families of undergraduates and families of young men who may attend Williams. John W. Cameron and Robert M. Hoffman Jr. are in charge of the dinner, and so far they are expecting about 150 guests, among them Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., the Durbins, the James B. Forgans, the Stuart Templetons, Allen Healy, William P. Sidley, and Henry Austin.

Invitations will be in the mail today for a dinner of the English Speaking union at 7:30 next Tuesday evening at the Casino. The party is being given for Sir Willmott Lewis of Washington, D. C., a correspondent for the London Times. Sir Willmott is going to speak on "International Trade in a Nationalist World."

Casino Starts Dinners Tonight.

Many members of the Casino will dine at the attractive club on East Delaware place tonight when the first Thursday night buffet supper of the winter will be given. On succeeding Thursday nights there will be some sort of entertainment provided by the clever co-chairmen of the committee in charge, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. and Miss Peggy Hambleton, but for tonight nothing has been planned for after dinner.

Little maps on the first pages of the invitations the Lake Forest Arden Shore committee issued for its benefit dinner-dance tonight make it easy to find the Villa Moderne, where the gay party will be held. It will be informal, which always pleases busy young business men who cannot catch an early train home on week days, with cocktails at 7, followed by dinner, dancing, and a floor show.

Mrs. Robert S. Hotz, who is chairman of the Lake Forest committee, is one of those who have gotten together a party to attend the affair, and Mrs. Phelps Kelley and Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, chairman of the benefit, have organized a large dutch treat party.

Among others who have made reservations are the Paul McBrides, the Lithgow Mitchells, Mr. and Mrs. Knight Cowles, the Louis Fergusons, the Edward A. Fargos, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Connors, the Alexander Revells, and Mr. and Mrs. John Evans.

Dr. and Mrs. O. E. Van Alyea will entertain at a small buffet supper Saturday night. The occasion is the dual celebration of Dr. Van Alyea's birthday and the second anniversary of his marriage to the former Elizabeth Cameron of Milwaukee.

Children Visit Thomas C. Dennehy.

Thomas C. Dennehy, who is wintering as usual in Pasadena, never has time to be lonely, for one or more members of his large and devoted family are with him most of the time. The young Tom Dennehys left Sunday for a visit of several weeks with Mr. Dennehy, and the Charles Dennehys are planning to visit him later, probably going west about the middle of March.

The former Eleanor Dennehy and her husband, Ralph Isham, are in Pasadena now and the former Mary Elizabeth Dennehy, Mrs. Hempstead Washburne, and her sister, Virginie, Mrs. Charles F. Clarke, are hoping to visit their father later in the season.

Josephine Dennehy and her husband, Prince Galitzine, are spending the winter in Tucson, so those of the family who go west make it a point to stop either going or coming for a brief visit with them. The John Dennehys are the only ones of the family who have no definite plans for going to Pasadena this winter.

WOMAN'S HOME DRESS.

Here is a house dress that should please every woman. The open V neck with its soft frilled collar gives a line that is generally becoming, and a similar frill finishes the short sleeves. The tied belt is passed through bound openings of this one piece dress, creating a length-giving panel down the front. One of the new linenlike cottons made the original dress, and the frills were of crisp white organdy.

The pattern, No. 2854, comes in sizes 37, 39, 41, 43, 45, 47, 49, and 51 inches bust measure.

Child's Health Vitally Affects His Personality

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

So you can't make out what's wrong with your boy or girl?

You've gone over things pretty thoroughly with yourself, you say? You and your husband have made what seems to you to be a normal, happy home for your son or daughter. You all love each other and the children have always been treated in a friendly and affectionate way. You've tried to think things out intelligently and feel as if you can't have gone far wrong. And yet your child isn't socially inclined, is self-conscious, seems discontented, and really worries you a great deal. What can it be? you keep asking yourself over and over again.

Have you ever thought that your child's health or appearance might have something to do with all this? A boy or girl who seems to be too fat or too thin should be taken to a good doctor for a general health examination.

The prescribing of a proper diet, a proper routine of sleep and exercise, the discovery of some easily corrected physical difficulty, or of a lack of glandular balance may result in a change not only in your child's health or looks, but in a change in his or her behavior, and personality, and attitude of mind.

SHE FEARS IT NO LONGER

Some girls never try it until their suffering makes them desperate, but there is really nothing to fear in taking Midol! It's not a narcotic; it has no ill effect; but relieves periodic pain, in a way to earn any woman's gratitude. Midol is a special medicine, for this particular purpose, and any specialist can tell you how effective, and how safe, it is.

The woman who once tries Midol is all over her fear of regular pain. These tablets either bring complete comfort, or give such decided relief that the period is no longer dreaded. Try Midol! You'll see it on the druggist's counter — or just ask for Midol. Why not get it today?

BY MARY MEADE.

Sample of a not too complicated mental process: Valentine's day—hearts—queen of hearts—and tarts of course! It must have been some hazy trend of thought like that which ran through this editor's head the other day, for she's all of a sudden discovered a hidden mania for tarts—those flaky crusty golden shells brimming with all sorts of super-delectable fillings.

If the Valentine line of reasoning appeals to you perhaps you'll want to do as we did and try some of these delightful little pastries baked in the heart shaped pans you can find in any well supplied houseware department. Or you can stick to the more staid but none the less delicious round varieties.

If you're troubled with embarrassing humps and bubbles in your pastry shells try draping the dough over the bottom side of muffin pans, prick it spitefully with a fork, and you'll find that they'll slip off in fine shape after baking.

But to get back to those fillings which intrigued us so. Here are a few of the most blissful:

APRICOT CUSTARD TARTS.

Fill baked tart shells half full of your favorite soft custard. Sprinkle this lightly with crushed almond macaroon crumbs and top with this apricot meringue:

½ cup dried apricots
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 egg whites

Soak the apricots for several hours and then cook until very soft and sieve. Stir in the sugar and lemon juice and fold the mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pile this atop the custard and chill.

PRUNE HONEY TARTS.

2 cups dried prunes
1 small lemon
1 cup water
½ cup strained honey
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon cold water
½ teaspoon salt

Cook the soaked prunes, remove the pits, and chop them coarsely with the whole lemon. Thicken the water and honey mixture with the cornstarch soaked in the cold water and when this has cooked thick add the chopped prunes and lemon. Finally add the butter and salt and pour the mixture into the waiting tart shells to chill. Top with whipped cream.

STRAWBERRY CHEESE TARTS.

1 3 ounce package of cream cheese
3 tablespoons cream
1 cup strawberry jam

Soften the cream cheese with the cream and put a layer of the mixture into each of six rather shallow baked tart shells. Top this with a generous spoonful of strawberry jam.

PECAN TARTS.

½ cup water
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ cup whole pecan meats
1 teaspoon vanilla

Prepare a sirup of the water and brown sugar and set aside to cool. Mix the flour and a dash of salt with the lightly beaten eggs and cook this mixture with the milk in a double boiler until smooth and thick. Stir into this custard half of the brown sugar sirup and the vanilla. Fill the baked tart shells with the mixture. Decorate the tops of the tartlets with the pecan meats, cover these with the rest of the sirup, and for additional richness (and calories) add a spoonful of sweetened whipped cream before serving.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

DEFENSIVE BIDDING.

I explained why I prefer a strategic double to an overcall with an aggressive type of hand with which most players would automatically overcall—as with a six-card suit headed by K Q 10 and A Q outside. Let us take a slightly less aggressive hand with which the declaration is not so necessarily confined to one suit. For instance,

Sp. x x	Di. K J x
Hts. A Q J x x	Cl. Q 9 x

The player on your right bids a spade; you double. If your partner bids a no trump, you bid two hearts; if his response is two hearts, you can still bid four hearts though, if you lacked the queen of clubs, you should bid only three and leave it to your partner, after this very urgent invitation, whether to go four or not. If he should bid diamonds, I would be inclined to pass and see what the enemy will do. If the next player bids, you can judge from your partner's action what to do. If he rebids diamonds I would next bid three hearts, showing him the nature of the double; if there is no heart fit, they may double and you can now go back to diamonds. If your partner fails to rebid but the opener does so, you can remain on the defensive; they may misplay the hand because you have told them nothing about your holdings; if there is a play on the diamond suit, they are likely to go wrong over it; you may well defeat a game contract. If, however, the bidding goes—one spade, double, pass, two diamonds, pass, pass, two spades, pass, pass: now I would defend the part score, opponents having signed off. I would bid three diamonds and if doubled I would go three hearts, which I may well make, or which may drive them to go three spades, which I may be able to set.

Another Defensive Angle.

When you double a bid in one major suit, your partner may assume that you are prepared for, and in fact desire, a lead of the other major suit, even if you do not bid it. Unless he has a good safe natural lead in his hand, and this is unlikely if they take the declaration away from you, he should lead that other major suit. Specifically if you finally double, this is a command to him to do so if he is on lead, unless you have meanwhile bid some other suit. Some time ago I held

Sp. K x x	Di. x
Hts. K Q J x x x x	Cl. Q x

and doubled an opening spade bid. The player on my left bid two no trumps which his partner took to three. I doubled. My partner held

Sp. 8 2	Di. Q 9 8 7 6
Hts. 4 2	Cl. J 9 8 2

and rightly led the four of hearts. This set the contract 900, as the declarer had to take the spade finesse at an early stage, having no other play for game; had anything but a heart been opened, we would have lost the timing of the defense and could not have stopped them from making four no trumps. Had I bid hearts they would never have bid for game in no trumps and I might have had to bid five hearts and take my punishment to avert a game in spades. Only if not vulnerable could I afford to do this; whereas I can afford to double whether vulnerable or not, as I am ready to play at two hearts doubled on my own cards alone. Again, with hands of this somewhat freakish kind, one can sometimes bid the hand a little deceptively and, appearing to be merely rescuing one's partner from his response to the double, get oneself doubled in a contract which one is able to fulfill, thanks to some fortunate distribution in the partner's weak hand, or because he holds some queen or king which is a very valuable card in eliminating expected losers or giving an end-play or gaining a trick through an injudicious lead by an opponent. When you ignore your partner's response to your double, and carry on with your own bidding, he must realize that your double was strategic and leave you alone in your handling of the subsequent bidding developments. The opponents are likely to misjudge the situation due to their strength, but your partner will subside on account of his weakness; he will know better than to interfere with you by unnecessary warnings or rescues. It then is proved that two heads are not better than one; divided authority is operating against a dictator holding supreme command of his forces. We all know with whom the strategic advantage rests under these conditions.

New Feminine Era Dawns in Paris Fashions

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A new era of femininity—fringed coiffures, merry widow hats, swishing skirts, and curved silhouettes—dawned with the 1935 style shows which were concluded today.

Dressmakers apparently were determined to bring the modern woman back to the soft graces of 1815 with dresses revealing the feminine curves, fastened with china gardenias and porcelain bows, and hats swathed in veils.

Evening gowns were wide skirted, with lace petticoats, and there were even parasols and golden egg shaped vanity cases. Day frocks generally were cut to the new slender waisted silhouette with shorter, fuller bias skirts two to four yards around at the hems. There were, however, many slim skirts with suits.

Both long and short sleeves were generally large, necklines fairly high for morning and lower for afternoon, and many black and navy dresses were shown with short jackets and white neck touches—big organdy flowers, piqué, and perforated linen collars and the like.

Belts, important this year, were in wide lether and fabric models with buckled gold cocks, plaster castles, and lether butterflies.

Long coats were designed with fitted waistlines and small collars or none. Most had big sleeves. Many colorful wool ensembles were topped with five-eighths length coats and capes combining brown with corn, chamois, yellows and beiges, red with gray, and green with brown.

The evening mode stressed two silhouettes, one with off-shoulder décolleté and extremely wide skirt, and the other with the slender fitted profile ending in short trains.

Blouse to Fit Any Suit Can Be Found Now

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Since suits are coming in strong in all colors, combines, and models, the blouse collections are also blooming full strength as proper contrasts and tops for any sort of a suit you may own or buy.

The best buys are available now, especially the striped affairs that are put together in a clever manner so that they keep you as slim as a pencil. You can get long or short sleeves, high, low, or convertible necklines.

You will find ruffled jabots that shoot right up the center of the chest and end at a high neckline with the stripes in the jabot in horizontal formation and the stripes in the blouse vertical. These striped materials are colorful and practical in silk crêpes and taffetas.

Plaid and checked taffetas in clear color contrasts, such as black and white, blue and white, brown, red and white, come in good sized checks and plaid patterns providing the ideal color contrast for all dark suits. Big perky fringed end bows almost cover the chest when tied. Others have high turn-over collars with a small tailored bow.

White blouses in dull silk crêpes and pale pink and soft dusty blue blouses are cut with the same smart simplicity and are good tops for the suits you are wearing now under your winter coats.

Some effective yellow and pale numbers are also new, and these last mentioned blouses come in short lengths and new tunic lengths ready for any sort of dress parade.

Crisp cotton blouses in bars, diagonals, small pin checks and very small flower prints come in all dark and pastel shades. Most of them are short of sleeve and they fit much better this season than last.

For the very tailored suits some bright designer has fashioned shirt blouses literally cut from the same severely tailored shirts your brother wears, even to the tails.

If you want to enjoy the biggest and best blouse collections, shop for your needs now. You'll find the best assortments and newest styles of the year!

Illinois Road.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Illinois Road" was first pieced in southern Illinois in 1873. Lavender, orange, and white make a most beautiful color combination, although the original model was done in blue and white. The attractiveness of an entire quilt made in this pattern may be easily imagined. It is also one of our simplest quilt patterns to piece.

With her second book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices—1 South Dearborn St., or Tribune Tower.

BYRD PARTY OFF FOR HOME AFTER YEAR AT POLE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, COASTING ALONG THE ROSS ICE BARRIER, Antarctica, Feb. 6.—[Via Mackay Radio.]—This ship, flagship of the second Byrd antarctic expedition, at 3:25 p. m. today took its departure from the Bay of Whales. At this writing we are proceeding westward along the front of the tall white cliffs of the Ross ice barrier, bound for Discovery inlet, where a brief stop will be made to collect live penguins. Dead ahead of us the barkentine Bear of Oakland, under command of Lieut. Robert A. J. English, is showing the way. We are headed back to civilization after more than a year spent here.

The last hours marking the close of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's second effort in the south polar regions were just as crowded as those that had gone before. At 6 o'clock last evening the Jacob Ruppert was obliged to withdraw from its loading berth in Eleanor Bolling bight. A series of minor ice falls from the barrier face in the narrow bight, together with the development of a crack through the area used as a dock, persuaded Commodore H. J. Gjertsen, commanding the Ruppert, that it was no longer prudent to hold a steel ship there and he gave orders to cast off.

Stores Loaded on Bear.

Capt. English then nosed the Bear into the bight and began to load the stores which the Ruppert had not had time to take aboard. Its crew, assisted by a shore party, worked at top speed all night until the Bear had a full deck load. It came alongside this ship at 8:30 a. m. to transship the cargo, and finished at 3:20 p. m. All that remained on the beach were two tractors and two snowmobiles, a few empty gasoline drums and various small odds and ends. These Admiral Byrd reluctantly decided to abandon.

"There's no use pressing our luck too far," he said. "We've got the most important stuff aboard and that's quite enough. Let's shove off."

The Bear cast off at 3:20 and in five minutes the Ruppert was under way.

Admiral Byrd complimented the officers and men of both ships and the winter party for the speed with which they executed the embarkation.

"Your spirit was splendid," he said. "I've never seen men work harder than you fellows."

Mrs. Byrd in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, wife of the antarctic exploring admiral, arrived today from Boston and will board a liner tonight for Dunedin, New Zealand, to join her husband.

"Please don't ask me to say anything," she said. "The admiral is the one who does the talking for the family."

The Blue Island police determined yesterday that a faulty connection in the gas piping in a vacant cottage at 2136 West 121st place, Blue Island, caused the explosion which earlier in the day wrecked the building and damaged the wall of an adjoining cottage, injuring Mrs. Alvina Jaros, 45 years old, a widow, who lived there alone. Damage to the buildings was estimated at $8,500.

HOMEWARD BOUND

SHEPARD'S WIFE HEAVY DRINKER, AVER WITNESSES

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The alibi of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, on trial for the murder of his second wife, that her death resulted from excessive drinking was supported today by the testimony of two defense witnesses.

The retired army surgeon, now 63, faces a penalty of death on the government's charge that he poisoned his 37 year old wife, Zenana, for love of an army stenographer, Grace Brandon, who is 35 years his junior. The defense contends Zenana was a dipsomaniac and probably committed suicide.

Cenon Manoloto, Filipino houseboy of the Shepards while they were in the Philippines and at Fort Omaha, testified that the defendant's second wife regularly drank to excess. He told of Mrs. Shepard having him "run around Omaha buying liquor for her."

"Mrs. Shepard drank two pints of whisky a day for some time," he testified.

A colored soldier, Robert G. Crawford, told of seeing Mrs. Shepard take at least one drink every day during the time he was employed in the household at Fort Riley, Kas., where the woman died five and a half years ago.

Thief Trapped by Fence Is Held to Grand Jury

NAZIS START SPY TRIAL OF POLE'S ARISTOCRAT RING

Warsaw Lawyer Arrives to Aid Cavalry Officer.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—A Polish lawyer, Dr. Slevinski, arrived in Berlin today to follow the trial of the Polish cavalry officer, Baron Yurek von Sosnowski, who is charged by the Germans with organizing a big ring of spies among Germany's aristocracy. Slevinsky was delegated by the Polish government, since, according to international custom, embassies rarely take cognizance of spy cases affecting their nationals.

The trial of Von Sosnowski, Baroness Benita von Berg, who was formerly the daughter-in-law of the late Gen. Erich von Falkenhayn of world war fame, and other women of the German aristocracy started in absolute secrecy today before the People's court, which is empowered to mete out death sentences for espionage.

Verdict Expected by March.

Most official quarters deny knowledge of the trial. One, however, said a verdict is expected by the end of the month. The beginning of the trial was revealed in connection with the departure of Slevinski from Warsaw, since, according to Warsaw diplomatic circles, he has been entrusted with the case for the last year.

The Polish cavalry officer's relatives in Warsaw hope that Slevinski has succeeded in gathering all the papers necessary to enable Von Sosnowski to obtain German permission to marry Baroness von Berg in prison, thus giving her the protection of Polish nationality.

Romance in Case.

Rumors of this romantic side of one of the most sensational espionage affairs in German annals spread in Berlin after it became known that Baroness von Berg's marriage was annulled. This was followed by reports that Von Sosnowski had asked permission to marry the baroness. The reports were confirmed by his relatives in Poland.

Josef von Berg and Richard von Falkenhayn, former husbands of the baroness, were seen entering the building of the People's court this morning, and it is surmised that they were summoned as witnesses.

A Warsaw dispatch Jan. 31 said Von Sosnowski could have left Berlin a year previously in time to avoid arrest. However, when Baroness von Berg refused to go with him he is said to have stayed chivalrously behind to shield her.

Found guilty of defrauding the gas company, Joseph Valentino, 48 years old, 2204 Campbell park, was given three months in the Bridewell and fined $250 by Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the Fillmore court yesterday. A motion for probation was set for hearing on Feb. 23.

CLEMENCY IS DENIED TO 250 CONVICTS IN JOLIET PENITENTIARY

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner today denied executive clemency to approximately 250 inmates of Illinois penal institutions. In his action, the governor followed the unanimous recommendation of the state board of pardons and paroles, which had reviewed the cases on petitions for pardons or commutations filed between July, 1933, and July, 1934.

Among the pleas denied was that of Leo V. Brothers, who was sentenced from Cook county, to serve 14 years in the Joliet penitentiary for the murder of Alfred Lingle, reporter. Brothers' petition did not specify whether he wanted a pardon or commutation, according to the governor's report.

Another, whose pleas was denied, was Angelo Petitti, who was sentenced from Cook county to serve 25 years in the Joliet penitentiary for kidnaping for ransom. Petitti was one of the men who kidnaped Billy Raneri. In all, nearly 50 Cook county murderers were denied clemency.

Clemency also was denied to Amante Rongetti, who was tried several times for murder by abortion. Rongetti is serving a sentence of 1 to 14 years for manslaughter.

'L' FEEDER BUS PLAN IS BACKED BY D. F. KELLY

Before the Illinois commerce commission yesterday, D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store and head of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Ahead committee, indorsed the Chicago Rapid Transit Lines' proposal to spend $408,000 for thirty-six new feeder buses which would operate in Kimball avenue, from Foster avenue to Logan Square, and in Foster avenue from the lake to Milwaukee avenue.

"What people want is faster service," D. F. Kelly said. "For lack of this some department stores are establishing branch stores. The surface lines are not acting adequately to improve their service."

Bernard J. Fallon, executive officer for the rapid transit company, pointed to the public's approval in a 1930 referendum of a $300,000,000 expenditure for the proposed merger of street car and elevated lines as proof of public demand for faster transit service.

HUMANE SOCIETY HANDLES 15,000 CASES IN YEAR

Annual Meeting to Take Place at 3 Today.

The Illinois Humane society during 1934 rescued forty-nine cats from roofs, window sills and sewers; 14 dogs from tree trunks, lagoons, zero weather and short chains, and 49 children from ill treatment and neglect, according to the annual report made public yesterday by George A. H. Scott, secretary. The annual meeting is to be at 3 p. m. today at 1145 South Wabash avenue.

Details of Society's Work.

The society investigated during the year 14,997 complaints. Of these, 13,491 dealt with the mistreatment or neglect of animals, and 1,506 with children. More than 3,800 children were concerned.

The animals involved ranged from domestic pets to wild animals and wild animals in captivity. Among the results reported were: Thirty-nine horses retired from work as unfit for service; 1,232 animals humanely killed; three cases of cruelty to dogs prosecuted in the courts; methods of catching escaping chickens corrected; the rule of not selling less than six Easter chicks to a customer strictly enforced; 1,602 stray dogs and 1,628 vicious dogs inspected.

Benefits Affect Thousands.

Action by the society benefited directly 3,456 children. Forty-nine were placed temporarily in homes and given protection; 2,147 persons were admonished regarding the care and treatment of children; 190 court conferences were held to adjust domestic troubles, involving the treatment of children [resulting in 132 reconciliations], and 152 cases of mistreatment, neglect and cruelty to children were prosecuted in the courts.

CANCEL TIPSY DRIVING FINE.

The $100 fine against John Johnson, 34 years old, 1145 Drummond place, imposed last Sept. 21, on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, was vacated yesterday by Judge John Gutknecht in the Trafic court. Johnson served a 10 day Bridewell sentence.

SECRET MARRIAGE IS DISCLOSED BY ANNULMENT SUIT

Mrs. Ellen N. Dougherty, 19 years old, daughter of Daniel Woodhead, executive of a Chicago railway supply company who lives in Barrington, sued in the Circuit court yesterday for annulment of her secret marriage here last Aug. 20 to Frank Irving Dougherty Jr., 26 years old, 1223 Astor street.

Dissolution of the marriage is sought on the ground that Mrs. Dougherty was distraut and under undue influence at the time. Mrs. Dougherty says she never lived with her husband, but married him merely to seal a promise that she would accept no other man's attentions while attending a girls' college in New London, Conn.

ASK CONGRESS FOR 2½ MORE MILLIONS TO FIGHT CHINCH BUGS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A congressional appropriation of $2,500,000 for control of chinch bugs in the middle west was sought today by a committee of the prairie states bloc in the house.

Congress appropriated one million dollars for this purpose last year, but house members of the states invaded by the pests contend the additional sum is needed because of expanding area of infestation caused by the drouth.

The recommendation was made by the committee on emergency legislation on pest control headed by Representative Christianson [Rep., Minn.].

WARBURTON SIGNS CONTRACT WITH BEARS

SOUTH SIDERS LAUNCH GOLDEN GLOVES MONDAY

Use Two Rings at White City.

What's On Tonight

FOLLOWING are the out of town Golden Gloves tournaments which will be held tonight:
Iowa City, Ia., Daily Iowan semi-finals.
Davenport, Ia., Times preliminaries.
Peoria Journal-Transcript preliminaries.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Now that the Golden Gloves examinations are completed attention will be focused on White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, where on Monday evening the first of the sectional trials will be held. There will be five nights of boxing at White City.

Novice class fighters in the 112, 118, 126, 135, and 147 pound divisions will report Monday night. The middleweights, light heavyweights, and heavyweights will see their first action on Tuesday. The tournament will continue on Wednesday with second round matches. Then a pause will be called until Feb. 21 and 22. Two novice boxers in each of the eight weight classes will qualify for the semi-finals of the Chicago novice tournament, which will be held Feb. 25 at the Stadium in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions.

West Side Opens Wednesday.

The west section tournament will start next Wednesday night at the Community Recreation center, 4711 Madison street. It will continue on Feb. 14 and 15 and then will be resumed on Feb. 20 and 21. The north side tournament is scheduled for Feb. 19, 20, and 21 at Loyola university gymnasium.

Instructions and tickets were mailed yesterday to the final group of boys who passed their physical examinations prior to last night. Those boys who passed the examination last night received their instructions and tickets at Trafton's gymnasium.

Nine Referees Listed.

Since the sectional tournaments overlap—on Feb. 21 all three sections will be boxing—the task of the officials is greater than ever before. One of the most important groups, if any can be more important than another, is that of referees. Nine men are listed. Eight of them have officiated before in Golden Gloves. All are licensed by the Central association of the A. A. U., under whose sanction the Golden Gloves tournaments are conducted, and by the Illinois State Athletic commission.

The list of Golden Gloves referees follows:

John Behr, George Youngz, Tommy Thomas, Dave Miller, Phil Collins, Norm McGarity, Joe McNamara, Tom Gilmore, and Jess O'Brien.

These men also will officiate during the Tournament of Champions when teams from eleven states will compete in Chicago. No higher praise has been given the referees and the corps of judges than during the 1934 Tournament of Champions when their work was so satisfactory that none of the visitors disputed their decisions.

Protect All Contestants.

Among the duties of a referee in Golden Gloves is to protect the contestants at all times. He is empowered to stop any bout in which the boys are not evenly matched.

All bouts will consist of three rounds of two minutes each. Eight ounce gloves will be used. Each boxer may bring his own second or coach with him, but a professional second employed by THE TRIBUNE will be in charge of each corner.

Two rings will be used Monday night at White City. Boxers will report between 4 and 6 p. m. for examinations and to be weighed. The first bouts will start at 7 o'clock.

RECORD AT DAVENPORT

Moline, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Boxing fans who attended THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE-Davenport Daily Times Golden Gloves tournament at the Moline fieldhouse tonight were treated to 39 bouts, the most ever held in this sectional meet. All previous records for

Prices are 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. Then, while you're ordering, better get some seats for the finals, at 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20 or $3.30. All bouts will be at the Chicago Stadium.

Then mail your check or a money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

N. Y. U. LOSES TO YALE AFTER 27 VICTORIES IN ROW

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Yale tonight broke the string of 27 straight victories of the New York university five with a 33 to 29 overtime victory in the Payne Whitney gymnasium.

Behind 17 to 11 at the intermission, the Yale players gained rapidly early in the second period. New York led 23 to 14 and then 24 to 23. Tommy Wilson's long shot brought the Elis into a 25 to 24 lead.

The Elis were thrown back by a desperate New York rally in which free throws by Capt. Sidney Gross and Ike Klein and a field goal by Bill Rubenstein yielded four points. Yale then made three successive free throws, tying the score, 27 to 27. In the overtime period, Eggie Miles of Yale shot a short basket which Gross of New York duplicated, again tying the score.

Miles scored a spectacular goal while falling and Ned Wilson pushed a short toss into the basket for the final and winning basket. Phil Klein of Yale, with 9 points, was high scorer for both teams.

Chicago Girl Shares Pinehurst Golf Title

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, Chicago, and Miss Carol Hotchkiss, New Haven, Conn., won the St. Valentine's best ball golf championship here today, defeating Miss Helen Waring, Pinehurst, and Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, Pittsburgh, 2 up.

CARDINAL BOSSES LEAVE WITHOUT DEAN CONTRACT

Dizzy Fears They May Trick Paul.

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The National league was either smugly satisfied with the condition of the convalescent Boston club today or giving a very good imitation of contentment. Baseball men who certainly ought to know hinted that Babe Ruth's only difficulty will be in deciding which job to accept and Bill Terry continued to woo hesitant Giant holdouts into signing their contracts.

Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey, Dizzy's bosses, were on their way back to St. Louis after several unsuccessful attempts to silence his stirring squawk for $25,000 or a new uniform and to lure him aboard the same westward bound train. And Dizzy himself was busily preparing his defenses.

Fears Paul May Weaken.

Disturbed by a report from Hot Springs, Ark., that declared Paul hadn't joined him in the holdout ranks and had come to terms with the Cardinal management, brother Dizzy said something about trickery and made for the telegraph desk.

There he dispatched the following wire to brother Paul:

"Don't sign until you see me. Stop. We Deans have to stick together. Stop. Will arrive Sunday. Signed—Dizzy."

As he packed his bags in the Royal suite of the Governor Clinton, preparatory to catching an afternoon train for Hot Springs, where he and Paul are on the faculty of a baseball school, Brother Dizzy said that some one in the Cardinals' home office must have put those words into Brother Paul's mouth.

He Hasn't Signed.

"He's only a kid," declared Dizzy, "and they can almost talk him into anything when I'm not around, but I know he hasn't signed and won't until we both get what we want. They haven't offered him close to $10,000 and they keep telling everybody that he was offered $12,000."

"FINAL," SAYS BREADON

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Sam Breadon said on his return from New York today he would not change the terms in the St. Louis Cardinal contract, offering Pitcher Dizzy Dean $17,500 for 1935.

"I wrote out the salary figure myself when I was in Bradenton, Fla., early last December," Breadon said. "Dizzy told me it was satisfactory to him.

"Since Dizzy agreed to sign for that amount, $17,500, I consider the matter closed. Of course, I will be glad to talk with him, but the salary will not be changed."

ROWE DISSATISFIED

El Dorado, Ark., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Schoolboy Rowe today was reported still dissatisfied with the contract offered him by the Detroit Tigers, although it was said his opinion would be reserved until he reports for spring training on March 1.

Rowe was understood to have received his first offer some two months ago and returned it promptly without revealing the terms. He was said to have been offered $8,500 and to be asking $12,500.

Added to Rowe's worries today was the theft of his sedan given him by a Detroit manufacturer and Tiger fans after the El Dorado six footer almost broke the pitching record with sixteen straight victories last year.

MALONE A HOLDOUT

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Big Pat Malone, fast ball pitcher traded to the St. Louis Cardinals last fall by Chicago, lined up alongside Dizzy Dean as a holdout today with announcement that he had returned his contract unsigned to the Cardinal management.

"If Branch Rickey thinks I will play ball for the figure he offered me, he's crazy," said the National league strikeout king of 1929, who is here with his wife.

"I am financially fixed to where I can rest this year if necessary. I want to play ball this year, but not under Rickey's present terms."

CHICAGO IS COTTON'S TOWN NOW

Cotton Warburton, former star quarter back of the University of Southern California eleven, who has signed with the Chicago Bears. Although he weighs only 145 pounds, Warburton made a name for himself as one of the greatest offensive backs in college football.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 6. — Dear Harvey: Please give us more movie stuff while you are out in Hollywood where Friend Arch is keeping you working so hard in the warm weather while we are slipping on icy pavements. I think impressions of an outsider like yourself—pardon me, I forgot you are an actor, too—carry more to casual screen goers than the words of those accustomed to studios. I attend the movies perhaps once a month, but I can hardly wait to see that "left ear and gray fedora" in which you have said you appear in "Dante's Inferno."

Incidentally, for your own financial emolument, don't forget there's a nag named Ted Clark in that Santa Anita $100,000 handicap with only 100 pounds to Cavalcade's 129. That's a lot of weight for a good horse to give a pretty fair horse. He'll pay plenty if he outfoots "Cavvy," as you call him in your interviews.

Highland Park Waker.

A little more concerning Campion High of Prairie du Chien, Wis. In 1933-'34 it lost one out of 10 football games, won 20 of 23 basketball contests, took fourth place in national Catholic tourney, plus trophy for best coached team, and won all its track meets. William S. Hoffman is coach of all major sports.

Willy from the Wilderness.

While we younger players never have had the opportunity to see many oldtime athletes in action, they must have been good to be remembered so vividly. However, I would like to submit my picks for the All-Time All-Star sports team:

Pro football—Jack Manders.
Baseball—Dizzy Dean.
Jocky—Earl Sande.
Tennis—Ellsworth Vines.
Golf—Francis Ouimet.
Boxing—John L. Sullivan.

Stanford '29.

Might It Be You?

The ease in my heart
Is each single hour
I've spent with you.
These I hold
From everything apart;
Perhaps if I'm tired or weary
I start to gather
Our hours of moments from years,
And drift through a happiness
Too perfect to express,
Spun 'round a sphere of thoughts
So strong that your voice comes clear,
Then, without looking up,
I feel you are here—
Unafraid, today I continue my way,
Never wondering why,
For you live within me
From the breath of a love that never dies.

Eve Jurgens.

Likes Sox Prospects.

Harry Grabiner, vice president of the Chicago White Sox, acquiring a sun tan at Palm Springs, on the edge of the desert, finds time to drive up frequently to Santa Anita for a whack at the gee gees. Acquisition of Luke Sewell, he maintains, will mean much to the team which arrives in Los Angeles the last of the month for spring training.

Concerning Zeke Bonura, Grabiner says: "Bonura's contract called for a raise of nearly 100 per cent over last year, much more in fact than another rising first baseman of a competitor is to receive. I'm sorry he's not satisfied, but we can't pay out in salaries more than we take in at the gate."

Meeting Old Friends.

One of the personal pleasures to The Wake at Santa Anita is "Smiling Jim" [J. J.] Murphy, formerly of Chicago and middlewestern race tracks, who "calls" 'em for the Pacific coast edition of the Daily Racing Form. Jim has been out here two years, likes it but misses his old friends, still thinks it's cold when it is cold, and doesn't believe that rains are just mists.

Charley Schartenberg, once of THE TRIBUNE circulation department, is circulation manager of the "Form" coast edition, more than 12,000 daily. He was here from the 'Frisco headquarters for opening day and will be back for the handicap.

INDIANA ELEVEN SCHEDULES TWO NEBRASKA GAMES

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The football teams of Indiana university and the University of Nebraska will meet at Lincoln, Neb., in 1936 and 1937, Z. G. Clevenger, Indiana athletic director, announced today.

The first game will be played Oct. 17. The date for the 1937 contest has not been set. Arrangements for the two game series were completed today by Clevenger and Dana X. Bible.

O'Dea, Rookie Catcher, Signs Cub Contract

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The postman, who has more speed than the Cubs reveal except on pay days, dropped in at the club's downtown office yesterday and deposited the signed contract of James Kenneth O'Dea. The young man is a catcher and has hopes of beating out of a regular job none other than Gabby Hartnett, who remains a capable workman even though the years are beginning to crowd him.

O'Dea wouldn't have had the pleasure of attaching his name to a Cub document if it hadn't been that Manager Grimm had found himself unable to wink at the playful fashion in which Pat Malone regarded his pitching job as a Cub. Jovial Pat was traded, accordingly, to the world champion Cardinals, who by virtue of their extensive chain store system had come into possession of the 21 year old O'Dea. Malone pitched 14 victories for the Cubs last season and O'Dea batted only .265 for the Columbus, O., team of the American association.

Seven Are Unsigned.

The entrance of the youthful O'Dea into the fold of those who think themselves lucky to have regular employment leaves seven Cubs who either are in no hurry to sign the proferred documents or are sparring for better terms. Of the seven the only known holdout is Chuck Klein who has publicly announced that the club has taken out too much of last year's oversized salary to compensate itself for his failure to be a regular performer. Klein's ailment was a "charley horse."

The six others include Larry French, southpaw obtained from Pittsburgh; Roy Joiner, a hangover southpaw from last season; Pitcher Bill Lee, Infielder Woody English, Infielder Billy Herman, and Rookie Outfielder Frank Demaree. At least a couple of these have voiced complaints about the low value the club has placed on their services. Lee and Herman are suspected to be this pair.

Plan New Seats.

The Cub officials are making progress gradually on the matter of installing new seats at Wrigley field, thus adding to or at least giving the cash customers a little comfort along with entertainment. Manufacturers are submitting samples of various chairs and the officials are wearing out their trousers testing the ease of the different styles.

If the plan proves feasible there will be 3,500 new seats installed in the boxes at the extremities of the right and left field grand stand wings. The new seats will have at least 21 inches of sitting space, against the customary 18 inches. Admission prices for these reserved chairs will be reduced because of their remoteness from playing operations.

Seys Makes Report.

Johnny Seys, first vice president of the Cubs, returned yesterday from the National league meeting at New York and reported that none of the owners appeared anxious about making trades. They were too busy straightening out the affairs of the Boston club, which is embarrassed by a scarcity of funds.

FORMER TROJAN STAR TO SPEED RUNNING GAME

May Be Assigned to Half Back Job.

Irvine [Cotton] Warburton, the most widely publicized open field runner in college football for the last three seasons, was signed yesterday by Owner George Halas to play with the Chicago Bears in the National Professional league next fall.

Warburton, a 145 pound will-o'-wisp, played quarter back at the University of Southern California, where he has been the outstanding player on Coach Howard Jones' squad since 1932. It is highly probable, however, that the Bears will use the fleet Californian at half back to utilize his ball carrying ability, particularly when Bronko Nagurski is in the game to block for him.

Others Seek Warburton.

Several National league teams, including the Chicago Cardinals and New York Giants, sought Warburton. He signed with the Bears when a motion picture proposition he was considering was altered to permit him to devote only part of his time to duties at the studio, where he will be employed in a technical capacity.

Warburton's chief stock in trade is his speed and elusiveness. These qualities made it possible for him to star in a system where the paramount requirements of a quarter back, the ball carrier in Jones' system, are heft and ruggedness. Although only a mite as football players go on the Pacific coast, Warburton was a complete success in the position that elevated to stardom such rugged performers as Morley Drury, Gaius Shaver, and Homer Griffith.

He'll be Safety Man.

He was particularly dangerous in handling kicks, and it is planned to use him as safety in the Bears' defense next year. With Warburton and Beattie Feathers, who led the league in ground gained last year with a record of 1,052 yards, the Bears will have two of the best open field runners in the National league. Playing behind the powerful Nagurski, who is equally as devastating to opponents' defense as a blocker as when he is hitting the line, Halas expects this pair to carry the brunt of the Bears' attack.

Terms of Warburton's contract were not announced, but it is known that he demanded $5,000 for the season from other National league teams.

Warburton was born in San Diego, Cal., and has never been far from home except on football trips. He has three older brothers and one younger.

He's a Track Man, Too.

At San Diego High school, Cotton developed into an excellent half back, learning the game under Coach Hobbs Adams, former Southern California football captain, who will be the Trojans' freshman coach next season. Cotton was rated one of the best prep backs in the state.

Warburton played shortstop and left field on the high school baseball team and ran the 440 on the track squad. He won the quarter mile in the state interscholastic meet of 1930, going the distance in 49.6 seconds.

Cotton played second base on the freshman baseball team in his first year at the University of Southern California. He made the varsity football team in his sophomore year and continued to increase his prestige upon the gridiron from that time right up to the present. He was also a member of the varsity track team, winning his letter in the 440 as a member of the relay squad.

Works for Movie Studio.

During Warburton's freshman year, his father died, so Cotton was forced to spend most of his free time earning money to pay his way through school. He went to work as a cutter in a movie studio. He still has Hollywood connections and will work in one of the studios when not playing with the Bears.

Warburton is engaged to marry Nellie Mayson, a sophomore co-ed at Southern California. Miss Mayson's home is at Long Beach. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Warburton is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Warburton lacks enough credits for graduation in June but expects to finish his college work during the summer. Then he will report for practice under Coach Halas and the Bears will realize the wish voiced by several of their members: "We'd much sooner play with Warburton than against him."

COTTON GIVES REASONS

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6. — (AP) — Irvine [Cotton] Warburton, former Southern California quarter back, had two reasons for turning professional football player with the Chicago Bears.

"In the first place they made me a very good offer, and in the second place the Bears are tops," he said tonight.

Warburton said he expects "to go places" with the Bears for the team has a line that "will give me a chance to get into the open."

Warburton did not disclose what sum he will receive for turning professional. He said he will report in August, and that he will return to summer school to finish his collegiate education in the event he can not be graduated this June.

CINCINNATI, 37; LOYOLA, 23

University of Cincinnati used its height under the basket to defeat Loyola university last night at the Loyola gym, 37 to 23.

Forced to shoot from outside the free throw line by a rangy, fast defense, Loyola was unable to get near the basket. Cincinnati's two six foot four inch players, Carl Austing and Slim Summerville, scored 21 points for Cincinnati on Loyola's rebound shots.

After holding Cincinnati to a 8 to 6 score for the first ten minutes, Loyola's defense permitted the Bearcats to run up a 21 to 10 lead at half time. Colen's three free throws and basket put Loyola in the running again at the start of the second half, but Austing kept scoring on rebound shots to give Cincinnati a safe lead for the rest of the game.

Hanley Visits N.U.; Will Seek Post in East

Dick Hanley, former Northwestern university football coach, returned to Evanston yesterday and immediately announced that he would be off for New York in a few days, where he plans to confer with athletic officials of several schools regarding a coaching position. He did not say what schools he had in mind.

The former Wildcat coach was in high spirits as he greeted his former colleagues at Northwestern. He wore a heavy coat of tan, acquired during his seven weeks sojourn in California, most of which time he spent on the golf links.

Hanley said that he thought Northwestern had made a good choice in selecting Lynn Waldorf as its new football coach.

"I have only the best of wishes for Waldorf in his new job," Hanley said. "He will find that he has a fine bunch of boys with which to get started, and I predict that he will have a successful season next year."

When questioned regarding reports that he might enter the professional ranks as coach of the Boston Redskins Hanley said that he did not desire to desert college football, implying that he would remain out of coaching for a year rather than join up with the pros.

Williams Throws O'Neil in Marigold Bout

N. U. QUINTET TO TRY NEW LINEUP AGAINST IRISH

The game will mark the sixteenth in the eight year old series which had its inception when Coach Dutch Lonborg came to Northwestern in 1927. Northwestern holds the edge with eight victories to seven for the Irish.

Morale Is Shaken.

Northwestern hopes to start its second semester campaign with a victory over the Irish. This would go far towards restoring the team's morale which has been badly shattered as a result of five defeats out of six conference games.

The Wildcats eked out a 26 to 25 victory over Notre Dame in the first game earlier in the season. This victory climaxed a brilliant practice game schedule in which the Purple won six straight games. Then followed the string of conference defeats which finds the Purple in ninth place, but one game ahead of the tenth place Maroons.

With most of the players occupied with examinations, Coach Lonborg has had little opportunity to test the lineup changes he contemplates for the Wildcats.

N. U. Offense Collapses.

The almost complete collapse of the Wildcats' offense in its last two games against Michigan and Ohio has almost forced the Purple coach to shake up the starting combination in an effort to get somebody in the lineup who can score. The Wildcats have scored but four field goals in each of their last two games.

CHANGE SITE FOR DIAMOND MEDAL SKATING DERBY

The first annual T. J. Bowler diamond medal ice skating derby, scheduled for tomorrow night, will be held at Portage park, Long avenue and Irving Park boulevard, instead of Spencer field, Dan Canaday, manager of the Bowler skating team, announced yesterday.

The better condition of ice caused the change in the site of the meet, which has attracted leading Chicago skaters. Eddie Schroeder, captain of the American Olympic team, heads the list of entrants. Proceeds will be donated to the American Olympic fund.

Chicago and Armour Track Teams Postpone Meet

The dual track meet between the University of Chicago and Armour institute, scheduled for the Midway field house tomorrow night, has been postponed to some time in March, Coach Ned Merriam of the Maroon team announced yesterday. A. A. Stagg Jr., member of the Chicago coaching staf, who also is Armour's track coach, is recovering from an appendectomy and the meet was postponed until he can devote attention to the squad.

LONDOS SEEKS RIGHT TO MEET MEHMET YOUSIFF

Ed White, manager of Jim Londos, heavyweight wrestling champion, and his attorney, John L. McInerney, will appear at the Illinois athletic commission Monday to ask the board to rescind its action taken last Monday forbidding a proposed match between Londos and Mehmet Yousiff at the Coliseum on Feb. 22. The commission refused to sanction the bout until Londos agrees to wrestle Everett Marshall again. The champion was awarded the decision in a recent encounter with Marshall when the latter fell out of the ring and was unable to continue.

In a letter addressed to Chairman Joe Triner of the commission, the attorney expressed the belief that the commission had no authority to reject the application for a permit for the Londos-Yousiff bout.

The chairman said last night that this opinion is erroneous. He said the commission has the right to approve or disapprove all matches. He repeated his assertion that Londos must wrestle Marshall before he can meet Yousiff.

Cincinnati May See First Night Game June 28

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Indications are Cincinnati fans will see their first major league night baseball here June 28. Though no official word came from headquarters of the Cincinnati Reds, word spread that the innovation would have its introduction during the three day stay of the St. Louis Cardinals beginning on that date.

Indications first had been that the night game—first of seven the National league has ruled may be played on any one ground next season—would come as early as June 1. A shift in dates appeared likely, however, after league magnates met in New York yesterday. They banned night baseball on Saturday or Sunday, affecting June 1 and 2, and the Reds will be on the road from June 2 until June 28.

The schedule calls for the Pittsburgh Pirates to play here June 1 and 2, and the Pirates, the New York Giants, and the Brooklyn Dodgers have been firm in refusal to consider playing night games anywhere.

MISTLETOE

Now in PINTS

FOR your convenience distilled Mistletoe Dry and Tom Gins are now bottled in pints, as well as "fifths."

Most attractive pints they are, too, for the bottle is as distinctive as the gin — a slender, graceful flask that fits the pocket. It stows very handily in your car, too, and in grip or suitcase. . .

Our Dry Gin is a general favorite for cocktails, fizzes, and rickeys. Our Tom Gin, delicately sweetened, is preferred "straight" and in the lighter mixed drinks.

Your dealer has Mistletoe pints, or can get them for you readily. Insist on genuine Mistletoe.

BLACKHAWKS, AT ST. LOUIS, FIGHT TO PROTECT LEAD

Play Eagles Last Time This Season Tonight.

Games Tonight

New York Americans at Rangers.
Boston at Toronto.
Detroit at Montreal Canadiens.
Chicago at St. Louis.

The Blackhawks left last night for St. Louis where they play the Eagles tonight. The game is important to the Chicagoans because the New York Rangers, who have played thirteen National Hocky league contests without a defeat, are almost certain to prolong their streak at the expense of their city rival Americans in Madison Square Garden this evening.

Only two games separate the Hawks, who lead the American division, and the third place Rangers. Added to the Hawks' worries is the fact that they lead the Boston Bruins by only a game and a half. The Bruins tonight are likely to beat the Maple Leafs at Toronto since Connie Smythe's team is in the midst of one of the worst slumps in recent years.

Rangers Here Sunday.

The amazing spurt of the Rangers, who a month ago were considered almost hopelessly out of the running, has awakened hocky interest throughout the league. The Rangers will clash with the Hawks at the Stadium Sunday night.

The game at St. Louis tonight will be the last meeting of the Eagles and Hawks this season. Four of the five previous games were won by the Hawks and the other was a tie.

Although the Eagles have made a poor showing this season, Manager Clem Loughlin is not holding St. Louis lightly. The last scoring lists shows that the Eagles' main front line of Syd Howe, Carl Voss, and Glen Brydson is topped in points scored in the International section by only one forward trio, the Conacher-Primeau-Jackson trio of the league leading Maple Leafs.

Gottselig Leading Scorer.

The last official scoring list also showed that Johnny Gottselig with 16 goals is leading the United States section in that respect. Gottselig is the third best scorer in the league.

Only a half dozen Hawks drilled on the ice yesterday in preparation for tonight's game. Manager Loughlin deemed two games in three nights to be sufficient practice for the St. Louis game. Meanwhile Trainer Froelich was busy treating the bruised arms of Howie Morenz and Mush March.

Mostly About Dogs

By Bob Becker

Westminster Show

With a chance to look at 2,800 dogs and see all kinds of exhibitions and motion pictures featuring dogs of all breeds, eastern canine enthusiasts are going to have a thrilling time starting next Monday morning when the famous Westminster classic, the dog show of all dog shows, opens its doors.

Taking a prominent part in this great show, being held this year with a record breaking entry list, will be a number of Chicagoland canines. In fact, one group of fine dogs [Dobermanns], owned by a Chicago dog fancier and handled by a German trainer, probably will get as much of the daily spotlight as any group in the show.

The management of the Westminster show is going in for "entertainment for the average dog lover" in a big way this year. It has been pointed out on numerous occasions that too many dog shows are run for the professional dog fancier with not enough for the amusement and education of the average dog lover. This year the New York show has decided to give everybody plenty of educational entertainment by showing them how thoroughly pedigreed dogs can be trained. So three distinct features are on the program.

The first of these is an exhibition by Dobermann-Pinschers, trained and handled by Willie Necker of Lake Villa. Necker attended a dog training school in Stuttgart, Germany, so he knows his working dogs. I have seen his exhibition several times, have gone through the Dobermann kennel with him and watched his handling of the keen brained Dobermanns on several occasions.

Twice each day at the New York show Necker will be given rings Nos. 10, 11, and 12 in Madison Square Garden to demonstrate the skill, training, and quick thinking of the Dobermanns. I have a hunch that visitors to the Westminster show will remember the Dobermanns and the teamwork between them and Necker long after they have forgotten some of the judging in the ring.

The third outstanding entertainment feature will be motion pictures of field trials. When we were in New York a few weeks ago Eltinge Warner, eastern publisher, was telling us about these pictures, which show the snappy work of spaniels and other breeds finding and retrieving game in eastern trials. Mr. Warner was here in Chicagoland last fall acting as an official for the trials held by the Illinois Springer Spaniel club, and since then has become an enthusiastic spaniel owner.

If the dachshund entry at New York is any indication of how this breed is going to be represented at coming shows, better get ready to see an imposing number of these dogs at middle western shows. According to the latest report, more than 160 dachshunds are going to compete for honors starting next Monday, a great increase over last year and an indication of how this little dog is coming to the front.

Swim Trials to Pick Entrants in Jewish Games

Swimmers who will represent the middle west in the Jewish athletic games in Palestine April 2 to 7 will be chosen in a meet at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard, Feb. 21, 22, and 23.

Four Amateur Hocky Teams Play Tonight

The Chicago Hocky league will start the second half of its season at the Stadium tonight when the Baby Ruths meet Postl and the C. Y. O. All-Stars clash with the Boston Store in the main event.

It will be the first meeting of the Baby Ruth and Postl clubs. The Boston Store-C. Y. O. All-Stars' game will be the second meeting of these two teams. Their first game ended in a 2 to 2 tie.

An added attraction will be in the work shown by the two leading scorers, Tony Beda, All-Stars' stellar defense man who heads the circuit's scoring, and Robert Janelle of the Boston Store, who is second, 2 points behind.

INELIGIBILITY HITS ST. VIATOR ATHLETIC TEAMS

Two basketball players, Harold Chartier of Bradley and Bob McClellan of Chicago, were ruled ineligible. Chartier was a regular forward.

The baseball team lost two of its most promising pitchers, Ted Gush and W. Rossomando. Gush also was a good prospect for end on the football team.

A pair of St. Viator's most experienced boxers were affected. They are Joe Kohl and Red Tileson. Because of ineligibility, Dick Kendrigan, star middle distance runner and veteran of the swimming team, left school for the University of Havana, Cuba, where he will train under his father, a track coach.

WESTERN SQUASH RACQUETS MEET OPENS SATURDAY

The western squash racquets championship tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Chicago Athletic association and the Lake Shore Athletic club. Both individual and team titles will be decided.

The field includes sixteen teams representing clubs in Cincinnati, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Detroit, Purdue university, and Chicago. Each team will consist of three players.

Among the leading contenders for the individual title are Roland E. Nord of Cincinnati, Art Crosby of Minneapolis, Dr. Davidow of Detroit, Fred Uihlein and Joseph Simpson of Milwaukee, and James Anderson and J. D. Pope of Chicago.

1 YEAR OLD KENTUCKY STRAIGHT WHISKY
Ester Tested for Mellowness
A SCIENTIFIC test which insures uniform mellowness in every bottle is making the great Kentucky straight whisky "BOTTOMS UP" the talk of whisky drinkers everywhere. Though "BOTTOMS UP" has been on the market only a short time, it is already one of the fastest-selling whiskies.
Before bottling, "BOTTOMS UP" is given not less than one year of aging. In addition the ester content, which gives whisky its finer qualities, is carefully checked before any distillation is bottled. Thus aging and scientific testing insure "BOTTOMS UP" buyers of definite smoothness and enjoyment. "BOTTOMS UP" is made with a high percentage of the costly small grains which add so much to flavor and smoothness. Yet "BOTTOMS UP" is low in price. Ask for a bottle at any good dealer's.

A DRY SKIN MAKES YOU LOOK OLDER THAN YOU ARE

Women all know that a dry skin wrinkles easily—and that cold winds dry out the skin, leaving it chapped and brittle. So they avoid alkaline soaps and use creams and bland oils to keep their complexions youthful.

Throw away that messy brush and start shaving with Barbasol if you want to keep your skin in the pink of condition.

Barbasol is a latherless cream that gives you the fastest, smoothest, cleanest shave you've ever had. It is so soothing and refreshing that many people use it for sunburn, windburn and chapping.

Tune in Edwin C. Hill every Wednesday evening over the Columbia Broadcasting System coast-to-coast (see your newspaper for local time) and Singin' Sam—the Barbasol Man—every Friday evening at 9:45 P. M., WOR New York; WLW Cincinnati; 8:45 P. M., WGN Chicago

SAGILIO SEEKS OLD PRESTIGE IN BOUT WITH FIRPO

Pair Battle at Cicero Stadium Tomorrow.

Frank Sagilio, Cicero 140 pound fighter, must dispose of Young Joe Firpo, stocky Philadelphian, in a ten round bout at Cicero stadium tomorrow if he hopes to regain the high position he held in his division last summer. It was recalled yesterday that only Davey Day, Champion Barney Ross' lightweight stablemate, stood in the way of Sagilio's climb to a title contest with Ross after Frank scored an eight round knockout over Pete Nebo last June 28.

Sagilio was unable to defeat Day on two occasions and was forced to make a new start. He held Day to a ten round draw at Mills stadium July 30, but in their second meeting Davey won the ten round decision at Chicago Stadium Nov. 2. The Cicero slugger made his first appearance since then when he stopped Lou Jallos in three rounds Jan. 4. The match with Firpo will be his second.

Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois athletic commission yesterday granted Chicago Stadium officials permission to offer sixty rounds of boxing—ten contests at six rounds each—at the Stadium a week from tomorrow. The rule provides for not more than forty rounds on any one card. Inasmuch as this requirement is a rule and not an act the commission has the right to approve or disapprove any request to hold more than the maximum number of rounds allowed.

James C. Mullen, co-matchmaker at the Stadium, who had previously announced plans to offer a program headed by three matches at ten rounds on Feb. 15, made the switch because of the abundance of prominent talent in various parts of the country seeking fights at the west side building. Contests announced today may include the following:

Frank Battaglia vs. Ken Overlin.
Lenny Cohn vs. Joe Tei Ken.
Billy Miller vs. Mike Frattini or Lou Halper.
Mike Belloise vs. Paul Lee.
Johnny Vorce vs. Dutch Weimer.
Bobby Mathews vs. Chuck Haffner.
Eddie Hogan vs. Johnny Pacek.
Geno Salvatore vs. Eddie Carroll.

Johnny Phagan, west side middleweight, and George Black, Milwaukee, Wis., were signed last night to meet in the ten round main event at Marigold Gardens next Monday. Bobby Hull will appear in the six round semi-final against a suitable opponent. Matches at four rounds will bring together George Van Der Hayden and Bill Reardon, and Bobby La Monte vs. Don Lamanski.

Harry Dublinsky will undergo an operation on both elbows this morning in Michael Reese hospital which will force him out of action for at least six weeks. The injury, called "joint mice" by his physician, Dr. Dan Levinthal, occurred during Dublinsky's ten round conquest of Tony Falco at New York, Nov. 23. It was aggravated in a ten round draw with Tracey Cox at Dallas, Tex., Dec. 7, and in his losing combat with Lou Ambers in the east, Jan. 11.

Teddy Yarosz, middleweight champion, has had the cast removed from his knee which he injured against Babe Risko at Scranton, Pa., a few weeks ago. . . . Champion Barney Ross has acquired a financial interest in a loop jewelry firm. . . . Ernie Filegal, fight manager, had his tonsils removed yesterday at a Rochester, Minn., hospital. . . . Lew Massey, Philadelphia, and Leonard del Genio, New York, are scheduled to clash at Philadelphia on Feb. 18. F. M.

Poet Coughlin Pens a Rhyme of Happy Days at Derby Time

BY FRENCH LANE.

He stood at the window of his none too immaculate office across from the city hall and, while watching his constituents and a few other folks scurrying about in La Salle street, he ran a few imaginary stake and handicap races in his mind.

There was his apple blossom silk jacket, always out in front at the winning post. That was clearly evident from the contented expression which intermittently accompanied his musings.

Your correspondent was to blame for the alderman's gross neglect of his constituents at such a busy time. I had dropped in to ask him about all the excitement he had created by entering so many 2 year olds in such rich early closing events as the Arlington Futurity, Lassie stakes, and Belmont Futurity.

John Waxes Poetical.

"Are they of any account?" we asked the alderman. "Are they worth the entry and the eligibility fees you have paid?"

"Huh, are they any account?" grunted the alderman. "My good friend, let me explain it to you in poetry:

> You wait and see,
> And just bet on me."

There may be more truth than rhythm in the alderman's doggerel. He actually has nominated some of the most fashionable young bluebloods in the country in these stake events. Not one or two, mind you, but a whole flock of them, and they represent blood lines that do things in American racing.

The alderman is a bit proud of the names he has picked for them.

Roguish Boy, a son of Roguish Eye—Pitch Dark.
Firing Squad, a son of Chance Shot—Grief.
Building Trades, a son of Chance Play—Sable Lady.

And last, but by no means least, is the son of Chance Play-Waitress that he has named Charley Grimm in honor of the popular skipper of the Cubs.

O, There Are a Lot More.

For the Lassie stakes and its $30,000 prize the alderman believes he holds the most powerful hand in the country.

Rehearsal, a daughter of Blind Play-Sultane.

"How about that fellow you've called Firing Squad," he was asked.

"Some other 2 year old may be able to catch him some day, but if he does he will be riding on the Twentieth Century Limited," John replied. "Remember his daddy, Chance Shot, was America's leading sire last year in money earned by sons and daughters."

"Well how about that colt you haven't named?" was the next query.

"You mean the son of Stimulus—Latest Fashion, of course," answered the alderman. "The wings of Pegasus couldn't move him faster than do his straight, well muscled legs. A champion, perhaps, and I'm taking my time in picking a good name for him."

She Can Run, Too.

"And how about Roguish Girl?" he was asked.

"She runs straight as an arrow and with the speed of a cannon ball," replied the alderman. "You'll see her win the Lassie stakes."

So it went as the alderman went from one to another and on through the list, one of the largest on the Futurity and Lassie stake books. He bred the sons and daughters of Roguish Eye at his farm near Geneva. The others he bought at the Saratoga auctions last summer, and he believes he got the only real bargains offered there. They are now in the process of being legged up on the Coughlin farm and will be transferred to Washington Park soon.

"And, O yes," Coughlin said, "remember I've got Advantage and Official in the Derby. They're going to be race horses as 3 year olds."

As I turned to leave the alderman motioned to one of his henchmen. "Clear off the big shelf and keep it dusted. That's where I'm going to keep the cups and the pieces of plate my horses win for me this year." I heard him tell the henchman just as the door slammed.

ROMAN SOLDIER TAKES HIALEAH FEATURE EASILY

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6.—Special.]—William Sachsenmaier's Roman Soldier looms as the probable favorite for the Florida Derby, feature of the Hialeah meeting here, as the result of his decisive victory this afternoon in the Coconut Grove purse. The race was at a mile and brought together five eligibles for the Derby including Brannon, which was fresh from his victory in the Hialeah stakes.

Brannon was the second choice this afternoon, but brought up fourth. Silvio Coucci handled Roman Soldier which won easily by two lengths, with Good Harvest a half length before Blackbirder. Elwawa brought up the rear.

The winner is a black colt by Cohort-Miamba and was the favorite at 5 to 4. He finished the mile under 114 pounds in 1:37 2-5. The track was fast and it was felt by Roman Soldier's backers that he redeemed himself for his defeat by Brannon in the Hialeah stakes where he encountered interference.

The favorite was upset in the Daytona Beach purse when Hug Again could do not better than second back of Bold Lover. Bold Lover was the medium of E. R. Bradley's first victory of the session and was the third choice. Hug Again was a slight favorite over Quel Jeu which took the show, a half length back of the choice. Bold Lover was winner by a neck and returned $7.20 for $2.00 after a hustling ride by Don Meade. It was a keenly run seven furlongs with Bold Lover clocked in 1:24 3-5.

JOE SULLIVAN OUT OF DANGER, DOCTORS SAY

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Joe Sullivan, Notre Dame football captain elect, was recovering today from an operation last night for the removal of a mastoid of the right ear. Attending physicians said his temperature had steadily declined since the operation and that he is out of danger, barring complications.

His father, Lieut. Timothy Sullivan, chief of detectives in Brooklyn, N. Y., was with him at the time of the operation. Sullivan had just recovered from pneumonia when the mastoid trouble developed.

FEW BANKS WIN FREEDOM FROM RFC OWNERSHIP

Road to U. S. Control Is One-Way Route.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The road to government ownership of banks, according to figures given out by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is a one way route. Many get in, but few get out.

Despite generally increased bank earnings last year practically the only important banks that have been able to buy back their freedom from the government by retiring capital notes or preferred stock held by the Reconstruction Finance corporation are the fourteen state banks in New York City, which admittedly participated in the RFC's program only temporarily and to set the pace for their less fortunate contemporaries.

During 1934 only 72 millions of preferred stock and notes were retired by banks, of which $51,300,000 was represented by the fourteen New York institutions, which, before they went into the scheme, reserved the right to get out of it in six months.

Refuses to Name Banks.

The other 20 millions of retirements are believed to have been accounted for by smaller banks, although the RFC to date has refused to release a list of these institutions. The fourteen New York banks did their own announcing when they bought back their freedom on July 2.

Lawyers County Trust company	$ 250,000
Corn Exchange Bank and Trust company	3,000,000
Bankers Trust company	5,000,000
Chemical Bank and Trust company	5,000,000
Bank of the Manhattan Company	3,000,000
Continental Bank and Trust company	100,000
Marine Midland Trust company	1,000,000
Fifth Avenue bank	200,000
Central Hanover Bank and Trust company	5,000,000
Irving Trust company	5,000,000
Bank of New York and Trust company	1,000,000
Fulton Trust company	250,000
Guaranty Trust company	20,000,000
New York Trust company	2,500,000

Ownership Is Expanded.

But even the retirement of 72 millions of capital notes and preferred stock has not slowed up the rapid extension of the government's ownership of bank capital. On Dec. 31, at the end of the first year of its buying into banks, the Reconstruction Finance corporation owned 937 million dollars' worth of capital and had arranged to buy 209 millions more, subject to the banks' meeting its conditions.

The report showed further that 6,943 banks throughout the country were partly owned by the government or were in the process of passing into such ownership. This was an increase of 488 over the total of 6,455 banks reported three months earlier by the RFC. During those three months actual holdings of bank capital by the RFC increased 47 millions.

Last October at the annual convention of the American Bankers association Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, announced that his bureau already owned and controled one-fourth of the aggregate capital of banks throughout the United States.

It was easy for the fourteen New York state banks to buy back their freedom because theirs was a special case. Before consenting to take part in the program they specifically reserved the right to get out of it by July 31. Actually they got out nearly a month earlier, paid off the RFC and resumed their former measure of independence.

Way Out is Not Easy.

For the great majority of the 6,943 banks that either have succumbed or are in the process of succumbing to partial government ownership the way out is by no means as easy. The conditions under which they sell stock or notes to the RFC specify that they may retire such stock or notes out of their earnings, but the proviso is stuck in that the amount paid into the retirement fund in any one year may not exceed 5 per cent of the maximum aggregate par value of the preferred stock or notes at any time outstanding.

Thus the government is in no danger of losing control of banks in which RFC makes substantial investments for many years and the probability is that it will retain some ownership for at least twenty years.

The nation's four largest national banks all have sold substantial parts of their capital to the RFC. The fifth largest, the First National Bank of Boston, never has entered into the program. Neither have the First National Bank of New York or the Philadelphia National bank, which rank seventh and eighth in size among national banks.

MORE RAILROADS REPORT UPTURNS IN WEEK'S TRAFIC

Sharp gains in freight trafic last week were reported by more railroads yesterday. The New York Central hauled a total of 104,973 cars, compared with 96,902 in the preceding week and 96,569 a year ago, the first time in many weeks that the figure has passed the 100,000 mark.

Based on reports received so far, it is believed that the national total for the week will be the highest for the corresponding week in four years. Heavy movements of coal are principally responsible for the improved showing. Other roads reported as follows:

Steel Output Up .5 Point to 56.5 Per Cent

Steel production showed a further moderate gain last week by rising ½ point to 56½ per cent of production capacity, while scrap prices became stronger on the average, according to Iron Age.

Operations at Pittsburgh advanced 3 points to 45 per cent, while the rate in the Cleveland-Lorain district was 2 points higher at 69 per cent. The dropping off of several open-harths in the valley district caused a temporary recession of 2 points to 61 per cent. Elsewhere operating rates are substantially unchanged, the journal says.

Expect Chicago Upturn.

One producer at Detroit, whose rate is 100 per cent of capacity, depleted its bank of ingots to such an extent that it has been compelled to buy semi-finished steel in the open market. While additional increases in production are looked for in some centers, notably Chicago and the valleys, there are indications that the upswing in mill operations is losing momentum, according to the review.

Mills producing automobile steels are now operating virtually at capacity, the magazine states. While tin mill output has risen to 75 per cent and miscellaneous demands for steel are steadily growing, further significant expansion in raw steel production is believed to depend upon bookings of railroad steel, construction material, and pipe.

No Early Recession Seen.

"Although output may soon level off," says the journal, "no early recession is looked for. Steelmakers are now predicting the present rate will be maintained well through the current quarter provided there are no serious labor disturbances. They also point out that with four or five months of operations at current levels activity would spread to other lines.

"Expansion in miscellaneous lines has assumed sizable proportions. A number of tractor plants in the middle west have bookings waranting capacity operations for the next six months. Farm implement makers have the best prospects since 1930. Agricultural demand for sheet and wire products has shown notable improvement."

Rail Orders 44,374 Tons.

Rail orders placed by the Southern Pacific, the Burlington, and the Wheeling and Lake Erie total 44,374 tons. Structural steel awards of 16,600 tons are the largest with one exception since the last week of November. New projects of 16,150 tons, compare with 9,400 tons in the preceding week. Sheet steel piling inquiries total 6,300 while tentative barge work in the Chicago district calls for 15,000 tons of plates.

Iron Age composite prices for pig iron and finished steel are unchanged at $17.90 a ton and 2.124 cents a pound, respectively, while the scrap composite remains at $12.17 a ton for the second week.

Reductions of $1.90 a ton have been made on quotations for open herth iron billets at Cleveland, effective Feb. 14, according to the American Iron and Steel institute. The new prices are $34 a ton for rerolling quality and $39 a ton for forging quality.

DOLLAR HOLDS STEADY; MORE GOLD ARRIVES

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The dollar held nearly steady against leading foreign currencies today, closing generally unchanged against gold bloc moneys and slightly lower against the British pound which rose ¼ cent to $4.88⅛.

Brokers in London reported that the American stabilization fund was active in holding the dollar-sterling rate near $4.88, but that the British equalization fund was not operating.

French francs were unchanged at 6.56¼ cents, with the dollar worth $1.0108. The gold value of the dollar at 59.70 cents against francs, compared with par of 59.06 cents.

Substantial offerings of gold in London today were indicated by a decrease of the gold price of three pence to 141 shillings 10½ pence, which, with sterling at $4.88⅛, brought the dollar equivalent for gold to $34.65½ a fine ounce.

No further engagements of gold abroad were reported to the federal reserve bank today, but $7,268,600 of the gold previously bought was received here and $91,400 gold was released from earmark. The day's imports consisted of $5,160,700 from France, $1,447,400 from England, and $660,500 from Holland.

RFC PLANS QUICK FINANCIAL AID FOR RAILROADS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Plans for quick aid to railroads which are in serious financial condition are being made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The RFC is authorized to lend up to $350,000,000 to railroads for various purposes, under powers granted by the recently extended RFC act.

Under this program, which would make it possible for particularly hard-pressed railroads to reduce the service charges on their bonded indebtedness, a unification program advocated by Joseph B. Eastman, coördinator of transportation, might be begun even before congress acts on Eastman's report urging correlation.

The RFC plans to ask the Interstate Commerce commission to authorize the corporation to issue bids for purchase of a set number of bonds of distressed roads at a price near the market level to be agreed upon by rail and RFC officials after hearings.

The RFC would expect the railroads to pay interest on the purchase price rather than on par value.

Wholesale Food Index Highest Since Oct. 23, 1930

Wholesale food prices resumed their upward course in the first week of February, says Dun & Broadstreet. A gain of 6 cents for the week brought the agency's weekly index to $2.73 on Feb. 5 from $2.67 the week before, and established a new high mark since Oct. 23, 1930.

U. S. TREASURY SPENDING THIRD DEFICIT BILLION

Income Is 51 Cents Per Dollar Outgo.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The treasury began spending its third billion "in the red" today, when its daily statement disclosed the deficit had jumped to $2,011,041,971. The consolidated statement showed that only 51 cents had been received for every dollar spent thus far in the present fiscal year. Total receipts amounted to $2,094,812,789, while total expenditures were $4,105,854,760.

The statement said ordinary expenditures were kept within a radius that would provide a balanced budget, but that emergency expenditures for unemployment and relief had added more than two billion dollars to the total. However, if the processing tax were deducted from ordinary receipts, as some claim it should be, on the ground it is an emergency levy, an ordinary deficit of $221,000,000 would accrue for the period to date.

Revenue Is Larger.

Government revenue during the period gained $377,000,000 over last year, all classes showing increases with the exception of customs receipts and income from government owned securities. The greatest increase was shown in the processing tax on farm products, which rose $151,000,000 over last year, to $326,457,000.

Income tax receipts totaled $443,000,000, an increase of $102,000,000; miscellaneous internal revenue amounted to $990,000,000, a gain of $100,000,000, but customs receipts dropped off $5,000,000, to $199,000,000.

Principal and interest on foreign owned securities returned only $500,000, in contrast with $20,000,000 last year, while the return on "all other" securities has been $34,000,000 against $39,000,000 last year. Panama canal tolls rose $1,000,000 to $14,000,000, and silver seigniorage amounted to $54,000,000, against $74,000,000 for the short period it was collected last year.

Gain 43½ Per Cent in 1934.

For the calendar year 1934 the treasury said, collections of internal revenue rose 43½ per cent to a total of $2,994,172,572, against $2,090,947,279 in 1933. All general classes showed increases. The list was led by agricultural adjustment taxes, with an upturn of 257 per cent. However, this levy was not in effect for all of 1933.

Corporation income tax returns jumped 36 per cent with individual incomes returning an increase of 20 per cent. Miscellaneous internal income was up 28 per cent.

Individual income taxes	375,284,304	451,746,002
Agri. adjustment taxes	140,563,249	500,308,155

New York state was still the chief revenue producer, returning $586,032,129. Illinois squeezed out North Carolina for the number of two position, because of processing taxes on meat packing plants. North Carolina, with heavy tobacco taxes paid $278,751,764 against $291,078,143 for Illinois.

Figures for Illinois.

Collections in the two districts of Illinois more than doubled. The total rose from $136,978,594 to $291,078,143—a gain of $154,009,549. Collections in the First district, northern Illinois, almost doubled, rising from $126,144,445 to $247,143,098. In the Eighth district, southern Illinois, they quadrupled from $10,834,149 to $45,935,053.

Corporation	$ 25,512,798	$ 38,240,835
Individual	26,625,943	34,009,327
Total income tax	$ 52,138,742	$ 75,959,715
Miscellaneous	75,959,715	120,849,707
AAA Taxes	8,880,136	97,978,213
Total all sources	$136,978,594	$291,078,143

The bureau said that the figures reported were not indicative of the federal tax burden, since the taxes may be eventually borne by persons in another state.

The AAA today reported that through Dec. 31, a total of $22,812,945 had been paid farmers of Illinois for wheat, tobacco, and corn-hog reductions. The totals are: wheat, $3,756,181; tobacco, $888; corn-hogs, $19,055,875.

SUBPENA 6 IN N. J. IN CENTRAL TRUST ACTION OF RFC

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Subpenas have been served by attachés of the Federal court upon six New Jersey stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company of Chicago who are being sued by the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The suit, seeking collection under stockholders liability, is based upon two 1932 loans totaling $80,000,000 to the Chicago bank. The RFC asserted that $60,476,537 has been due on the notes since last Nov. 17.

CHRYSLER PLANT WORKERS SPURN OUTSIDE UNIONS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Outside unions were spurned by 6,511 employés of the Chrysler corporation, whose votes were listed today in favor of unaffiliated nominees for a collective bargaining agency to be set up by the automobile labor board.

Of 7,067 who cast ballots Tuesday only 200 favored the American Federation of Labor, 68 were for the Chrysler Employés' association, 39 for the Associated Automobile Workers of America, and 6 for the Mechanical Educational Society of America.

At all plants a total of 60,838 ballots have been cast to date, representing 90 per cent of the eligible workers. The A. F. of L. and the M. E. S. A. have instructed their members not to vote and not to reveal their affiliation.

PREDICTS WORLD COTTON USE WILL SET NEW RECORD

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—World consumption of cotton will soar to heights never yet seen as soon as general buying power returns to a normal level, Alston H. Garside, economist of the New York Cotton exchange, said today.

Between 28,000,000 and 30,000,000 bales a year will be the demands of world spinners, compared with an all time peak of 25,821,000 bales in 1928-1929, he estimated.

"Few people outside of the cotton trade realize that the world has actually used more cotton per year during the last two or three years than the average in the years before the panic of 1929," he said.

Deny Roosevelt Plans to Close Stock Markets

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—An emphatic White House denial was given today to reports that President Roosevelt was preparing to proclaim a national emergency and close stock exchanges and markets when the Supreme court hands down its decision on the gold laws.

Roosevelt said through his secretariat that such reports were false. This emphasized a position he has publicly assumed since the gold laws went before the Supreme court that he, as head of the executive branch of the government, should neither by word nor action attempt to influence a decision by the judicial branch of the government.

Earlier in the day the President said at a press conference that he had not discussed the gold case with any one and did not intend to.

The discredited reports were believed to have been based upon work done by the securities and exchange commission in preparation for steps to be taken should the gold decisions result in conditions requiring temporary government control over trading.

The SEC has decided that if the circumstances of the forthcoming decision require action beyond that planned by the exchanges themselves it will ask the President to use the authority given him under the securities act to close exchanges for ninety days or less.

Part of Sanitary District 1932 Bond Issues Paid

A $255,000, or 9 per cent, payment of principal on the $2,839,000 of sanitary district bonds issued between Jan. 1 and June 1, 1932, was made yesterday, Ross A. Woodhull, president of the sanitary district, announced.

CANADIAN PREMIER REJECTS PUBLIC RULE OF CENTRAL BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6.—Prime Minister Bennett today refused to entertain a proposal of the Trade and Labor congress for nationalization and public control of the Bank of Canada [central bank] on the grounds Canadian governments are subject to political pressure.

"I would not and could not do it when I realize what it would mean to have the Bank of Canada a political organization," he said. "The Bank of England is 271 years old, is privately owned and has rendered noteworthy service to the nation.

"I hope you will realize that to permit any political party to be in position to manipulate at will the controling factor in our financial fabric is something we must guard against."

CHICAGO CORP. TO PAY 25 CENTS ON $3 PREFERRED

The Chicago corporation yesterday declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the $3 preferred stock, payable March 1 to stock of record Feb. 15. After this payment the dividend accumulations on the stock will amount to $4.75 a share.

American Rolling Mill company will pay a dividend of $2 a share on the 6 per cent preferred March 1. The last payment was the regular quarterly distribution of $1.50 a share on Jan. 15, 1933.

Power Output Increases 7.7% Above 1934

Electric power output in the United States last week rose 7.7 per cent above a year ago, the Edison Electric institute reported yesterday. However, that of the preceding week, a more than seasonal decrease. The total was 1,762,671,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,781,666,000 in the preceding week and 1,636,275,000 a year ago.

In the preceding week of this year there was a gain of 10.6 per cent over the corresponding week of last year. A year ago output increased 12½ per cent over 1933.

Chicago Output Lower.

In the Chicago area last week power production amounted to 109,281,000 kilowatt hours, a drop of 2.8 per cent from the preceding week, when the total was 112,542,000, but a gain of 4.2 per cent over the 104,900,000 kilowatt hours recorded a year ago, the Commonwealth Edison company announced.

The reduction in output from the preceding week was attributed largely to the return of more normal weather conditions. Following are the output in kilowatt hours and percentage comparisons with last year for the Chicago district:

Wk. ended	1935.	1934.	Pct. increase.
Feb. 2	109,281,000	104,900,000	4.2
Jan. 26	112,542,000	99,392,000	13.4
Jan. 19	110,864,000	101,527,000	9.2
Jan. 12	109,007,000	103,994,000	4.8

Gains by Districts.

Of the seven geographical regions into which the report of the Edison Electric institute is divided only the west central section showed greater improvement than in the previous week.

New England, 5.5 per cent, against 8.0 per cent in the week ended Jan. 26; middle Atlantic, 6.4, against 8.6; central industrial, 9.5, against 14.2; west central, 8.5, against 7.4; southern, 8.9, against 10.3; Rocky mountain, 10.8, against 13.6, and Pacific coast, 2.7, against 6.5.

BUSINESS PACE IS FASTER, SAYS FEDERAL REPORT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—An acceleration of the pace of business activity during December and January was reported by the department of commerce today in its monthly "survey of current business."

"Sharp gains have been evident in industrial production and employment," the report said. "The adjusted index of industrial production for December, at 86 per cent of the 1923-'25 average, was 12 points higher than in November and was the same as the 1934 high. The weekly data for January indicates a further advance in the index for the current month.

"The expansion in production in December was reflected in a contra-seasonal increase in the number of factory workers. The seasonally adjusted index of factory employment rose 3 per cent, while the pay roll increase was 6.2 per cent.

"Automobile production has recently been at a rate not witnessed for this period of the year since 1929, while steel ingot production has increased from 32 per cent of capacity in the first week of December to 53 per cent in the latter part of January."

BILLS TO CURB UTILITIES GIVEN HOUSE, SENATE

Would Ban Holding Firms in 5 Years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Elimination of public utility holding companies within five years was proposed in the house today with the introduction of a bill by Chairman Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.] of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. Rayburn denied the measure was an administration bill.

"It's my own bill," said Rayburn. "I haven't heard that the administration would have a bill."

On the other hand, it was reported that the measure was drafted by Ben Cohen and Tom Cochran, brain trust attorneys who figured prominently in shaping the stock exchange bill that was passed last session. Cohen is an attorney with the Public Works administration while Cochran is connected with the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Senate Gets Counterpart.

A counterpart of the Rayburn bill was introduced in the senate later by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.].

The legislation provided that immediately after Jan. 1, 1940, the securities and exchange commission should require every registered holding company to "dispose of securities or be reorganized or dissolved in so far as may be necessary to make every such company cease to be a holding company."

Another provision set forth that the commission could allow holding companies to continue operation if it were an economic necessity in territories served or if subsidiaries were foreign corporations. For the five year period of elimination provisions were set up as follows:

1. Simplification of holding company structures.

2. Confinement of company investments to public utility activities.

Plan to Halt Pyramids.

3. Control of future security issues and acquisitions, to prevent further growth of pyramided structures.

4. Reports and uniform standardized accounts to reveal the financial conditions and all intercorporate relationships.

5. Divestment from common control of electric utility properties and interstate gas transmission; divestment from common control of domestic and foreign properties.

7. Control of intercorporate relations wherever there is absence of "arms-length" dealing.

8. Reorganizations under federal administrative control.

The legislation also provides that holding companies must obtain a registration certificate from the SEC on or before Oct. 1, 1935. The company would be required to furnish complete information concerning its transactions.

STOCKS DECLINE ON MODEST BUT STEADY SELLING

Rails Extremely Weak in Spite of Bullish News.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—Stocks continued their slow, dispirited retreat into lower territory today. There was no particular pressure in evidence in any group but selling outweighed buying and losses of a fraction to a point were written into the final tables. Several railroad issues eased to the lowest levels in several years.

A number of constructive news items appeared during the day, including another moderate rise in steel operations and some improved carloadings figures. Only two of the first nineteen roads reporting for last week failed to show a gain over the preceding week but all were relegated to the background as of no importance in view of the big question of the hour. "How is the nation's highest court going to rule on the gold contracts?"

Telephone Weak Spot.

Among the group leaders, American Telephone was an outstanding weak spot sagging more than $1 a share on a fairly steady stream of liquidation orders. Brokers ascribed some of this selling to the senate committee's approval of a large appropriation of money to carry on an inquiry into the corporation's rates. A loss of telephone installations reported for last month also made the issue look a little less valuable to some holders. Consolidated Gas, Public Service and other utilities receded fractionally but the group as a whole fared no worse than the general market.

The carrier group was as apathetic as ever to talk of a rally and most of its members changed hands occasionally at lower figures. Delaware & Hudson dropped more than a point and Union Pacific finished $2 a share lower. New York Central, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Atchison and others suffered further slight losses.

Stalwarts Buck Trend.

A scattering of the so-called stalwarts dug in and stood up a little bolder in face of their assailants. American Can atoned for some of its sorry performances of the immediate past by bucking the trend for a net gain of a major fraction. U. S. Steel held around its previous closing level, finishing slightly lower while du pont was stronger in earlier dealings but sagged later.

In the automobile sector, Studebaker, which has been active for the last week, broke below the dollar-a-share level to enter the rather small class of what the trade calls penny stocks. Some timely buying toward the end boosted the price back to the dollar level once more, however.

Mining issues were mixed. U. S. Smelting rose a point in the wake of Homestake, but Alaska Juneau sold down the better part of a point on an unfavorable earnings report for January.

CURB CAUTIONS MEMBERSHIP ON PADUCAH TRADES

Members of the Chicago Curb exchange yesterday were warned by officials of the organization to beware of possible inadvertent violations of the securities exchange act of 1934 and by-laws of the exchange, in their handling of transactions in Paducah Cooperage company. Accompanying the warning was the daily quotation sheet of the exchange for yesterday which showed that of a total of 4,905 shares changing hands, 3,100 were shares of Paducah.

The warning said members should take every precaution to scrutinize orders they are receiving in the stock. Section 9 of the securities exchange act says it is unlawful for any one to manipulate the market for the purpose of inducing the purchase or sale of securities by others. Regulations of the exchange also prohibit such practice.

WHITNEY CITES THREE FACTORS FOR RECOVERY

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange listed three elements necessary for recovery in an address here tonight. These, he said, are: relieve industry of its fears, free the capital market of impediments, and allow organized stock exchanges to serve capital and industry as they have in the past.

Earlier in the day the exchange head said the administration of the New York Stock exchange is in hearty accord with the purpose of affording the public more protection.

"We have been engaged on a sympathetic examination of the recommendations of the securities and exchange commission to congress," Whitney asserted, "and are hopeful of developing at an early date a program which will meet with the approval of the commission."

New York, Feb. 6.—United States government bonds moved irregularly higher on the stock exchange today, as domestic corporation bonds worked lower. Trading was dull. Volume totaled $8,673,000 compared with $8,099,000 Tuesday. Foreign loans were steady in light trading.

Long term issues of the United States government group closed 6-32ds higher to 3-32ds lower. Offerings were limited and bidders were willing to pay slightly greater prices to obtain needed bonds. One new issue appeared on the tape today for the first time, the Federal Farm Mortgage 3s due 1947. A long list of domestic corporation issues received setbacks of a point or more. This included a number of high grade issues as well as the more speculative bonds.

In the foreign bond list strength was displayed by Belgian, Italian, and various Scandinavian government loans. French, German, and British government issues were fractionally lower while most of Latin American issues closed slightly easier.

Northwestern National Life.

Investors' Guide: I am wondering if you could give me some information in regard to Northwestern National Life Insurance company.—B. J. J.

Answer: Northwestern National Life Insurance company, Minneapolis, Minn., is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. During the last fifty years the company has become one of the important life insurance organizations of the middle west.

Amount of insurance in force during the last four years has shown little variation. In fact, during 1932, contrary to the trend of insurance companies in general, this item increased. It totaled $360,269,000 at the close of 1934, approximately the same figure as of Dec. 31, 1931. Insurance during the last five years showed a gain of 10.6 per cent.

The bulk of the company's investments on Dec. 31, 1934, was in United States government bonds, which constituted 25 per cent of assets. All other bonds in the company's portfolio aggregated 28.04 per cent of assets. Mortgage loans were 13.42 per cent of assets, cash was 3.10 per cent, policy loans, 18.86 per cent, and real estate, 5¼ per cent.

Net surplus to policyholders, after deduction of contingency and other reserves, was $4,701,000, or 9.4 per cent of assets of $50,049,000. On Dec. 31, 1933, admitted assets totaled $47,612,000, against $47,115,000 at the close of 1932.

There was no borrowed money.

Western New York Water.

Investors' Guide: Do you consider Western New York Water company 5½s, due 1950, a safe investment for one of limited means?—F. L.

Answer: Western New York Water company is an operating company, part of the Federal Water Service system, furnishing water service to Buffalo, Lackawanna, Tonawanda, and other communities in the vicinity. Population served is 122,000.

A 4.3 per cent increase in gross revenues for the twelve months to March 31, 1934, over the preceding twelve months enabled the company to cover fixed charges 1.44 times, against 1.35 times in the twelve months to March 31, 1933.

Operating revenues in 1933 totaled $742,000, against $736,000 in 1932, $768,000 in 1931, and $811,000 in 1930. Fixed charges were earned 1.41 times in 1933, 1.36 times in 1932, 1.46 times in 1931, and 1.41 times in 1930.

Current assets on March 31, 1934, totaled $242,000 and current liabilities were $165,000. On Nov. 1, 1935, $910,000 of debenture 6s will mature.

The first 5s and 5½s, due 1950, are a business man's risk. The 6s, due 1935, are somewhat speculative.

ORDERS DISTURB WHEAT TRADERS, BUT NOT OFTEN

Activity Negligible; Price Changes Meaningless.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

For an hour yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade trading in wheat came to an almost complete standstill. Only an occasional small transaction appeared to disturb the peacefulness of the scene.

Representations now being made before a congressional committee that speculation will be destroyed by further federal regulations could be made in the past tense with reasonable truth if yesterday's market was accepted as typical. Speculation, or what is normally meant by that word in relation to the grain market, was the notable absentee during the doleful proceedings yesterday.

Prices Little Changed.

Quoted values of principal grain futures underwent only trifling changes. Wheat futures ended the day at prices an eighth to a quarter of a cent under the preceding day's quotations. One future in corn closed an eighth cent higher, another finished an eighth cent lower and the third closed at the same price it was quoted at the end of the previous day's trading.

Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Tuesday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .94½	$ .94¾	$ .90¾
Corn	.82½	.82⅝	.80⅜
Oats	.48⅝	.48⅝	.40⅛
Rye	.62⅜	.62⅝	.66⅝

The market did not get out of a one cent range on any grain. Trading was quiet from the beginning of the day, but from 11 to 12 o'clock activity all but ceased in the wheat pit. Business picked up somewhat at the end of the session.

In the corn pit more interest was stirred up than in wheat. One of the leading commission houses was credited with fairly heavy buying of corn, and while it strengthened prices it did not cause quotations to rise. This buying came into the market in the face of what was a considered a bearish report from the Argentine government on the corn crop in that country.

Argentina Plants More Corn.

The Argentine government estimated that 17,364,000 acres were sown to corn this season, compared with 15,860,000 acres last year and 14,300,000 two years ago. The figures confirm reports that producers had increased their plantings because of the opening up of the United States as a market for foreign grown corn.

Corn prices declined a half cent a bushel in Buenos Aires market yesterday. The report failed to cause a response here, although America is a potential market for substantial amounts of the surplus which Argentina will harvest in April and May.

In the cash wheat market yesterday No. 2 hard wheat brought the best premium over the May future price reported in this market during the season. The willingness of consumers to pay stiff premiums is interpreted as an indication of the pent up consumer demand. The volume of business being done in cash grains is comparatively small, however.

Open Interest Small.

The open interest in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade today is the smallest in 7 months, amounting to only 101,011,000 bushels. The "open interest" represents total outstanding uncompleted transactions, either sales or purchases, in the futures market. It constitutes an index of the volume of speculation in the market.

In the last month the open interest has fallen nearly 20,000,000 bushels. The decline has been ascribed largely to liquidation of holdings or retirement of short sales because of the uncertainty over the monetary situation. Removal of hedge sales by commercial interests also was an important factor. The figures compiled by the grain futures administration show that today's open interest is the smallest since last July.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Demand for fresh eggs was brisk yesterday and with light offerings prices advanced 1@2c per dozen to a new high for the season. Receipts were 3,423 cases. Butter was easy, with prices unchanged to ½c lower, centralized showing the decline. Receipts were 6,409 tubs. Potatoes were somewhat firmer with receipts of 42 cars with 327 cars on team track. Live leghorn hens were ½c lower and geese 1c per lb lower. Receipts were 1 car and 29 trucks.

FEBRUARY EGGS RISE TO NEW TOP; BUTTER HIGHER

Decreasing Production Brings Upturn.

Decreasing production of butter and small receipts of eggs, with the price of fresh offerings of the latter soaring 1 to 2 cents per dozen, lifted butter and egg futures yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Profit taking developed later and brought a good reaction. Butter, however, finished ⅛ to ¼ cent per pound higher while eggs were unchanged to ⅝ cents per dozen higher, the latter on February which sold at a new high for the season.

Nearly 500,000 pounds of foreign butter were received at New York Tuesday and another lot of nearly 400,000 were reported as due to arrive yesterday, both coming from London. The market ignored the news, however. Land O'Lakes' report showed production last week was 19 per cent less than a year ago, although 15 per cent greater than the preceding week, presumably reflecting the better weather conditions. There was no change in the New York cash butter market despite the liberal imports.

Movement of eggs is materially under that of a year ago. Local arrivals of 2,000 cases compared with 10,000 cases last year, while New York receipts of 25,000 cases showed a reduction of 8,000 cases as compared with 1934. Sales of butter futures aggregated 55 cars and of eggs 116 cars. Prices follow:

DENIES PACKING FIRM EARNED $25,000,000 IN 1934

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Norman Draper, Washington representative of the Institute of American Meat Packers, today charged Representative Wearin [Dem., Ia.] had misstated the facts in recommending a federal trade commission investigation of the packing industry.

Draper denied Wearin's charge that one company had made $25,000,000 profit in 1934 and said none made half that much.

"An analysis," he said in a letter to Wearin, "of the reports of ten large packing companies shows that total profits of these ten companies were approximately $31,000,000 in 1934, as compared with $26,000,000 in 1933. The total sales of these companies were more than $1,500,000,000.

"It should also be borne in mind that most of the profits made last year were due to appreciation of the value of products on hand and were not cash profits."

CATTLE REACH NEW HIGH BUT LOSE GAIN; STEERS' TOP IS $13.90

Cattle buyers showed more resistance to the soaring prices yesterday and effectively checked the rise after new highs had been established at the opening of the session. Uneven gains were erased later, but not before prime 1,249 pound steers set a new $13.90 top, the highest since December, 1930.

Yearlings averaging 955 pounds brought $13.50, although comparatively few sold above the $13.25 line. Packers obtained the bulk of beef steers at $8.00 to $13.00, and very few large lots had to sell for less than $6.00. Calves were slow and about steady.

A draggy trade developed for hogs with prices ruling steady to 10 cents lower, but a fairly good clearance was effected before the session closed. Another rise of 50 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds in fresh pork stimulated buying by smaller local interests.

Packers paid up to $10.35 for top grade 220 to 325 pound butchers, including the $2.25 processing tax, obtaining the bulk of the receipts from $10.05 to $10.30. The average for the day was $10.20, tax included.

Notwithstanding the relatively low position of the lamb market, compared with other live stock, demand dragged again and prices ruled weak to 15 cents lower. The bulk of lambs sold at the lowest prices in five weeks.

NARROW RANGE IN COTTON PRICES WITH CLOSE LOWER

Speculative interest in cotton yesterday was at a low ebb, with scattered commission house selling offset by small buying orders from the trade. Prices held within narrow limits, and at the finish Chicago was 3 to 8 points lower and other markets were unchanged to 7 points lower. According to some operators, the government loan level of 12 cents per pound to the producer is one of the main factors in preventing any material decline. Spot cotton closed 5 points lower, with New Orleans, Galveston, Houston, and New York 12.50 cents per pound. Prices follow:

LONDON BANKS REFUSE AID IN PEPPER CORNER

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Almost the last hope of averting a series of bankruptcies involving 2,500,000 pounds shattered today when "Big Five" banks refused to rescue the pepper speculators caught in last week's gamble.

With 21,000 tons of white pepper, or three years' normal supply piling up in warehouses here dealings have been at a standstill all week. Members of the pool which attempted to corner the market have been making frantic efforts to get help from the banks before settlement day, Friday, but today their efforts ended in failure.

Some houses indirectly concerned may appeal to Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, to use his influence with the banks. The city now takes it for granted, however, that at least two important firms are beyond help and will go into compulsory liquidation at the end of the week.

Meanwhile, the moratorium arranged last week-end was extended today with the result the pepper market will remain closed until Friday. By this device it is hoped to save produce brokers and others who may suffer from the wild overspeculation of a few large scale gamblers. In any event, the city fears repercussions of the "pepper crisis" will be felt in other commodity markets and make sizeable speculations difficult for many months to come.

ESTIMATES CUT CANADIAN WHEAT EXPORT TOTAL

Canada will export 40,000,000 bushels less wheat during the current crop season than was anticipated a few months ago if present estimates are borne out. The Broomhall agency forecast a few months ago that Canada would sell 280,000,000 bushels of wheat in the world market during the present season. This agency now has revised its figure and fixes Canada's probable export total at 240,000,000 bushels.

At the same time prospective exports of Australia have been raised from 88,000,000 to 96,000,000 bushels. Broomhall had also estimated that the United States would show net exports of 8,000,000 bushels of wheat. This figure is now eliminated with the explanation that exports from this country will be offset by purchases of foreign wheat.

COMMISSION HOUSE BUYING LIFTS LARD FUTURE PRICES

While investors show a disposition to go slow in taking a decided position on either side of the lard market, scattered commission house buying developed yesterday. With light offerings prices advanced and closed at net gains of 2½ to 7½ points. Warehouse interests were sellers on the upturn. Best prices were not maintained due to sympathy with the easiness in grains. Bellies were nominally 5 to 7½ points higher. A fair domestic trade in both cash lard and meats was reported, but the export demand for the former was said to be slow. Cash lard closed at 12.85 cents; loose, 12.65 cents; leaf, 12¾ cents, and bellies, 16.02½ cents per pound. Prices follow:

Lard.

	High.	Low.	Close Feb. 6.	Close Feb. 5.	Close Feb. 7. 1934.
May	12.97	12.92	12.92	12.90	6.32

Clear Bellies.

May	....	....	16.07	16.00	7.97

Note—Above prices include processing tax at 2.47c per lb on lard and 2.62c per lb on bellies taxed on produce made since March, 1934. This tax is rebated on produce exported, but varies according to the amount due to the fact that the tax was gradually advanced.

PRODUCE DISTRICT RECEIVERSHIP IS ASKED IN COURT

A receivership action against the Chicago Produce district, comprising six blocks of buildings on the near southwest side, was brought in the Superior court yesterday on behalf of a bondholder.

The district which went through a reorganization in 1932 and has paid its bond interest since that time, consists of about 180 units, of which all but 6 are occupied and is currently operating at a profit.

The receivership petition was filed by Attorney Samuel P. Gurman, representing a holder of $350 of the bonds of a total issue of $4,000,000. The petition alleges that trustees of the district have taken exorbitant fees and profits under the reorganization.

It asks a receiver for the district while hearings on the charges are being held by a master in chancery and an injunction against further collection and disbursements by Trustees S. J. T. Straus, Sidney H. Cahn, and Henry R. Platt Jr.

Charges contained in the petition were branded as false by I. E. Ferguson, attorney for the trustees. He pointed out that the district retired $100,000 of its bonds Feb. 1 out of profits accruing during the preceding six months.

The reorganization has resulted in the payment of bond interest and restored the financial health of the enterprise, he added.

PACKERS ACCEDE TO AAA DIRECT MARKETING PLAN

Packers are ready to put into effect recommendations made by the federal government in its recent report on direct marketing of live stock. This was announced yesterday by the Association to Maintain Freedom in Live Stock Marketing with headquarters in Des Moines, Ia. Both large and small packers are members of the association.

Jay Decker, Mason City, Ia. packer and member of the organization, said yesterday the Des Moines association's membership represented 80 per cent of all live stock bought direct and slaughtered under federal inspection.

Federal recommendations call for the abolition of so-called "board prices" used by some interior packers, elimination of feeding hogs just prior to sale and "docking" piggy sows and stags. They also ask for more frequent inspection of scales and weighing at interior points by qualified authorities. The government wants uniform grade standards adopted and the federal market news service extended.
